GARDEN CROWD WILD FOR WILSON

BEATS BULL MOOSE RECORD

REPUBLICAN PARTY FLAYED

Gov. Wilson Says It Feared to Act Lest Monopolies It Had Fostered Would Turn on It.

STAB FOR THE BULL MOOSE

Third Party Only Grieved That the Beneficiaries of the Tariff Do Not Equitably Divide the Spoils.

Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, who has spent many years of his life in studious paths and has been referred to by his opponents as a cold and bookish professor, last night turned a regular old-fashioned political meeting of 16,000 persons, a meeting like that which had been thrilled by the great Bull Moose leader in the same place on the night before, into a wild, waving, cheering, yelling, roaring, stamping mob of enthusiasts that needed no songs and no hymns and no encouragement to keep it at a high pitch.

Despite every effort on the part of the Democratic leader, despite his almost pathetic desire for peace, the cheering, whistling, and yelling for him, mingled with an undiminished hour-and-four-minute-long "Ray-ay-ay-ay-ay," continued, surpassing, if possible, in volume and enthusiasm, and certainly by twenty minutes in duration, the tremendous welcome that had been roared forth to the picturesque and popular wounded Bull Moose leader on the night before.

Old-time Democrats and many a Democrat in that gathering who was not of old times at all declared that never in their memories—even in the day of the Peerless Boy Orator of the Platte—had a Democratic meeting been marked with such spontaneous and whole-souled enthusiasm.

Gov. Wilson agreed with them, as far as any meeting in his own experience was concerned, adding "whole-lunged" as well as "whole-souled" as an epithet to describe the enthusiasm, and also "irrepressible" and "utterly ungovernable." He has governed a great many persons and things since he first started governing New Jersey, but never had a task so difficult and in fact impossible of achievement before him as the governing of that madly enthusiastic crowd of 16,000 men and women in the Garden last night. It simply cheered until it could cheer no longer.

Yet the profesor was never happier than when he saw the Bull Moose record lowered.

Before he came to the Garden, the dense throng there had contrasted markedly with the throng of almost fanatical enthusiasts of the night before. There had been plenty of cheering, but it could be heard in various parts of the Garden, instead as in one great all-pervading roar from every throat; and there had been more audible jokes and political gibes, more laughter and good-humor, than in the solemnly enthusiastic meeting of the crusaders of Wednesday. It had been, in fact, a monster political rally not unlike, though greater than, the rallies of years gone by.

All the preceding speakers had "taken well" with the crowd, and been heartily cheered and applauded. But when Gov. Wilson appeared, the entire character of the gathering was changed. It was no longer a political rally. It was a mob of cheering, roaring enthusiasts Wilson-mad and eager to follow him.

They were eager to hear what he had to say, but they were most eager of all to let him know, to make him know, this: "We want Wilson!" This was roared again and again. And there wasn't the slightest doubt of the absolute determination back of the cry.

Only after they had had their fill of yelling and cheering did they allow the Governor to make himself heard. And even then they interrupted him again and again with bursts of applause and individual cries of encouragement and affection ranging from apropos and understandable comments to warwhoops and blood-curdling rebel yells.

He Feels Responsibility.

Gov. Wilson, deeply moved, expressed the deep sense of responsibility that the overwhelming reception had impressed him with. He declared that it thrilled him the more because he realized that it was a welcome extended not only to him the man, but far more still to true Democracy, the cause in which he was to lead them, a cause which was "to help Americans come into their own again." As Election Day approached, and with it ever-increasing evidence of a country-wide sentiment for his election, he declared, he felt more and more solemn at the thought of the great destiny that was his and the great service he was to render his people and country.

The other of the great older parties, he declared, had suddenly seemed to abandon the initial principles which had begotten it, and to have subsided into a frightened inactivity and apathy as to break into a panic-stricken fear of undertaking any reforms whatever, lest the great interests of monopoly and dishonest business it had fostered and helped grow turn upon it and wreck it with the power it put into them.

To the Bull Moose Party, on the other hand, he referred as a party that had broken away from the Republican Party to become a company of "adventurous discoverers, looking about for new ways of performing old duties, duties that every party has owed from the beginning of party government." It aimed, he declared, to substitute new methods of executive supervision for the old methods of law, and to undertake a chastening of business instead of a regeneration of business.

"The trouble with this party is that it

WILSON 4 TO 1, SULZER 2 TO 1

10 to 7 Roosevelt Leads Taft—2 to 1 Straus to Beat Hedges.

Betting odds in Wall Street on the election changed slightly yesterday. Wagers were made at 10 to 7 that Roosevelt would get a bigger popular vote than Taft, instead of 10 to 8, the prevailing odds heretofore. Straus to beat Hedges was quoted at 2 to 1.

The odds in favor of Wilson's election remained unchanged at 4 to 1, and odds in favor of Sulzer for Governor continued to range between 2 to 1 and 4 to 1.

THIRTY VOLCANOES ACTIVE.

Strange Physical Changes in an Island of the Tonga Group.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Oct. 31.—Thirty volcanoes are in eruption on the Island of Ninafoon, in the Tonga group in the South Pacific, and many remarkable changes in the physical features of the island have resulted.

A large lake in the centre of the island has dropped two feet from its original level, according to reports received here.

AUTO KILLS PARK POLICEMAN

Car Runs Him Down on Driveway and Speeds Away from Victim.

At 1:20 o'clock this morning Patrolman Peter Fitzsimmons, attached to the Arsenal Station in Central Park, was on duty in the West Drive opposite Seventy-fourth Street when an automobile speeding southward struck him down and ran over him. He was instantly killed, and the machine swept on out of sight. The detectives put on the case a little later did not even have a guess at the number of the car as a basis for their work.

Patrolman Powers, who was stationed a short distance away, says he heard a woman scream when the car struck Fitzsimmons, but that by the time he got there the auto had gone on, leaving Fitzsimmons's cut and lacerated body in the roadway.

KIMMEL CLAIMANT LOSES.

Jury Awards Mrs. Bonslett Amount of Two $10,000 Policies.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 31.—The Kimmel claimant failed to prove his identity at a second trial to the satisfaction of the jury, for it returned a verdict to-night in favor of Mrs. Edna K. Bonslett, who was suing in the State District Court to collect two $10,000 insurance policies on the life of her brother, George A. Kimmel, who disappeared from Kansas City in 1898.

Mrs. Bonslett will receive $20,460, including interest.

Special to The New York Times.

LIMA, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Charles Conway, one-legged high diver, and Beatrice Ryall, his wife, animal trainer, were taken into custody by the police here to-day after being sought throughout the country, in connection with the murder of Sophia Singer of Baltimore, at Chicago. The couple were arrested at the Cadillac Hotel, where they had registered as "Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Crowley, Sidney, Ohio."

"What?" ejaculated Conway, when informed that he was wanted in connection with Miss Singer's murder. "Is Sophia dead?"

The woman displayed great grief and became hysterical when told that she and her husband were suspected of the murder.

ONE AUTO RAMS ANOTHER.

Tank on Colliding Car Explodes, Injuring Four Persons.

A big green touring car whizzing down Third Avenue at 1 o'clock this morning, its tonneau filled with a party of Hallow-e'en spirits, struck the rear end of a white touring car that was crossing at Twenty-third Street with such violence that for a moment the two cars simply spun around as on a pivot. Then the white car was shot over onto the pavement and the gasoline tank of the green car exploded.

It was from the burning wreckage that Policeman Weisenreder, running up from his fixed post on Twenty-second Street, helped four passengers, most of them badly burned. A woman in white was the first to be freed, and as the policeman helped her away a diamond lavallière dropped to the ground. In the excitement of the first few moments, as the injured were being taken to Bellevue Hospital, this list of the persons hurt was made out:

Mrs. Nellie Rodgers of 253 West Twenty-fifth Street, Henry Rosenberg of 29 Ridge Street, Lydia Locke, an unidentified man, and the chauffeur of the green car, Bertrand Darner of 62 West Forty-sixth Street. According to the number on the green car, as recorded by the police, it was the property of J. W. Robbins of 33 East Seventy-fourth Street. The car was completely demolished.

Among the remnants of charred cushions the police found a gold bangle, a gold bracelet set with six diamonds, a woman's gold cigarette case incrusted with jewels, and several chains.

The white car belonged to H. Fried of 169 Suffolk Street. He was driving at the time, and was unhurt.

CONTESTS $1,000,000 WILL.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 31.—The will of his father, Frank H. Holyoke, a wealthy lumberman of Bangor, Me., is declared to be a forgery by Sydney Holyoke, of Milwaukee, who filed a notice of contest to-day in the Superior Court. The case will be heard Nov. 11.

Mr. Holyoke died at Pasadena a year ago, his will giving each of his two sons $100 and his wife, from whom he had been separated a short time, $1,000. The remainder of the estate, said to be valued at $1,000,000, with the exception of $50,000 bequeathed to Bangor philanthropies, was left to two nieces, Madeline and Marjorie Holyoke of Bangor.

The contestant alleged that the will was not signed by his father and that it was drafted by "certain designing persons residing in Pasadena," while his father was mentally unbalanced.

BECKER OUT OF WAY, LID IS AGAIN LIFTED

BECKER AID IS INDICTED

Charles Becker, ex-head of the Strong Arm Squad and convicted slayer of Herman Rosenthal, spent his first day in the death house at Sing Sing Prison, after a restful night, in the little cell in which John Kane, a negro who killed several persons in New York, vacated recently when removed to Matteawan.

The July Grand Jury, which found the blanket indictment under which Becker was convicted, was discharged yesterday, after it had handed down a new indictment for perjury. The man named in this document is William Ferrick, who formerly was a member of Becker's squad and who made a false affidavit, on which Becker raided a poolroom in West Thirty-seventh Street.

District Attorney Whitman received information that the police had passed the word along that New York might "open up" again; that the State had been satisfied with the conviction of Becker, and that there was no more to be feared at the hands of the District Attorney and his staff.

A special panel of 200 talesmen was authorized by Justice Goff, in the extraordinary term of the Supreme Court, to be drawn on Friday, Nov. 8. From this panel will be chosen the jurors to try the four gunmen, "Gyp the Blood" Horowitz, "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, "Whitey" Lewis, and "Dago Frank" Cirofici.

The trial of Joseph Conroy, who shot and killed his lawyer, Joseph Fettrich, which was to have been held on Nov. 6, was postponed by Justice Goff, so that the trials of the gunmen could be got under way.

District Attorney Whitman learned that an attempt might be made to have the four gunmen tried together. It is probable, however, that they will be tried singly and that "Whitey" Lewis will go to trial first.

The District Attorney sought to come to an agreement with "Billiard Ball" Jack Rose, "Bridgey" Webber, Harry Vallon, and Sam Schepps, whereby the informers shall consent to aid the State by remaining in jail until after the trials of the gunmen. Mr. Whitman seemed to believe everything would be all right, but it is known that the informers are not pleased with their present positions.

These were the developments yesterday in the investigation and trials which have grown out of the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

READY TO LIFT THE LID AGAIN.

Underworld Is Once More Dickering with Police, Whitman Hears.

Information reached District Attorney Whitman yesterday that word had been passed along through the underworld that the police were again ready to wink at those violations of the law to which organized vice and gambling owed their existence before the murder of Herman Rosenthal and the investigation growing out of it caused a panic-stricken closing of gambling and disorderly resorts and an unusual activity on the part of the police. Mr. Whitman was told that gamblers who had fled the city when there seemed a good chance that many of them might be called as witnesses in the investigation had commenced to return and that they were once again making arrangements with the police, in the belief that the worst of the investigation was over.

Mr. Whitman was able to imagine easily enough that it was the failure of a John Doe investigation to get under way which had filled the gamblers and others with a mistaken sense of security. The John Doe investigation, which is to be part of Justice Goff's work while he presides over the extraordinary term of the Supreme Court, will be begun as soon as the trials of the gunmen shall have been completed, and meanwhile Mr. Whitman has men at work gathering all the evidence they can get of renewed activity on the part of the gamblers and traffickers in vice. All this will be called to the attention of the extraordinary Grand Jury which will aid Justice Goff in his inquiry, and the ultimate investigation will be more complete because of the very hardihood of the gamblers in reopening at this time.

Mr. Whitman explained yesterday that the John Doe investigation had never been lost sight of, but that, important as it would prove to be, it had no place in the procedure of Justice Goff's court until after the trials of Herman Rosenthal's murderers had been disposed of. This work will be pressed to a finish as rapidly as Mr. Whitman can present his evidence to the jury, and he has already stated that he does not expect to devote more than about four days to each trial.

It is the hope of Mr. Whitman and of Justice Goff that the trials may be completed before the end of this month, and then the District Attorney plans to devote himself almost exclusively to the John Doe inquiry. It can be said that Mr. Whitman feels this inquiry will prove to be the biggest thing of its kind which has ever occurred in this city—bigger than either the Lexow or Mazet investigations.

Four Inspectors May Be Indicted.

The District Attorney feels that, while the personnel of the Police Department is good as a whole, there is running through it a strain or grafting policemen who range in rank from Inspectors to ordinary patrolmen. It is this diseased part which Mr. Whitman hopes to remove, and he is confident that he will accomplish what he has set out to do.

Though the District Attorney has not mentioned it, it is known that his private investigations into police matters have never ceased, even when he appeared to be most busy with the preparation and later the conduct of the Becker trial. Early in the Rosenthal investigation evidence reached Mr. Whitman which indicated that at least four Inspectors and perhaps other officials of the Police Department were involved in grafting. This evidence has not been lost, and it has not been forgotten. Instead, Mr. Whitman's men have been adding to it stead-

PRINCETON WON'T LET MRS. CLEVELAND GO

College Boys Think She Can Be Retained by Offering Professorship to Dr. Preston.

HIBBEN SMILES KNOWINGLY

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31.—The Princeton boys have gravely if unofficially given their consent to the marriage of Mrs. Grover Cleveland and Thomas Jes Preston. They are perfectly willing to troop over to Westland and stand outside with bared heads to wish her every happiness. They are eager to get Tom Preston back among themselves, to slap him on the back, and tell him he's a jolly good fellow. They are ready to shower the coming wedding with an undergraduate blessing, but all this only on one condition, and that is that the Prestons shall live at Princeton. The boys simply will not hear of Mrs. Cleveland being taken away to Aurora, N. Y., or any other place.

They know that it is customary for a bride to go to the home and town of her husband, but this case must be an exception. They know that Prof. Preston holds the chair of Archaeology and the History of Art at Wells College, but they think that can be fixed very easily by just giving him a professorship at Princeton at any salary he cares to name. They know that Mrs. Cleveland is a Trustee and devoted Alumna of the college at Aurora, but they believe that in the years intervening since her graduation by long and close association she has become a Princeton woman, if ever there was one, and they believe that deep down in her heart she knows it. The upshot of it is that the students are unanimous in their decision that the Prestons shall live at Princeton.

Some of the boys went to President Hibben about it to-day and asked him point-blank if the Trustees intended to offer Prof. Preston a post at Princeton. He laughingly turned aside the query, but there is good ground for the rumor here to-night that next year will see Thomas Jes Preston's name with Princeton's Litt. B, Princeton's M. A., and Princeton's Phi Beta Kappa strung after it, enrolled in the roster of the Princeton Faculty.

It is known that Dr. Hibben has a high admiration for Prof. Preston, and that he is very fond of him. He also yields to none in his admiration for Mrs. Cleveland, and the boys believe that the man who was the "whitest man in all the Fac" will not desert them in this important manner. They believe devoutly that the Prestons will take up their home in Princeton.

"Lose Mrs. Cleveland?" said one of the spokesmen for the boys here this afternoon, "why it simply wouldn't do at all. We couldn't allow it. Princeton wouldn't be Princeton without Mrs. Cleveland. She's the fairy godmother of the whole college."

"Mrs. Cleveland has always been intensely interested in Princeton," assented Dr. Hibben. "Her home has always been open to the boys and her social charm rendered it an attractive gathering place. In addition, Mrs. Cleveland has carried out many of the ideas of Mr. Cleveland. No one will ever know just how much money he spent in aiding poor boys to get a coveted education."

All over Princeton to-day and yesterday knots of boys were trying to picture the college without Mrs. Cleveland. There was a pang in the picture for every one of them, for never is there a big Princeton day that the woman who was once the gracious hostess of the White House is not an important figure toward whom all eyes turn.

Prof. Preston tells his friends here that the day for the ceremony has not yet been set, but when he is asked if that ceremony will affect his relations with Wells College he simply says he cannot decide at this time. So Princeton is hoping.

KAISER HEARS AMERICANS.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The American Exchange professors' opening lectures of the session at Berlin University to-day were very warmly received by a brilliant audience, including the Emperor and Empress.

Prof. William H. Sloane of Columbia, the Roosevelt professor, spoke on "American Political Parties," and Prof. Charles S. Minot of Harvard on "Developments of Modern Research in Anatomy and Biology."

Emperor William, at the conclusion of the addresses, conversed for half an hour with the professors, and their wives were then presented to his Majesty.

The audience included many prominent German educators and social leaders, as well as Irwin B. Laughlin and Willing Spencer, from the American Embassy, and Consul General Thackara and a number of members of the American colony.

Thousands of students and spectators gathered outside the university buildings to cheer the Emperor and Empress.

ENVOYS GO TO PARIS TO DISCUSS PEACE

SOFIA SUSPECTS THE POWERS

"The Servian Foreign Minister and the Greek Premier, who brought about the Balkan Alliance, started for Paris to-day, it is supposed to negotiate with Premier Poincaré.

"It is understood that the Bulgarian Army in following up its successes will advance on Constantinople. The Balkan allies will not accept an armistice, but are willing to negotiate peace direct with Turkey."

It is believed here that a settlement will be arranged either by the Porte suing for peace or by intervention of the powers, and an interesting question involving difficult diplomatic problems will immediately arise as to the division of the spoils of war—a question concerning not only the victorious allies, but also Russia, Austria, Rumania, and possibly other powers.

Describing the defeat of the Turks at Kailar, Macedonia, a dispatch to The Daily Chronicle says they left 2,000 dead, while 500 were taken prisoners. Seven guns fell into the hands of the Greeks.

The main body of the Greek Army is now marching in force to attack Salonika.

In dispatches from Vienna it is asserted that in any event the entry of Bulgarian troops into Constantinople will not be tolerated by the powers. Even Russia is disinclined to permit such an occurrence.

Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, stated yesterday in the House of Commons that when the military situation in the Balkan Peninsula permitted, the powers would take steps to insure a durable peace between the belligerents.

PARIS, Friday, Nov. 1.—The Matin publishes an interview with Noradunghian Effendi, the Turkish Foreign Minister, who is quoted as saying:

"Turkey cannot lay down her arms until she is victorious. However, if Europe intervenes by an offer of mediation, we are ready, as in the past, to follow the advice of Europe. We cannot forget that we participated in the labors of the conference at The Hague, and to-day, as yesterday, we shall not disavow a single one of the dispositions adopted at that conference, to which we placed our signature.

"M. Poincaré will find that Turkey will not stand in the way if he takes up the courageous task of attempting to re-establish peace. To-morrow, as to-day, we shall show the great powers of the West that peace has no support more loyal than Turkey."

BALKAN STATES FEAR POWERS.

Suspicious That They May Be Robbed of the Fruits of Victory.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 1.—A special dispatch to The London Times from Sofia says:

"The news of the victory at Lule-Burgas has been received here without any public demonstrations, and the fear is generally expressed that in the hour of her triumph Bulgaria may now, as in 1885, be deprived of the reward of victory.

"Rumors of the imminence of Austro-Hungarian and Rumanian mobilization gain ground, and no great confidence is felt that the powers of the Triple entente will obtain fair play for those who have risked everything in the cause of freedom.

"The importance of yesterday's victory is fully understood. With the rout of Nazim Pasha's army the campaign is believed to be practically over, and nothing is now needed but the fall of Adrianople to render the Bulgarian triumph complete. It is thought that this event cannot now long be deferred, as the investment of the city can now be rapidly carried out.

"Within the next few days momentous decisions will probably be taken by the great powers and the peace of Europe will be at stake.

"Whether the concert holds together or breaks up, I have reason to believe that the four Balkan States will hold firmly to their programme. They have already undergone enormous sacrifices and are prepared to face every eventuality.

"Only those who have been brought into close contact with the terrible realities of war can estimate the extent of those sacrifices. Here in Sofia the wounded are arriving literally by thousands. All the larger public buildings have been transformed into hospitals, as well as many private houses. In the military school, which I visited to-day, beds cannot be provided for all the patients, and many are laid on the bare floors. I noticed that all the Turkish patients had beds. The wounded from the last great battle, both Bulgarians and Turks, have yet to arrive, and how arrangements can be made to accommodate them it is hard to say.

France Proposes Mediation.

The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Mail wires as follows:

"The French Government has come forward with a proposal to the great powers for mediation between Turkey and the Balkan League. The news was confirmed to me to-night in an official quarter, where, however, it was stated that nothing could be said for the present regarding the nature of Premier Poincaré's proposal, which was being examined by the Vienna Cabinet, but I learn on unimpeachable authority that the proposal, while couched in general terms, outlines the form in which the powers shall intervene to stop the war.

"There is apparently no question of Bulgaria and Turkey negotiating peace terms directly between themselves, but the powers have reason to believe that Turkey will negotiate through them.

"A feeling of outspoken pessimism prevails in well-informed quarters here. 'The situation is only peaceable,' a competent personage said to me this evening, 'as long as Austria-Hungary does not feel that attempts are being made to neglect her legitimate interests in the Balkans. If she were forced to come to that conclusion, I must admit that I should be prepared for anything.'

Pessimism in Vienna.

"I have spoken with leading personages of the diplomatic body in Vienna to-day, and everywhere I find the same state of tension. It is unanimously believed that the task of Europe, confronted by four victorious armies already establishing themselves on Turkish soil, is extremely dangerous. What will Europe do, it is asked, if the Balkan allies refuse to accept the territorial extensions which, it is now generally anticipated, Europe will offer to them? Will Europe risk a general conflagration by attempting to wrest with the sword what the victors have won with the sword?

"The only certainty of the entire situation so far as Austria-Hungary is concerned is that the dual monarchy has made preparations for every eventuality, and that if the moment should come to strike, her preparedness is such that a blow can be delivered in any direction with the utmost rapidity."

NO GERMAN BASE IN CHILE.

State Department Scouts Story of Magellan Coaling Station.

PUNTA ARENAS, Chile, Oct. 31.—It is reported here that Germany is about to acquire an island in the Straits of Magellan to be used as a coaling station.

The German cruiser Bremen is now engaged in exploring and surveying in the neighborhood, and it is understood that the visit is also connected with the opening of the Panama Canal and the possibilities for German trade in South America.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The report that Germany is negotiating with Chile for a concession at Punta Arenas, where it is proposed to establish a naval coaling station, is news to State Department officials. A prominent official of the department said to-night:

"None of us ever heard of it and nobody will hear of it hereafter. I suppose it is an attempt to operate on the little toe of the Monroe Doctrine. If a coaling station can be placed at the Straits of Magellan in theory one could be placed at Panama."

MRS. EDDY'S ESTATE SETTLED

Christian Science Church Will Receive About $2,000,000.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science Church, had in Massachusetts at the time of her death $52,848.75 in personal property, and real estate valued at $155,000, according to the report of Thomas W. Streeter, Frederick E. Jennings, and John W. Worthington, who were appointed to appraise the estate by the Suffolk County Probate Court.

All the personal property goes to the Christian Science Church, under the decision of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire, which sustained the will of Mrs. Eddy. The entire amount which the New Hampshire administrator will turn over to the church is about $2,000,000.

The Massachusetts Supreme Court, which has jurisdiction only over the $155,000 of real estate within the Commonwealth, has decided that the statute bars the Christian Science Church from receiving this property as left by Mrs. Eddy's will, but that the property may be administered as a charitable trust by the Trustees appointed by the court.

MET HAZERS WITH HOSE.

But Strenuous Defense Did Not Save Divinity Men from Ducking.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Six Biblical students at the Northwestern University were ducked in Lake Michigan early this morning by about eighty fraternity men. The men who were thrown in the lake were captured after a raid on Heck Hall. They were caught only after a hard fight, and the noise of the many persons in the hall awoke the men on the upper floors. The next thing the marauders knew, streams from two fire hose were pouring down on them.

The invaders made a hasty retreat, but took with them the six men who had been caught. The students were taken to a pier, where the ropes binding them were cut, and they were thrown into the lake.

Receipt of Grave News Admitted—France Suggests to Powers Mediation to End War.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Dispatch to The London Times.

SOFIA, Oct. 31.—The decisive battle of the war has apparently been fought and won.

Bulgarian cavalry, advancing from Kirk-Kilisseh and Baba-Eski, reached Lule-Burgas on Tuesday morning, followed by the bulk of the combined armies of Gen. Dimitriff and Gen. Kutincheff. Later in the day here they encountered the main Turkish Army, under Nazim Pasha.

The accounts received here make no allusion to Abdullah Pasha, whose disagreement with Nazim may have led to his removal, but mention is made of other distinguished Turkish Generals.

The total Turkish forces are stated to have numbered 150,000 men, the Bulgarians being about equal.

A great series of battles then began, continuing more than forty-eight hours. The Bulgarians, who were filled with confidence by their recent victories, attacked with great impetuosity the Turkish positions extending from Lule-Burgas on the south to Bunar-Hissar on the north.

The Turks appear to have resisted with great obstinacy, but they eventually gave way all along the line and retreated in disorder toward Sarai and Tchorlu.

The retreat eventually became a complete debacle, and the Bulgarians followed in pursuit energetically, severely punishing the panic-stricken Turks and capturing a great number of guns, flags, and munitions of war, and taking numerous prisoners.

It is reported this evening that Tchorlu has been captured, and that the Bulgarians are advancing on Tchatldja.

FRESH ARMY WAS ROUTED.

By FREDERICK PALMER,
Special Correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SOFIA, Oct. 31, 9:30 P. M.—It is now officially announced that the Turkish Army, comprising 150,000 freshly concentrated Anatolians, has been driven back after three days of fighting on the line from Lule-Burgas to Bunarhissar.

They are being closely pressed by the victorious Bulgarians, and have retreated to a new line, extending between Sarai and Tchorlu.

The victors have captured a great number of prisoners and a large amount of war material.

The losses of the Turkish Army, of which Nazim Pasha, the War Minister, was in command, have been heavy.

Rodosto and Midia, the ports which have been used to disembark the Anatolian troops, are exposed to attack of the victors and must soon fall.

All the Turkish forces to the westward are facing Greek and Servian armies and are isolated from the Constantinople base.

After thirteen days of war Adrianople is under siege and fighting there has begun.

The victories of the allied armies have hardly ever been surpassed, either as a military feat or in the endurance of the peasant and shepherd soldiers or the work of the commissariat. All reports agree that rations were always up with the fighting men.

The feeling here is that peace will not come through the intervention of the powers, until Turkey sues for it, and the Bulgarians are confident that they will soon force her into that attitude.

The Bulgarian reservists are responding to the call to the colors, and also many volunteers continue to arrive. They are promptly dispatched to the front. The Bulgarians think that the industrial development which will follow the war will keep those who have returned at home.

Several Servian divisions passed through Sofia on the way to the siege of Adianople to-day. With the Macedonia nand Bulgarian volunteers, Bulgaria alone claims to be able to place 500,000 men in the field.

By LIEUT. WEGENER.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Dispatch to The Vienna Reichspost.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE SECOND BULGARIAN ARMY, Thursday, Oct. 31.—The Turkish retreat has become a rout. The defeat of the Turkish Army is complete.

The Bulgarians called up all their available troops from other positions for a decisive fight with the Turkish Eastern Army.

Before the battle of Kirk-Kilisseh three to four brigades were passed from the western army to the eastern army, and after Kirk-Kilisseh the losses in that fight were made good by bringing up reinforcements from the army engaged in the siege of Adrianople.

At the battle of Visa and Lule-Burgas 230,000 men were engaged.

The original plan arranged at headquarters for an attack on the Turkish Army was altered somewhat, owing to the retreat of the Turks from Baba-Eski, and an attack was made on their right wing from Sarai to Bunar-Hissar, so that the left wing came earlier into conflict with the advancing Turks.

Severe hand-to-hand conflicts took place in the woods, during which Turkish reservists from Asia Minor behaved with great courage.

Their forward movement, however, was checked, although at this point the Turks brought up fresh reserves repeatedly.

The Turkish lines were finally forced into a retreat, which resolved itself into a flight.

At this point the fight took on the same character as at Kirk-Kilesseh. The Turks began by a courageous rush, then they broke ranks, and finally they were seized with panic.

The panic spread to the entire army corps. Four Turkish divisions of 48,000 men were put to flight and dispersed in confusion.

On their right wing the Turks had entrenched themselves on several strong lines on either side of Lule-Burgas. The Bulgarian artillery took up a position on the flank of the entrenchments and shelled the Turkish lines.

TURKS' POSITION DESPERATE.

Cabinet Believed to be Considering an Appeal for Peace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 1.—There seems no reason to doubt the Bulgarian announcement, conveyed in agency dispatches from Sofia, of a severe defeat of the Turkish Army along the Lule-Burgas and Sarai line and a panicky retreat of Nazim Pasha's forces on Tchorlu, for even Nazim's official reports admit that the Bulgarians are advancing about Lule-Burgas, and the best he can say for his men is that they are offering "vigorous resistance."

The most favorable deduction for the Turks that can be drawn from their own commander's reports is that they met with some success on their extreme right. As to what happened at the centre of the Ottoman position, Nazim is completely silent, and it is here that the Bulgarians assert they had their greatest success.

That the Turkish centre has been pierced seems beyond contravention, and this means disaster in case the troops are disheartened by previous reverses.

One extremely interesting admission is made in Nazim's reports. He says the Citadel at Adrianople is still holding out. If the Citadel alone is now resisting, all the forts guarding Adrianople must have fallen, and the doom of the Turkish fortress cannot long be delayed.

The stern realities of the situation are apparently beginning to be understood at Constantinople, for a Council of Ministers was held at midnight (Thursday) for the purpose, it is believed, of considering the question of making peace.

Correspondents Silent.

Up to 2 A. M. to-day no news had reached London of the great four days' battle from any of the special war correspondents. In fact, with the sole exception of Lieut. Wegener of the Vienna Reichspost, not one of the ninety war correspondents who sought to follow the Bulgarian colors has been allowed anywhere near the fighting line.

Mustapha-Pasha, on the Turkish-Bulgarian frontier, was the headquarters of the special correspondents yesterday. They had permits to proceed, but were forbidden to approach Adrianople, and, judging from such dispatches as they transmitted yesterday, they are in utter ignorance of the great events which happened in the last four days in this most rapid of modern campaigns.

Great as the Bulgarian victory at Lule-Burgas has been, it is considered by military experts to be by no means complete, and Vienna dispatches which carry us to a point beyond the official reports from Sofia indicate that fighting is still proceeding.

The main battle, according to the Neue Freie Presse, is expected between Muradli, Tchorlu, and Istrandja. The question is whether the Turks can make good their retreat upon the Tchataldja lines, which are considered impregnable.

The fighting has been over such an extended area and probably of such a disconnected sort, as was the case at Mukden, that it is difficult, with the reports available, to obtain an altogether clear idea of the operations. The severest encounter was apparently in the direction of Lule-Burgas to Tchorlu. There is a difference of expert opinion here as to whether this was Nazim's left wing or his centre. The general idea is that it was the Turkish left, but various reports have spoken of a Turkish movement from Usundpru, which presumably referred to the force constituting the extreme Ottoman left in Nazim's original dispositions.

In moving his front to the east in order to prevent a Bulgarian force marching by Viza and Midia, Nazim may have been unable to draw in his left wing in time to mass sufficient troops in the neighborhood of Lule-Burgas to resist the Bulgarian attack at that point. In that case the absence of any late news of the Turkish forces reported moving from Usundpru would indicate that the Ottoman commander lost touch with it. If this supposition is correct its chances of getting to the Tchataldja lines is remote and its capture by the Bulgarians probable.

Nazim Pasha's Fate.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 1.—Nazim Pasha, the Turkish Minister of War and Commander in Chief in Thrace, has been either shot or taken prisoner, according to a dispatch from Sofia to The Morning Post.

This is the latest news received here in regard to the four days' battle in Thrace which has ended in the triumph of the Bulgarian Commander in Chief, Gen. Ivanoff, whose skillful strategy has probably brought to a close one of the shortest and most remarkable wars on record.

A great Turkish Army, estimated at over 200,000 men, has been defeated and is in retreat. Constantinople is believed to be at the mercy of the victorious Bulgarian Army, and a council, sitting at the Porte, is discussing the advisability of suing for peace.

Such is the news which comes from Constantinople.

It is only a fortnight since Turkey declared war. The first week of the campaign closed with the dramatic fall of Kirk-Kilisseh, fully revealing for the first time the disorganization, bad morale, and inefficient commissariat of the Turkish Army. To-day that army is defeated, routed within fifty miles of Constantinople, and possibly its retreat within the capital's line of defenses is cut off.

Only the briefest and vaguest accounts of the great battle have yet been received, for the war has been especially remarkable in that not a single war correspondent has been allowed at the front except in the case of the little Montenegrin campaign against Scutari.

Thus no independent personal narrative of the absorbing events has been possible, and the world has had to depend on biased official accounts provided by the respective governments or confused details supplied by wounded soldiers.

The Turks Outmanoeuvred.

Apparently Nazim was completely outmanoeuvred by Ivanoff's skillful generalship. The Bulgarian turning movement along the Black Sea Coast now appears to have been a feint, which induced the Turkish commander to throw his main army to the eastward, to such effect that the Bulgarian force on that side had the greatest difficulty in holding the Turks in check. In fact, this point seems a little in doubt. The Bulgarians gave way, and thus enabled Nazim Pasha to report to Constantinople some success in this direction.

In the meantime, however, Gen. Ivanoff hurled his great strength against the Turks' weakened left wing, which he crushed in at Lule-Burgas. The fighting along the whole front, which evidently has been of the most stubborn and determined character, was carried on day and night without intermission, and both sides lost heavily.

The capture of Nazim Pasha's headquarters at Tchorlu, to which town the defeated Turks retreated, has not as yet been reported, but is hourly expected at Sofia.

In this case the Turks will be forced within the defensive lines of Tchatalja, the only remaining fortified position protecting Constantinople. It lies 25 miles to the northwest of the capital.

Adrianople still holds out, but has lost its importance now that the Turks have met their Sedan at Lule-Burgas.

The campaign of Servia, Greece, and Montenegro continues with the success which throughout has attended them. Scutari has not yet been captured, but Ipek has fallen to the Montenegrins. The Servians have taken Prisrend, and Greece is occupying islands in the Aegean, in addition to various towns in Macedonia.

The News in Sofia.

SOFIA, Oct. 31.—The Bulgarian Army has completely routed the main Turkish Army under Nazim Pasha. The Turks fled in disorder, leaving many killed and wounded on the field.

The Bulgarian Army is vigorously pursuing the Turks, who are retreating in disorder and panic on Serai and Tchorlu. Many guns and large quantities of ammunition have been captured.

Aivali, near Lule-Burgas, and Marash have been burned. All the Christian inhabitants, according to the Bulgarians, were massacred.

Gen. Savoff, the commander of the victorious Bulgarian forces, received his military training in Russia. He was the organizer of the modern Bulgarian Army, and played a brilliant part in the war of 1885. He served as Minister of War in the Cabinets of 1906 and 1907. King Ferdinand selected him just prior to the outbreak of hostilities to take command of the army.

NAZIM PASHA,

The Defeated Turkish General, Reported to Have Been Shot.

News of the defeat of the Turkish Army was received here late to-night with a feeling of great relief, but no noisy demonstration. Confidence in the success of the Bulgarian arms had been mixed with great anxiety because of the lack of news for the last two days.

The people are now looking forward to Bulgaria becoming a great power in the Balkans, as Turkey formerly was.

It is understood that the fighting has been of the fiercest character, night even affording no intermission. The Turks suffered severely. Many were captured and great numbers of dead were left on the field.

News of the capture of Nazim Pasha's headquarters at Tchorlu is eagerly awaited. Little has been heard from the Bulgarian left wing, which stretched from Bunarhissar to Midia. In this territory the Turks greatly outnumbered the Bulgarians, who have been just able to hold their own. Any slight success which the Turks obtained here, however, was of no material importance.

How Victory Was Gained.

The Bulgarian victory was due to superior strategy combined with the extreme energy of their offensive movement. It appears that the object of the rapid advance early in the week on Visa and Midia was not really to outflank the Turkish right, but to mislead the Turks. This was entirely successful. The Turks moved their reserves by sea and along the coast to strengthen the right wing which reached to Istrandja, and directed all their efforts to meeting here what they believed to be the main attack.

In the meantime the Bulgarians were really concentrating at Baba-Eski, whither troops had been hurried by convergent roads from before Adrianople and Kirk-Kilisseh. The Bulgarian's main force was thus superior in strength to the Turks at Lule-Burgas and was able to hurl them back.

It is believed that the total Turkish force numbered 250,000, as compared with 150,000 Bulgarians, the latter being obliged to leave many men around Adrianople. Probably the decisive movement on the Bulgarian right was one through Airebol, fifteen miles to the south of Baba-Eski, which turned the Turkish flank. The Turkish reserves west of Yenikin, nine divisions strong, were pushed forward toward the centre of the Turkish line to check the Bulgarian advance, but it is believed that these reserves are also in retreat.

The town of Tchorlu, where the Turks are expected to make another stand, occupies an important position on the main road and on the railway between Constantinople and Adrianople at the point where the road from the port of Rodosto joins it. Unless the Turks hold this place they will be unable to bring any more troops from Asia Minor by way of Rodosto.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Friday, Nov. 1, 1 A. M.—Serious news has been received from the front.

It is believed that the Ministers are discussing the question of concluding peace with the Balkan States.

On Wednesday evening the Government received the following report from Nazim Pasha:

"Our Eastern Army has been engaged for the last four days in serious fighting with the Bulgarian forces between Lule-Burgas and Visa. Our army corps, concentrated at Lule-Burgas and to the north, are offering vigorous resistance to the enemy advancing in this direction.

"The citadel at Adrianople is still holding out. Our forces in the neighborhood of Visa are making a successful advance."

Montenegrins Enter Ipek.

Ipek, which also is known as Petch, is in the vilayet of Kossovo, about fifteen miles from the Montenegrin frontier. In the Middle Ages it was the seat of the Servian Patriarchs, and after the Montenegrins occupied the town a thanksgiving service was held in the old Patriarchial Cathedral.

ATHENS, Oct. 31.—Admiral Countouriotis, in comand of the Greek squadron in the Aegean, announces that the Islands of Thasos and Sebros have been occupied and that the Greek flag has been raised on them.

Thasos is a dependency of Turkey off the south coast of Thrace. It has an area of 150 square miles and a population of about 12,000, mainly Greeks.

VIENNA, Friday, Nov. 1.—The powers are likely to take action to-day in the direction of peace, according to a report current here this morning.

"Besides the bad supply arrangements and the disaffection among the officers on account of political tenets, two measures of the Young Turk régime were responsible for the demoralization of the Turkish army. The first was the admission of non-Mohammedans to the army. From childhood they have been the sworn foes of the Ottoman State and these troops from the beginning of the war proved unreliable, going over to the enemy's camp in masses.

"The second measure was the dismissal of old Turkish officers, who, although not highly intelligent, yet maintained the contact between the officers' corps and the soldiers, and were always capable in war time. These men were sacrificed by the Young Turks and replaced by Young Turk officers. Recently Turkey recognized her error and ordered the recall of these officers, but it was already too late."

The Bulgarian staff chose the neighborhood of Lule-Burgas as the centre of gravity. Therefore all their available strength from around Adrianople, as well as the greater part of the forces, was concentrated there. This shifting of the centre of gravity to the right wing was caused by a displacement which had occurred in the Turkish Army.

The Turkish front, originally directed north, was turned to cover the line of retreat over Istrandja and Tchatalia. By this change of front the Bulgarian plans to cut off the Turkish army were checked, but, as the Turks made the attack before their army was properly grouped, the Bulgarians had an opportunity to defeat the Turkish left wing completely on the plains of Lule-Burgas.

In consequence of this the Turkish eastern wing is retreating to Sarai and Istrandja. Nine divisions of Turkish reserves have been ordered to the centre to impede the Bulgarians' advance. The battle front, which was between Lule-Burgas and Visa, is now between Tchorlu and Istrandja.

STAMPS SWELL WAR FUND.

Greek Red Cross Gets "Widow's Mite," Totaling 31 Cents.

About 2,000 Greek reservists and volunteers are in New York waiting to sail for home ports to join the Greek Army to fight the Turks. They will leave on Saturday, 1,000 by the French liner Niaghie, 500 by the Fesher liner Roma, and 300 by the Italian liner Duca d'Aosta. Another force of 1,000 is expected to arrive in New York from the Western States next week.

The Panhelleric Union of America has raised patriotic contributions amounting to over $200,000, and the officers expect several thousand dollars more this week.

The officers of the Greek Red Cross Society reported contributions of $7,000. Their books have been open only a little over one week. The contributions have come from Greeks and American sympathizers, and have ranged from $1,000 to 31 cents. The small contribution came from a woman who wrote that she was old and not rich, but was sending all she could. There were three two-cent postage stamps in her envelope in addition to 25 cents.

SUPPLIED WITH WIRELESS.

Greek, Turkish, and Bulgarian Armies Are Well Equipped.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The Greek, Turkish, and Bulgarian Armies fighting in the Balkans are well supplied with wireless apparatus. Fourteen complete equipments were acquired in Germany shortly before the outbreak of hostilities by Greece, five by Turkey, and two by Bulgaria.

AIRMAN KILLED BY TURKS.

Popoff the First Aviator to Lose His Life by an Enemy's Fire.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The first air victim of the war was the Russian aviator Popoff, until recently an instructor in aviation in the Russian Army. He and several others left Russia a few days ago to offer their services to the Bulgarian Army. While flying with his machine over Adrianople he was brought down by Turkish shrapnel shells.

Reports received here say he was killed.

Popoff is the first aviator to be killed by the enemy in a war. Another airman who came near to losing his life in war was Capt. Monte, an Italian military airman. Capt. Monte last Feb. 1, while the Italian-Turkish war was in progress, made a flight, and while in the air throwing bombs into an Arab encampment, near Topruk, Cyrenaica, the Arabs responded with rifle fire. The aeroplane was struck four times by the Arabs' bullets, one of which hit Capt. Monte, wounding him severely. Capt. Monte was, however, able to return to his camp with some valuable information.

Two other airmen have been killed during war, but these lost their lives in accidental falls. On Aug. 28 Lieut. Mazini of the Italian Army was killed by a fall on the Tripoli coast, and last Monday a Bulgarian airman was killed by a fall. He was making a flight over Adrianople and trying to make maps of the Turkish defense works. His motor stopped when he was over the Turkish camp at Fort Yildiz and the machine fell about 1,500 feet.

Every Man Determines His Own Salary

¶ The man who accepts thirty dollars a week and the man who demands thirty thousand a year are separate and distinct species.

¶ The high-priced man determines his own salary directly, by appraising his own worth and demanding its full equivalent from those who employ him.

¶ Thus every man determines his own salary in one way or another—for the world takes every man at his own estimate, until it finds him out.

¶ It is the same with clothes.

¶ Clothes are your own individual estimate of your worth, not your money worth, not your intrinsic worth, not your commercial worth, but your face value, so to speak—your denomination in the economic currency.

¶ If you are without ability, no amount of care in your clothes can hide that; if you have ability, you can survive an ill-fitting garment as easily as you can survive a toothache.

¶ But what never can be gainsaid is this: That a well-dressed man, be he able or inefficient, is calculated to attract opportunities which a slovenly appearance will often repel.

¶ It is with these considerations in mind that we address you on the subject of the merits of Saks clothes, for no man who is keenly alive to the importance of dress can afford to disregard the distinctive character of Saks productions.

RAW LEVIES CAUSED KIRK-KILISSEH ROUT

OFFICERS' EFFORTS USELESS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 1.—A striking picture of the battle of Kirk-Kilisseh by an eye-witness has been obtained by The London Times correspondent in Constantinople. After describing the dispositions of the Turkish troops, the third army corps under Nahmud Mukhtar Pasha being encamped around Kirk-Kilisseh, the writer says:

"The whole army corps advanced on Tuesday morning, (Oct. 22.) The right wing pushed forward nearly as far as Erikler, driving the Bulgarians before it.

"The losses on that wing were greater than in the centre, and I was informed that two companies, engaged in the attack on the Bulgarian position near Erikler, had been nearly annihilated by rifle and machine gun fire at short range.

"In the centre and also apparently on the left the fight resolved itself into an artillery duel in which our artillery seemed to have the superiority. Both sides dug themselves in and we saw little all day of the enemy's infantry.

"About an hour before dawn the men of one Redif battalion from Afium-Karahissar, who were in the fighting line, stood to their arms. It was just possible to see groups of men moving down to them, and a few shots were fired, when the battalion commander ordered 'Cease fire!' to be sounded.

Bulgarian Fire Starts Panic.

"What followed was extremely difficult to discover. In any case, there was a pause in our movements. The fighting line peered into the dark, wondering what was in front of them, when suddenly an extremely heavy rifle fire, augmented by one or two machine guns, which the Bulgarians, under the cover of night, had brought up to within a short range of our front, burst upon the battalion.

"The hungry and under-officered men of this newly embodied unit gave way. At once the word went around that the officers who had ordered 'Cease fire' had sold them to the Bulgarians, and in a few minutes practically the whole fighting line was bolting back to its reserves around Petra.

"The reserves, finding the front tumbling in on them with cries of 'The Bulgarians are coming!' either fired wildly to their front or began to retire, increasing the confusion.

"A number of the fugitives ran into the village, and the panic communicated itself to the transport, which began to move rearward in disorder.

"I tried to stop some of the drivers from bolting, and temporarily succeeded, but a fresh influx of runaways came in on us and the drivers plied their whips and fled, throwing away ammunition and stores in order to lighten their load.

"The artillery became involved in the panic, and within an hour of the first shot the whole centre had gone to pieces. Many officers and a few groups of determined soldiers stood their ground, only to be overwhelmed by the now advancing Bulgarians.

"As it grew lighter, the Bulgarian shrapnel fell on the retreating troops and precipitated their retreat. I heard from the artillery officers that at least ten guns were abandoned, after the breech blocks had been removed, in the ravine between Petra and Kirk-Kilisseh.

Suicide Rather Than Dishonor.

"I saw Mahmud Mukhtar Pasha, who constantly exposed himself in Tuesday's action, riding with a drawn sword among the fugitives, at whom he slashed in a vain endeavor to rally them. One officer, after three attempts to rally his men, shot himself before my eyes.

"Meanwhile, as the light came, the right and left wings were able to realize the situation and see the Bulgarians advancing on them and entering the gap left by the flight of the centre. Some of Fuat Mela's troops gave way, as did the Angora Redif Battalion attached to Hilmi Bey's division. The rest of this division, however, made a fine retreat, contesting every inch of the ground, and did not fall back through Kirk-Kilisseh toward Visa till early in the afternoon.

"Mahmud Mukhtar and his staff took the same direction. Part of the Eighth Division also got away across country along the same road in good order.

"At Kirk-Kilisseh panic reigned in the forenoon. The inhabitants, who had heard that a number of Moslem village had been burned by the Bulgarians, began to flee, and matters were made worse by a collision between a troop train, coming from Baba-Eski, and a train laden with runaway soldiers and civilian fugitives. There was little loss of life, but the line was effectively blocked.

"Unable to get away by train, I betook myself to the Kavaku. The headquarters had gone, the telegraph clerks were bolting, and the wires had been cut. Baba-Eski was full of fugitives, among whom were men from Omar Pasha's or Torgut Shevket's corps, I am uncertain which.

"I gathered that there had been another panic further east, in which Prince Aziz Hassan's division had been involved, and I was informed that a cavalry regiment, caught by the Bulgarians in ambush, had ridden down its own infantry, whereupon the Prince had ordered a retreat, which resulted in a partial panic."

KAISER VISITS SYNAGOGUE.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The Kaiser paid a signal honor to the Jews of Berlin to-day by making a long visit of inspection to their newest and handsomest synagogue, in Charlottenburg.

His Majesty had heard that the "wedding hall" of the temple was a particularly fine example of Moorish interior architecture, recalling features of the Alhambra, and he was anxious to see it. His interest was heightened by the fact that the walls of the wedding apartment are lined with majolica from the Emperor's own pottery works at Cadinen.

The Emperor, who was greeted at the entrance of the synagogue by the head of the congregation, the venerable Julius Jacoby, remained in the building for over an hour. While he was making the rounds the organ played a selection of old Hebraic music.

REID DISSECTS JEFFERSON.

ABERYSTWITH, Wales, Oct. 31.—At the opening session of the University of Wales to-day Ambassador Whitelaw Reid gave an address, devoting most of his remarks to Thomas Jefferson, of whom he said family tradition had it that his ancestors came from Wales.

He referred to Jefferson as "this young man who wrote the Declaration at the age of 33," and who later had recorded on his tombstone the three things he wished to be remembered by: The Declaration, the statute for religious freedom in Virginia, and the founding of the University of Virginia. He continued:

"Mr. Jefferson was not a man of genius. He was not an orator, not a soldier, not a good executive, least of all a well-balanced statesman. But he was a philosophic thinker, or dreamer, and yet with a wonderful practical gift for reading the tendencies of the populace, and for putting them into persuasive and stately language.

"As a political opponent he was at times ungenerous and underhanded.

"He regarded Blackstone's Commentaries and Hume's History of England as pernicious.

"His hostility to the Constitution was not concealed. Afterward he became a stickler for the exact terms of the Constitution.

"Surely here are enough inconsistencies, extravagancies and exaggerations to show the need for Mr. Madison's plea that 'allowance be made for them.' In most of them he was absolutely sincere.

"He rarely lost a friend or a follower. The foibles, and even the follies that have been mentioned, were known, but did not deprive him of the enthusiastic admiration of the great party which long ruled the country. They did not even detract materially from the affectionate regard in which he came to be held by all who remembered the Revolutionary struggle."

RESTORES GUARD DIVISION.

Dix May Name Verbeck or Appleton as Major General.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 31.—The re-establishment of the division of the National Guard which was disbanded last week in order to take from Major John F. O'Ryan the position of Major General, to which he was appointed by the Governor last Spring, was ordered to-night by Gov. Dix. It was also announced that the Governor would soon make known his selection for a successor to Gen. O'Ryan. In the meantime Gen. Eddy of the Second Brigade, Brooklyn, senior brigade commander, will have charge of the National Guard forces under Adjt. Gen. William Verbeck, as Chief of Staff for Gov. Dix.

It was intimated in official circles to-night that the Governor would authorize Adjutant Gen. Verbeck to give out the real reason for retiring Gen. O'Ryan, and it was said that a meeting of Gov. Dix, Gen. Verbeck and other officers at the head of the guard forces in this State would take place to-morrow in the Adjutant General's office, when the cloud that had been hovering over Guard affairs for some weeks would be dispelled.

It was said that Col. Daniel Appleton, of the Seventh Regiment, might be appointed the new Major General. Usually such an appointment must be ratified by the Senate, but the man the Governor appoints will serve at least until the Legislature meets, and then his appointment may be ratified, or a new man may be selected.

Another report current to-night was that Gov. Dix would name Adjt. Gen. Verbeck as Major Gen. O'Ryan's successor without a salary. It was also said that those members of Gen. O'Ryan's staff who were ordered to report to Gen. Verbeck would be reassigned to the staff of the new Major General in their old positions.

MABEL BARRISON DIES.

Actress Succumbs to Tuberculosis After Several Years' Illness.

Mabel Barrison is best known to New York theatregoers for her appearance in the title role of Clyde Fitch's farce, "The Blue Mouse," at the Lyric Theatre several years ago. Previous to that engagement she had appeared in several musical plays with her husband, Joseph Howard, who was usually the author and composer of the pieces. Her last appearance here was in "Lulu's Husbands." She has had considerable vaudeville experience, principally as Mr. Howard's partner.

Miss Barrison was taken ill with tuberculosis about three years ago and went first to Arizona and then to San Antonio, Texas. Her health improved slightly and she came East, to Saranac Lake, where she remained until recently, when she went to Toronto, her former home. Her family name was Eva Farrance.

ALIENS IN TURKEY FEAR MASSACRES

England and France Send Warships to Salonika and Germany May Also Do So.

CHRISTIANS BURNED ALIVE

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

VIENNA, Oct. 31.—A telegram from Constantinople says that the Turkish Foreign Minister declares that the apprehensions of massacres of Christians in Constantinople and Salonika are absolutely unfounded. He says the excitement in Turkey is not directed against Christians.

The Turkish Government has, it is added, taken energetic measures to prevent trouble in European and Asiatic Turkey.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 1.—Grave fears are expressed in regard to the Christian populations of Constantinople, Salonika, and other Turkish ports, where the news of Turkish defeats is being circulated in spite of the censorship and official denials.

Great Britain has already ordered a warship to proceed to Salonika for the protection of British lives and property there, and the action of the other powers in the matter is under consideration.

The Servian Legation has received a dispatch from Belgrade giving accounts by returned Servian officers of atrocities committed by the Turkish troops before abandoning the country conquered by the Servians.

"Wherever the Turks had passed," says the dispatch, "the Servian Army found only land strewn with bodies of men, women, and children, mutilated in the most barbarous fashion. Bodies of men were also found bound to trees. They had been burned alive by means of fires kindled under the feet. One body bore indications of having been roasted on a gridiron."

PARIS, Oct. 31.—In view of the danger threatening foreigners in Turkey, the Second Division of the Flying Squadron of the French fleet has been ordered to sail from Toulon this evening at full speed to the Syrian coast. It consists of the armored cruisers Léon Gambetta, Victor Hugo, and Jules Ferry.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The danger of anti-foreign disturbances and perhaps massacres of foreigners in Constantinople and Salonika, following the Turkish defeats and the ingress into those towns of the demoralized Turkish soldiery, has attracted the attention of the powers. Protective measures in this connection are under discussion at the German Foreign Office, where it is said that the German Government will take steps to intervene by sending German warships in case of need.

Heavy Emigration to America.

BREMEN, Oct. 31.—Emigration to America by way of this port is so heavy this year that the North German Lloyd Line has been compelled to put on an extra steamer, which will sail on Nov. 2 for New York.

SENTENCES GIRL'S SLAYER.

McKenna Will Occupy Cell Next to Becker in Sing Sing.

Joseph J. McKenna, a deserter from the army, who was convicted of the murder of six-year-old Sigrid Eckstrom at 1,077 Ogden Avenue, was sentenced to die in the week beginning Dec. 9 by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday.

The murderer of the girl took his sentence calmly, and was apparently unconcerned about his fate. No steps for an appeal have been taken. His cell in the death house at Sing Sing will be next to that of ex-Police Lieut. Charles Becker. McKenna was convicted of strangling the girl to death after he had won her confidence by giving her money. After killing the child he hid her body between the cellar wall and the furnace of the house in Ogden Avenue.

MRS. SILVEY GETS DECREE.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Gertrude B. Silvey has just obtained a decree of divorce from her husband, Charles B. Silvey, manager of the Armstrong Cork Company. Six co-respondents were named by Mrs. Silvey.

In order that the parties who were implicated in the suit might not be drawn into the public limelight, the Master impounded their names, and the records of the case show that Silvey was judged to be guilty, with "Miss C."

The other co-respondents, known on the records as Misses A, B, and D, were neighbors of the Silveys.

Mrs. Silvey was awarded the custody of her 10-year-old son Allen, and she is now living in apartments on Chester Avenue.

The couple has occupied a beautiful home, and had a Summer place in the Whitemarsh Valley, but Silvey spent many hours away from his wife, ostensibly on business trips. According to his wife's evidence before the Master, every pretty face and figure attracted Silvey, and he would sometimes spend weeks in seeking introductions to women who had struck his fancy.

Since Mrs. Silvey left her husband he has been living in apartments on North Broad Street, immediately next to the old Widener and the Elkins mansions. His friends say he will soon marry a handsome divorcee who lives near the house in which he has taken apartments.

Codger Nutt Barred Out.

Codger Nutt, the boy actor and mascot of Drury Lane Theatre, London, who was taken to Ellis Island from the White Star liner Oceanic, on which he arrived Wednesday night, went before the special board of inquiry yesterday and was ordered deported as feeble minded. The decision by the board may be due to the fact that Codger has not been taught to read and write and because he has a Cockney accent and is lost in his strange surroundings.

BECKER PUT AWAY, LID AGAIN LIFTED

ily, if secretly, until now the District Attorney is prepared to go before Justice Goff with enough information to form the basis for the most searching and widespread investigation which could be imagined.

The District Attorney went ahead yesterday with his preparations for the gunmen's trials by appearing before Justice Goff and moving that a special panel of 200 talesmen be called for next Friday. Justice Goff granted this motion and announced at the same time that he would postpone the trial of Joseph Conroy, who murdered Joseph Fettrecht, his lawyer, in the latter's office, 34 Park Row, several months ago. The Justice explained that he would do this so that no more time than necessary might be lost by the 200 talesmen drawn for the gunmen's trials. In the list are many men prominent in the city's business life, and Justice Goff realizes that their time is valuable.

This work attended to, the District Attorney hurried to the West Side Prison, where he had conferences with the four informers—Rose, Webber, Vallon, and Schepps. Unknown to the public, and even to members of Mr. Whitman's staff, these men have been causing the District Attorney considerable uneasiness in the last few days. By the terms of the stipulations into which they entered with the District Attorney, when the latter permitted them to turn State's evidence, they were to be liberated as soon as the Becker trial was over, and since Thursday of last week the informers had been murmuring about their continued confinement.

Bernard Sandler, counsel for Sam Schepps, had a long interview with Mr. Whitman on Wednesday, and it is understood that Max D. Steuer also called on the District Attorney. Both lawyers were reported to have made demands that the informers be liberated, and Sandler was reported to have declared even that when Schepps was arraigned again on a charge of vagrancy, the technical charge on which he has been held, he should announce that he was ready to proceed with the case and would have no difficulty in showing that the silken-clad Schepps was anything but a vagrant.

All four of the men will be employed as witnesses against the gunmen, Schepps and Rose because of their visits to the Southern Boulevard house, and Webber and Vallon because of their presence at the murder rendezvous. Schepps made no protest when he was arraigned before Magistrate Corrigan in the West Side Court yesterday afternoon. His lawyer was not present, and after a few words with Assistant District Attorney Sullivan Schepps consented to a further adjournment of his case until next Thursday, but it is certain that neither he nor the other informers are pleased with the position in which they now find themselves.

The dissatisfaction of the informers arises out of their fear of what their failure to be liberated now may portend for them. They are in a somewhat panicky state over their status now that Becker has been convicted and sentenced, and each day that they are kept from liberty tends to add to their concern. The men argue that if the present agreement with them be not kept, what assurance can they feel that any future agreement will be kept?

And not of least importance, in their estimation, is the fact that their stipulations do not cover such testimony as they might have to give against the gunmen. These documents left them immune from prosecution as a result of what they might say in testifying against Becker, but the stipulation went no further. There is no doubt but what Mr. Whitman intended to guarantee complete immunity to the informers provided they testified for the State, nor any doubt in the minds of others but what Mr. Whitman will live up to the spirit as well as the letter of the stipulation, but they have not got it in black and White, and Rose, Webber, Vallon, and Schepps are frightened now almost of their own shadows.

William Shapiro, driver of the gray murder car, will be the most damaging witness against the men, however. Mr. Whitman questioned him at length yesterday, striving with all the wiles he could command to trip the chauffeur up or make him vary his story in the smallest detail from the stories he had told before. At the end of a several hours' session Mr. Whitman was satisfied that Shapiro was telling the whole truth, and that no amount of cross-examination on the witness stand would avail to shake him.

While Mr. Whitman was thus busy preparing for the trials of the gunmen, of whom "Whitey" Lewis probably will be the first tried, though a motion may be made to have the men tried all together, Mr. Whitman's assistant, Robert J. Rubin, was conducting the final session of the July Grand Jury, the jury which indicted Becker and the others, and which was discharged by Judge Mulqueen yesterday afternoon after it had returned one more indictment, this time against William Ferrick, a former member of Becker's squad, who was charged with perjury.

It was Becker himself, it might be said, who brought this trouble on his one-time assistant, for it was at Becker's instigation that John F. McIntyre cross-examined Max Margolies so thoroughly that the former friend of Becker confessed himself a perjurer and dragged Ferrick's name into the same category.

It was Margolies, called as a witness for the prosecution, who told of having been present at the Rosenthal raid and of having heard Mrs. Rosenthal and Becker converse in that now famous conversation wherein Becker said, referring to Rosenthal: "I had to do it. It was him or me." To offset the testimony of the youth, Mr. McIntyre attacked his credibility, driving him into admission after admission, until finally Margolies admitted that he had sworn falsely when he made affidavit that he had played the races in a West Thirty-seventh Street poolroom.

Margolies had got along swimmingly to this point and Mr. McIntyre roaring out his question: "Answer me, yes or no. Did you commit perjury?" smiled when Margolies, in a small voice, answered "Yes." But Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss wiped the smile from Mr. McIntyre's lips when he drew from Margolies on redirect examination the fact that Ferrick, too, had sworn to a false affidavit, and that it had been Ferrick, indeed, who had persuaded him to make the perjured statement, saying: "The Chief wants it."

All this testimony was repeated before the Grand Jury yesterday and the indictment against Ferrick followed. There were some fifteen or sixteen witnesses altogether, and they all testified as to events developed by the Becker trial. Part of the session was spent in a consideration of the letters which were sent to Becker by Jacob Luban, brother of Morris Luban, a witness for the prosecution, from the Essex County jail in Newark, N. J. It was these letters which caused Mr. McIntyre to put the Luban brothers under subpoenas, and no man in court was more than surprised than the lawyer when Morris Luban, taking the stand for the State, gave damaging testimony against Becker. Mr. McIntyre tried to get the letters read into evidence but failed. These are the letters:

Newark, Sept. 17, 1912.

Mr. Charles Becker, Tombs Prison.

Dear Sir:—I write this leter to let you know that I was in Sam Paul's Club in between Sam Paul and Nathan Paul, and a couple of more fellows, and after a while Jack Rose, Sam Schepps, and another fellow—I think he was Vallon—came in and joined in the conversation. As I and my friends who were with me are well known to the Pauls, Sam told them to go right ahead, as we were O. K.

Rose made some remarks as to Rosenthal, and he said he ought to be croaked. One of the Pauls advised that they'd better keep him quiet. JACOB LUBAN.

Newark, Sept. 24, 1912.

Mr. Charles Becker.

Dear Sir:—I received a letter from Mr. McIntyre that as soon as I get out I should come and see him. I will if I get out in time. As yet the prosecuting attorney has no case against me; that is the reason they drag it along. I received a letter this morning from Sam Paul telling me that he had troubles of his own, and that he don't know any one in Newark to bail me out, but he expects the boys out soon, and he will come over and get me out soon.

Well, I will try and get bail if I can, and as soon as I get out I will go and see the other people, for whom one is a salesman and one a manufacturer, and get them to tell the truth as to what they know as to the frame-up to you.

We are not the only people that know that. There is plenty of them that know it, but are afraid to open their mouths. You can send one of your attorneys down to see me, and as soon as I make sure that he is one of your people I will tell him what I know. I will show him some facts that will open his eyes. I will show him the reason he committed the crime, and also the reason they are trying to frame you, and also how good these people stand in the District Attorney's office and what papers they get from the District Attorney's office that I know of, and can be easily proved by certain records to be looked up.

Hoping I will be out in time, I remain, yours respectfully, JACOB LUBAN.

P. S. I call your attention not to make public any of my letters until I come out. I also want to call your attention to that every word I say I mean what I am talking about, and I am not dreaming.

No indictment except that of Ferrick followed the session, however, and when this document had been prepared the jury, which had been sitting at intervals since July, was discharged with the thanks of the court.

WIFE SEES BECKER IN PRISON.

Finds Him More Cheerful After Night's Rest in Death House.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Charles Becker, once the head of the Strong Arm Squad, and now Convict No. 62,738, awoke in the death house in Sing Sing Prison here this morning after what his guards described as a restful night. They said he had fallen asleep early and had had unbroken rest.

Becker seemed cheerful enough when he was led out to undergo the physical examination to which all prisoners are subjected. In Becker's case the examination was little more than a formality, for it is only in the cases of prisoners who must be put to work that a thorough examination is made. Dr. Charles Farr, who examined Becker, reported him in good physical condition, and the ex-Lieutenant was led back to his cell.

There he waited patiently all the morning for a visit from his wife, but it was not until afternoon that Mrs. Becker arrived at the prison. She was accompanied by her brother-in-law, Lieut. John Becker, and both were admitted to the death house, where they talked with Becker through the grille which must always separate the condemned man from his visitors while he remains in the death house.

Mrs. Becker and her brother-in-law remained with Becker for about an hour and then they hurried to the station to catch the 4 o'clock train to New York. Mrs. Becker has not taken a house here as yet, nor has she found a boarding place. She has announced her intention of living here, though, and it is expected that she will find a home within a few days.

The Man in the Tower and the Indigent Dress Suit

The indigent dress suit, out of which you are trying to squeeze an added year of wear—the threadbare relic whose best days are past—can't make up like a chorus girl.

You should not expect it.

When an evening suit of consummate correctness is available at $35, wherein lies the excuse for the antique which casts discredit on your whole wardrobe?

Now you get as satisfactory evening clothes ready-to-wear as you get made to measure—if you use the same discrimination in choosing.

Weber and Heilbroner are offering this very particular $35 value—silk lined throughout—up to good custom made standard in material and tailoring.

If your need is the occasional restaurant and theatre use, $35 is enough to invest.

If you habitually wear evening clothes, to polish the mahogany of your own dining room, this suit has the stamina.

Tuxedo coat of the same material, $23.50.

Other evening suits $53.

feels that the beneficiaries of the tariff do not equitably divide their spoils," he said. "It would allow the spoils to be given to those who divide them, and would take the spoils away from those who do not divide."

In its attitude toward the trusts, on the other hand, it would put business in the hands of a receiver appointed by the Government to administer business for the sake of chastening the owners of the business, through executive action, a power, he said, which was too great to be put into the hands of any officer of the Government.

The real need of the day, he declared, and that which he would devote himself and his party to, was the freeing of business from artificial shackles that had been clapped upon it, not the punishment of a big business because it was big, but the checking of those who would use big business to crush little business and bar the door of equal opportunity to the small and weak.

Laugh at Opponents' Panic Cry.

"What we are going to do," he declared, "is not to bring about a forced cordiality and friendliness between all men, but to see to it that nothing more than justice is done. Our standard is not pity but justice. Government is based on right, not on benevolence."

He laughed at the panic cry that his opponents had tried as a last resort to raise against a Democratic triumph.

"Nobody believes for a moment that the Democratic Party is going to upset honest business in the United States," he said. "The real trouble is that some gentlemen know that the Democratic Party is going to upset dishonest business in the United States. And they and the country will be the better for it when that is accomplished. I have seen the patient lie on the table in New Jersey. I have seen him rising from the table, astonished that he was still alive, and feeling better than he ever felt in his life before. There is not a citizen in New Jersey who would want to see the business of New Jersey again owned by big business corporations."

Gov. Wilson was deeply moved by the welcome. At the Collingwood Hotel where he went immediately after the meeting he made this statement:

"It was a wonderful demonstration. The thing completely rattled me and I forgot my speech. I didn't deliver the speech I had thought out so carefully."

The Governor arrived at the hotel just about 11 o'clock. His throat was giving him some trouble and he sent out for throat tablets. Five minutes later he was in bed. He asked that he be allowed to sleep until 8 o'clock this morning. The Governor will go to Rochester on a private car on the Empire State Express at 8:30 over the New York Central lines.

THE AUDIENCE WARMS UP.

Arrival of Sulzer Ahead of Wilson Brings First Outburst.

The Garden was the same mass of American flags last night that it was on the occasion of the great Roosevelt meeting the night before, with this addition—the emblems of the States of the Union were prominently displayed. They were not up at the Roosevelt rally. Augustus Thomas said that the addition of the State flags was due to the simple fact that Mr. Wilson would probably carry every State next Tuesday, and that therefore those in charge of last night's demonstration considered it only proper that these States be properly honored.

The crowd was slow in arriving, but by the time Cleveland H. Dodge called the meeting to order and introduced Thomas M. Mulry as the permanent Chairman, practically every seat in the arena, the boxes, and in all of the galleries was filled, and long before Gov. Wilson arrived there was not a seat unoccupied. It was a happy, enthusiastic crowd and every mention of the names of the various Democratic candidates, both National and State, was the signal for a noisy demonstration.

The first real outburst followed the entrance of William Sulzer, Oscar W. Underwood, Martin H. Glynn, and Augustus Thomas, who came in together and got a joint welcome of hand and voice, cheers and yells that lasted exactly five minutes. When the outbreak was over Mr. Dodge stepped forward and called the meeting to order. Messrs. Sulzer, Underwood, Glynn, and Thomas, being scheduled for speeches ahead of the speaker of the evening, Gov. Wilson.

"This meeting," said Mr. Dodge, "has been arranged by the National League of Business Men, for Wilson and Marshall, an organization that has worked effectively in every State in the Union, and which has demonstrated beyond all possibility of doubt that the business men of the United States are for Woodrow Wilson and Thomas M. Marshall."

Mr. Mulry was then introduced. He compared the 1912 situation with that of the year in which Grover Cleveland was first elected President of the United States. He introduced Mr. Sulzer as "Wilson" Sulzer, and the audience was delighted. He quickly added: "William Sulzer, the next Governor of New York."

Six Minutes to Cheer Sulzer.

Mr. Sulzer had a great reception, being obliged to stand and hear himself cheered for six minutes. He waved his long arm for silence, but the audience would not heed, and so he just stood and waited for the storm to abate. When it did he said in part:

"This is a Democratic year. The plain people of the country are now coming into their own. A new era has dawned. The Democratic Party is now waging the battle of equal rights to all; to reduce oppressive taxation; to lower the cost of living; to restore the Government of the people to the people.

"In my opinion, just so sure as the sun will rise to-morrow morning, the next President will be Woodrow Wilson, and no man with sense enough to distinguish the difference between a hawk and a handsaw doubts it.

"For more than ten years the increased cost of living, mounting higher and higher each succeeding year, has been the most immediate, the most pressing, and the most universally observed fact about economic conditions in all this country. During all this period, while wages have remained practically the same and the cost of the necessaries of life have grown more and more oppressive, the promise has been held out by the Republicans that when they got around to tariff revision something would be done to remedy these inequitable conditions. But what was the result? The mockery of the Payne-Aldrich law—making matters worse instead of better.

"The Democratic Party is pledged to reduce the high tariff taxes. Wealth as well as brawn must be taxed and pay its just share of the burdens of government.

"The Democrats all along the line are making good; they are proving the sincerity of their promises; they are demonstrating their ability to govern wisely and honestly; progressively and economically; and they are winning the support and the confidence of the people everywhere, regardless of past party affiliations.

"Let us briefly review what the Democrats in Congress have done, and I shall only touch on a few of the most important matters:

First—The Democrats in Congress revised the rules, sounded the deathknell of Cannonism, and made the House of Representatives a deliberative body.

Second—The Democrats in Congress, true to their promises, passed the Tariff Reform bills to reduce the cost of the necessaries of life and to make living less a struggle for physical existence. We passed the Cotton Schedule bill, the Farmers' Free List bill, the Wool Schedule bill, the Tax on Surplus Incomes bill, the Chemical Schedule bill, the Steel and Iron Schedule bill, and the Sugar Schedule bill. These tariff reform bills, so truly in the interests of the people, were either vetoed by a Republican President or failed to receive consideration from a Republican Senate, and until the people elect a Democratic Senate and a Democratic President their hopes for genuine tariff reform will be as idle as a painted ship upon a painted ocean.

Third—The Democrats in Congress passed the law for publicity of campaign expenses in Congressional and Presidential elections, so that an accurate accounting of campaign contributions must now be made before as well as after election.

Fourth—The Democrats in Congress passed and wrote upon the statute books the law amending the Federal Constitution, so that Senators in Congress shall hereafter be elected by the people—a reform that marks a great advance in representative government—and that will make the Senate as well as the House responsible to their just demands.

Fifth—The Democrats in Congress passed and wrote upon the statute books Statehood for Arizona and New Mexico, and placed two additional stars in the flag of our country.

Sixth—The Democrats in Congress passed the law giving Alaska home rule and a Territorial form of Government, in accordance with the continued demands of the patriotic citizens of that wonderland of the world.

Seventh—The Democrats in Congress passed the resolution congratulating the people of China upon the establishment of a republic, fashioned after our own, and patriotic America indulges the hope that the Administration will not longer delay official recognition of our sister republic of the Orient.

Eighth—The Democrats in Congress demonstrated the fact that they are the friends of the soldiers and sailors of the Union, and wrote upon the statute books the most liberal old soldier pension law in all the history of the Republic.

Ninth—The Democrats in Congress removed the gag rule from Government employes and vindicated the right of petition—a fundamental principle of our Government temporarily suspended by an arbitrary executive order.

Tenth—The Democrats in Congress passed the most beneficent homestead law for the citizens of our country in the history of the Republic.

Eleventh—The Democrats in Congress passed and wrote upon the statute books the law for an international maritime conference, for the greater security of life and the protection of property at sea, and to prevent a repetition of the Titanic tragedy.

Twelfth—The Democrats in Congress promised the people an economical administration of governmental affairs, and when this Congress finally adjourns they will have saved the taxpayers of the country, in appropriations, about a hundred millions of dollars, and it will be done without crippling any agency of government, without retarding any progressive development, and without abandoning in any way the National defense.

Thirteenth—The Democrats in Congress have shown beyond successful contradiction that they are the true friends of the toilers of our country, and as an evidence of their sincerity they passed through the House of Representatives the Anti-injunction bill, the Eight-hour bill, the bill for the Children's Bureau, the bill for a Department of Labor with a Secretary in the President's Cabinet, the Industrial Commission bill, and several other meritorious measures in the interest of the wage-earners and for the greater security and protection of life.

Fourteenth—The Democrats in Congress passed the resolution reasserting the rights of American citizens, native and naturalized, at home and abroad, regardless of race or religion, and compelled a reluctant Administration to abrogate the Russian treaty, because Russia refused to live up to her treaty obligations and recognize all American passports regardless of race or religion. That act of justice to all will ever be a landmark in our political history.

Fifteenth—The Democrats in Congress have promoted the business welfare of the country; they have maintained peace and honest commerce with all nations; they have legislated for the progress and the prosperity of the Republic; they have studiously cultivated closer commercial relations with Latin-America, and steadfastly refused to sanction the ruthless invasion of the territory of a friendly sister republic temporarily distracted by domestic troubles, which would have entailed a costly and disastrous war.

"This record of Democratic accomplishment of constructive legislation speaks in thunder tones for the sincerity of Democracy, and demonstrates beyond peradventure its ability to legislate, to govern, and to conduct the affairs of our country along honest, efficient, economical, and Constitutional lines."

Mr. Sulzer's running mate, Mr. Glynn, made one of the hits of the evening. He was interrupted by cheers probably more than any other speaker except Gov. Wilson.

Glynn a Hit of the Evening.

"In this campaign," said Mr. Glynn, "the Democratic Party is the real progressive party. The Democratic Party was born progressive, reared progressive, and when it ceases to be progressive it will no longer be the Democratic Party. In this campaign the real progressive candidate for President is Woodrow Wilson.

"Other candidates may talk like a progressive, and claw for bait like a crab, but Woodrow Wilson, a true progressive, thinks like a sage and acts like a man. The acts of a man and the thoughts of a sage are the needs of the White House to-day. Our candidate for President is a progressive, sane and sound. Our candidate is a champion of property rights, but at the same time he does not forget human rights.

"Come All Ye," for Sulzer.

Mr. Glynn paid a tribute to Mr. Sulzer, who, he said, stood in the New York State fight in the same light that Woodrow Wilson stood in the fight in the Nation. He briefly outlined Mr. Sulzer's long record in Congress, and pointed to the things that the Democratic candidate had accomplished there in the interests of the people.

"William Sulzer," he said, "is part Dutch, part German, part Scotch, and part Irish, my friends. And I want to ask you how any man with that combination of blood in his veins could be anything but a fighter for the people.

"Come all ye Germans who admire the persistency of the German and rally around the standard of William Sulzer. Come all ye Dutch who admire the stubbornness of a Dutchman and rally around the standard of William Sulzer. Come all ye Scotch who admire the sturdiness and the canniness of a Scot and rally around the standard of William Sulzer. Come all ye Irish—[Prolonged applause and cheers.]

"I like to hear that word bring a cheer like that, because when I hear the Irish yell like that I am never lonesome, my friends.

A Voice—"Don't forget the Jews."

"I won't forget the Jew. Come all ye Jews, because from your wrists and from your ankles William Sulzer shattered the shackles that the Czar of Russia would place there. [Applause.] William Sulzer served notice on the Czar of Russia that a Jew, a Catholic, a Presbyterian, a Methodist, carrying in his hand a passport of these United States, or the citizenship papers of this country, wore around his head the halo of the red, white, and blue.

"And come all ye Americans who admire a man who by his own grit has climbed from the lowly walks of life to the proud position of the Gubernatorial nominee of this State; come all ye Americans who admire all the qualities possessed by Abraham Lincoln, and make William Sulzer, the new Abraham Lincoln, the next Governor of New York State, my friends."

Thomas and Underwood Brief.

Augustus Thomas refused to use even the few minutes that were allotted to him. Gov. Wilson had arrived at that time, but the crowd did not know it. Mr. Underwood was still to speak.

The appearance of Mr. Underwood was the signal for an ovation. Every one in that great crowd jumped to his feet, waving flags and cheering, while the Seventh Regiment Band did its best to make "Dixie" heard above the din. The youthful looking Alabamian smiled his thanks and waved for silence. After a few minutes he got it.

"My friends," he said amiably, "it has been charged that some one is drawing a red herring across the trail of American politics. My friends, the trail started when the Republican Party failed to keep its promises four years ago, and lower the taxes in the interests of the consuming masses of the people of America. (Applause.)

"The only red herring that has crossed that trail is the effort of our opponents to becloud the issue and create false issues in the minds of the American people on the eve of an election.

"Now, sometimes you hear it said that there is no difference between the two great parties on the question of collecting taxes at the Custom House. But, my friends, when Republicans make that statement you may rest assured that they are abandoning the moorings of the Republican Party and drifting toward the high lights of a pure Democracy, and when you hear a Democrat make that statement you can equally rest assured that he is drawing his dividends from a protected manufacturer.

"There is a marked distinction between the position of the two great parties. The Democratic Party favors a competitive tariff, honest competition that will regulate prices; reasonable competition at the Custom House that will give the American people an opportunity to live. The Republican Party favors a competitive tariff that means a prohibitive tariff; that means the damming back of importations in order that the few may exact their own prices from the many.

"I wish I had the opportunity to go into details to-night to explain the difference between the two great parties on this question, but I am advised that the next President of the United States is here, and I salute him."

The Crowd Up for Wilson.

Congressman Underwood was speaking in his slow, deliberate way, and the audience was following him with quiet interest when Mr. Mulry stepped up to Mr. Underwood and whispered a few words to him.

"I have just a moment in which to conclude my speech," said the Congressman, "for I am informed that the next President of the United States is here. I salute the flag and him!"

In a moment pandemonium indescribable had broken loose. The orderly gathering that had listened as to a lecture to the Congressman from Alabama was on its feet as one man, and bellowing forth in a sixteen-thousand-throated roar its welcome to its new chief. Men and women jumped upon their chairs, waving their American flags, and cheering with all their might. Gov. Wilson stood with one arm hanging listlessly over the railing of the speakers' platform, waiting for the hubbub to die down. He little knew what a forlorn hope he was waiting on.

After the tumult had lasted four minutes, however, he began to look puzzled, with parted lips and anxious eyes, and with jaws working convulsively. When the noise still continued, he smiled tolerantly. A giant American flag was unfurled from the centre of the bellowing banner that formed the roof of the Garden, and that redoubled the cheering and made it a deafening roar, continuous and unabating. The band crashed into "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue." On the night before, Col. Roosevelt had joined in the singing of that song, but Gov. Wilson did no singing, made not a single gesture, simply waited patiently, silently and motionless for the noise to stop. At 9:20 it hadn't, but every throat in that vast audience was joining in a common chorus of "Marching Through Georgia."

Gov. Wilson raised his right hand in a gesture of appeal that begged them to stop. But they wouldn't. He looked sober, then smiled despite himself. A young woman dressed in white from top to toe, who gave her name only as "Little Miss Brown," made her way from the rear of the platform and placed a small American flag in his hand, waving another flag she held. Gallantly, yet mechanically, the Governor accompanied her by waving his flag. That set the crowd a-roar more than ever. So he stopped waving.

The band was booming "Cheer, Cheer, the Boys Are Marching," so 15,000 boys marched as best they could by stamping time in a thunder of applause in the aisles. Women stood on their chairs, wildly waving their flags and yelling to swell the din.

For a moment there seemed to be hope of the Governor getting to his speech, when the band struck up "My Country," and the crowd joined in. But as soon as the song was over the roar of cheering and shouting recommenced. Gov. Wilson stretched out both arms in vain appeal. They loved him, but could not oblige him just yet. Then he threw up his hands, much as a preacher in benediction. They wouldn't heed, but roared louder than ever. The Governor looked genuinely troubled, and glanced anxiously at his watch.

"We won't go home till morning," aptly thundered the band, and the crowd raucously seconded the motion. Men were holding their hats aloft on canes and flags and women were waving flags and handkerchiefs and hats like mad.

The Professor looked down in despair, and then as despairingly around at his friends on the platform, his glance saying as plainly as could be:

"Will this thing never stop?"

It seemed it never would. Girls in the audience were clapping hands over their mouths to punctuate more shrilly their rebel yells and Indian warwhoops. Men were shouting, whistling, and roaring.

The Governor glanced appealingly to the band and made a gesture for it to stop this tumult. The band took the cue and switched into the slow, sad strains of "'Way Down Upon the Suanee River." The crowd obligingly joined in that sentimental song. But as soon as it was ended it yelled louder and more lustily than before.

Then Gov. Wilson tried what sheer immobility would do, and stood there still and sombre as a statue. The crowd laughed up to him and roared as loud as ever. One gray-haired Scotchman, James Edwards, carried his two boys, James and Paul, aged 7 and 11 years, respectively, and clad each in Scotch Highlander garb, up to the platform. The boys stood on the railing clinging to the Governor. Both shook his hands, and the little legs of both shook unsteadily. The crowd bellowed.

It was now 9:45 o'clock. From this time till 9:50, the crowd contented itself with dinning, "We want Wilson" into the Governor's ears.

Mr. Mulry finally stepped up to him and whispered to him that the audience was evidently bound to roar itself out. The Governor smiled wearily. Then he waited. And he waited more than an hour from the time he first thought the cheering had lasted long enough.

At 10:15 o'clock, when from several parts of the Garden persons in the audience itself had begun to agitate for a chance to hear the Governor's speech, and when gradually more and more in the audience helped him hush the crowd with silencing hisses, order was finally restored.

Then, radiant with happiness and tired of adoration, Gov. Wilson began:

GOV. WILSON'S SPEECH.

Here is Gov. Wilson's speech in full:

"Fellow citizens, no man could fail to be deeply moved by a demonstration such as we have witnessed to-night. And yet I am the more thrilled by it because I realize that it is the demonstration for a cause and not for a man. All over this country, from one ocean to the other, men are becoming aware that in less than a week the common people of America will come into their own again.

"There is no cause half so sacred as the cause of a people. There is no idea so uplifting as the idea of the service of humanity. There is nothing that touches the springs of conscience like the cause of the oppressed, the cause of those who suffer, and give not only our sympathy but our justice, our righteous action, our action for them as well as for ourselves. And so when I look about upon this great company the thought that moves me is that Government is an enterprise of mankind, not an enterprise of party. The parties are but the poor servants of the cause of mankind.

"As Election Day approaches, a greater, greater and greater feeling of solemnity comes over me, because I know that the American people are now about to make one of the most vital choices of their lives. I know that there are some features of this campaign which have been disappointing to serious-minded men all over the Union. We started out to discuss, like frank and honest men, the deepest concerns of a great nation. For a while, for a few weeks, swords were crossed in gallant controversy with regard to the great movements of the Government and of National development, and then there seemed to be a recision, a falling back, a dying away of the order of frank discussion.

"Men began to speak, to speak uncharitably of one another and of one another's motives. The great party which has for so long governed the Nation seemed to draw back from its own purposes, for what has struck a great many men in America is that while the regular Republican Party started out upon this campaign apparently with a clear vision that there were great reforms to accomplish and with a definite programme by which they purposed to accomplish them, the same thing happened as the end of the campaign approached that has happened again and again. Yet in this very party this year they drew back from their own purposes. They said:

"'We have builded a structure which we do not know how to change, and which we dare not touch. We fear the men in whose interest we have builded, the men who control credit from one end of the country to the other.'

Republicans Feared Their Machine.

"If there is any class they are the class that will be willing to destroy the prosperity of the Nation. They feared the very power they had built up, they feared the very thing their own hands had created, and again in the history of America this party, once brave to strike out active for itself, drew back from its own purposes and hesitated to act at all, so that from one end of the country to the other advertisements are spread upon the billboards and upon the dead walls whose counsel is this.

"'If you do anything you do it at your own peril. We advise you to do nothing. We advise you to have no commerce with the men who have definite programmes of reform and the courage and character to carry them out.'

"And then, on the other hand, there is the other branch of the Republican Party. I don't know how to characterize it."

A voice: "Ninety-nine per cent. Bull and 1 per cent. Moose."

"I don't know how to characterize it, because where it can capture the regular ticket it is regular, and where it can't it is irregular. It is particularly irregular. [A voice: "Speak on the Baltimore platform."] It is particularly irregular because—no, don't put anybody out. It is inconvenient to have more than one man speaking at a time, but this is a free country. I speak of this third party without disrespect as the 'Irregular Republican Party,' because I know from reports coming from all parts of the Union that that party has not been drawn from the ranks of the Democrats, and therefore it must be made up of those Republicans who are dissatisfied with the regular organization and its avowed purposes and programme.

"They are irregular in this. They are looking about as adventurers, discoverers of new ways of performing old duties. The duty to humanity is a duty which every party owes, and has owed from the foundation of the American Government until now, but the processes of duty have never been obscured; the processes of oppression have never been hidden; the processes of special privilege have all along been disclosed. The channels of legislation were open; the obligations of the executive action were obvious to the eye. And these gentlemen, without proposing new duties, go about to propose new methods of performing old duties. And how do they propose to perform them? I believe that it is of the utmost importance that the American people should examine this purpose in the most critical fashion. The programme is doubtful because it changes its aspect every time we have a new interpretation or explanation of it.

The Path of the Progressives.

"But the method is not doubtful. The method is that we shall turn away from the old processes of law to new methods of executive supervision and regulation. For when you approach with the leaders of this party the great tariff question, what is it that they say they mean to do? Look around and see if prices are too high? No, that is not the trouble. Look around and see if trusts are combining to control the markets? No, that is not the trouble.

"The trouble is that the beneficiaries

Fall Overcoats

We and the Weather Man failed to agree. If we could have arranged a Partnership with him we might have known that October 1912 would be a Summer Month.

It's been too warm to sell coats. No matter how good. Nobody interested. We find ourselves just a wee bit Overstocked.

So we're willing to profit LESS than is fair to us in order to get the "Business" in our stores which cold days always bring.

Actual SAVINGS of $3.75 to $6.75 will be the extra inducement to promote this wished-for activity.

The coats are indeed attractive. All in the very fashionable knee lengths. Pleasing, neat mixtures and solid colors as well. Mostly the lighter, brighter shades which are apropos of the season, with a strong guard of darker colors bringing up the rear. Trim coats every one—inside as well as out—for the sleeves are lined with satin.

Come and see what a lot your money can do for you to-day.

of the tariff, according to these gentlemen, do not equitably divide their spoils. And the proposal of the men of this party is this, let those enjoy special benefits who divide, and take them away from those who do not divide. Government does not propose to intervene to relieve the community of its burdens, but they propose to intervene in order to change the methods and processes of doing business on the part of those who enjoy special privilege, and when you turn to the other side in that you propose that the great trusts shall have the law so changed that they are to admit competition, that they are to cease from the processes by which they have imposed upon us the burden, and if they do not, what are we to do? Why, there are some plain, old-fashioned methods of enforcing the law with which every lawyer, every layman, every tyro is acquainted. Those processes are that when a man breaks the law he must personally take the penalty.

"If he will but exercise a little scrutiny of the methods of the modern trust he will find that the trusts do not impersonally break the law, but break the law through the instrumentality of well-known individual officers. And just as soon as these officers find themselves subject to the law the law will be obeyed, and not before.

"But by the processes proposed by the leaders of the new party, just so soon as a trust ceases to observe the law and the spirit of the law, the Government is to take charge of it and administer its affairs, because we are now told that it is to be put into the hands of a receiver. Every lawyer knows what a receiver has to do. He has to take the business and the assets of an insolvent concern and try to get the most possible out of the business for the sake of the creditors in order that the business may be put upon its feet again.

Chastening the Corporations.

"But now we are to have a new kind of receiver. A receiver whose object it is to discipline the corporation, to chasten the owners. For we are told that after the corporation has been brought to its senses by being administered by a receiver appointed by the Government, it is then to be returned to its owners in their chastened and rectified conscience. The Government is to administer business for the sake of chastening the owners of the business.

"My friends, it is a very serious matter to propose to reverse all the processes of law, and it is a very futile matter to propose to change all the centre of energy and origination in the Government of the United States from the combined organized Government and the discretionary action of the Executive.

"I do not believe that it is safe to put the disciplining of business in the hands of any officer of government whatever. When business is once free it will not need the hand of discipline. It is not now free and the great enterprise of politics in our day is to set the average business man free again.

"What the Democratic Party proposes to do is to go into power and do the things that the Republican Party has been talking about doing for sixteen years.

"There is a very simple way of doing it—to direct the provisions of your law against every specific process of monopoly which has, by crushing competition, built up the control of small numbers of men, and then direct the punishment against every individual who disobeys the law, without interference. If this is done with clearness and steadiness of purpose, and with absolute fairness and courage, there will be no more monopolies in the United States.

"No one desires to discipline business because it is big. All that we need to do is to check those who use big business to hurt little business, who use power to prevent anybody coming into competition with their power, by a power and an intelligence of its own. For when we talk of restoring the Government to the people we are talking of nothing more than this, of having the action of the Government based on the interests of the average man and the rank and file of the people. It does not mean that the people are to go down to Washington and sit in superintendence on the Government, but it means that the people won't have to go to Washington in order to have the Government know what they are thinking about, because all the channels of counsel will be opened, all the channels of sympathy, and when we set the Government free, what do we mean to do? We mean to try to change men's hearts and so direct and modify men's business that they will be kind to one another.

Democrats Aiming at Justice.

"That is an impossible enterprise. What we are going to try to do is to see to it that nothing more than justice is done. Our standard is not pity, but justice, for, my fellow-citizens, you are not benefited by the pity of your employer or the pity of your party leader, you are benefited and elevated by having your rights respected.

"The Government is based upon right, not benevolence. And so when I look abroad and see the great things that are to be done, when I know the things that must be done in order to protect women, in order to protect children, and in order to protect the great masses of men who carry the sometimes intolerable burdens of our daily industry, I say to myself, we are proposing nothing for these people except what is their due as human beings.

"We are not proposing to go about with condescension; we are not proposing to go about with the helping hand of those who are stronger to lift up the weaker, but we are going about with the strong hand of government to see that nobody imposes on the weak.

"And this not because we are trying to do something more than govern, but because government is meant for the conservation of the National life, and if you depress the levels of vitality you depress the will and power and hope and achievement of the Nation.

"The Nation does not consist of those who direct industry; the Nation consists of those who carry on industry by their daily labor, and when I look about upon a great company like this I know that they come together in this great gathering only in the evening, because from the rising of the sun to the going down of it they must be intent upon those tasks without which they cannot eat and be fed, or take care of those whom they love and are dependent upon them; and the only problems of their day are between sunrise and sunset. They do not need to come to a hall like this to hear merely flowers of rhetoric; they come to see if it is possible to find an honest man who understands what ought to be done.

"There are some things that ought not to be done. That man ought to be ashamed of himself who sets passion or one class of society against another class. The task of every honest leader of the people is the task of convincing his fellow-citizens that the man who regards himself as in a class apart is an enemy to the progress of mankind; that where there are classes in point of privilege there is no righteousness, there is no justice, there is no fair play, and that to lift the masses, to safeguard those who are looked upon to set forward the hopes of those who are merely beginning to go on in the great enterprise of life is to help those at the top just as much as those at the bottom.

The Task's Seriousness.

No man's heart is right unless he feels it deep upon the same level with all other hearts in God's world. Now, it is a very serious enterprise, my friends, to pretend that you are going to set up justice and notify wrong in a great nation of 90,000,000 people. Do you know what we have to do? This Government was set up for a little handful of people on this Atlantic Coast, mustering only 3,000,000 strong. Opportunity lay at every man's door. No man who had the least gift could fail of the full opportunity of development. And now we have to make these institutions of ours sacred to the cause of liberty, work for the benefit of 90,000,000 of struggling men as well as they worked for 3,000,000 of men just beginning life in a virgin continent. And, how are we going to do that unless we realize that every one of the 90,000,000 must count in the solution that we are going to propose; and how is every man going to count if he does not go to the polls on the voting day with this at his conscience, that he is not voting for himself, that he is not voting for his own business, that he is not voting for his own prospects, but has in his eye that first vision that burst upon the world when America was born. That vision that the free men of America will send to the polling booths to vote the rest of the world free with themselves.

"And all they have to do in order to do that is to realize that the common enterprises of life are the enterprises of politics; that a man is not voting an abstract political creed, but is voting a programme of justice and of right when he votes at the polls.

"Now, if you want that programme, what are you going to do next Tuesday?"

A voice: "Vote for Wilson."

"I appreciate the compliment, but I want to say this, that unless you people put yourselves into Wilson he won't be worth anything."

A United Government Needed.

"The one thing that will set reform forward in this country, my friends, is a united Government, and a united Government does not consist of a President. A united Government consists of a House of Representatives, of a President, and of something in my time the people have not yet captured—a Senate.

"And it consists of something more. If you have a Democratic Government at Washington and do not have a Democratic Government in New York, you haven't got any conducting medium by which to signal to Washington.

"You have got to have a vital organization of purpose, spreading throughout the United States, in order that great bodies of men may unite together for the great project of emancipation, and the only possible chance of having a great united organization after the 4th of March next is to vote the Democratic ticket.

"If you vote for the regular Republican you will only postpone the obsequies. If you vote for the other branch of the Republican Party, you are only making a prediction that after a while a power may be built up which will control the three branches of the Government. Your only chance for immediate action is to vote for a single, united, cohesive, clear-sighted power that is within your reach, that great combined, rejuvenated, absolutely confident body of men who are now going to take charge of your Government at Washington. You know what they propose to do and you know what they don't propose to do.

"I get telegrams about every second hour now asking me to deny that I am a free trader showing that there are some persons in the United States who believe that the Democrats don't understand the business structure of the country in which they live. How many Democrats were there at the last election? Not enough to elect a Government, but almost half the voters in the United States were Democrats even then, more than half of them are now.

Not to Destroy Business.

"And unless these gentlemen are all going out of business they are not going to vote to destroy business or touch any sound or stable thing in the United States. But I am wasting my breath. Nobody believes for one moment that the Democratic Party is going to upset honest business in the United States. The real trouble is that some gentlemen know that it is going to upset dishonest business in the United States. And they themselves will be glad of it after the operation is over. I have seen the patient lie on the table in New Jersey. I have seen him rise from the table, astonished that he was still alive, and rejoicing that he felt better than ever he did in his life.

"The period of convalescence was extraordinarily short, and there is not a man in large business in New Jersey who would wish to see the government of New Jersey again owned by the large corporations of the State.

"The corporation that has to pay campaign contributions in order to avoid hostile legislation is also obliged to pay blood money in order to be permitted to live. And the freedom that they get by mere reform is a freedom which promotes their own prosperity and happiness. But I have not come here to reassure you. I felt like saying, if I could have been heard while you were cheering, that it would be a very good idea to make it unanimous and go home and go to bed, and the thing that I envied most was your voices.

"Evidently you have not been campaigning or you could not possibly have shouted as long as that. But what is shouting? That shout will soon be over. These scenes will soon cease. After next Tuesday we shall know not what men are going to proclaim, not what men are going to profess, but what men are going to do. God be pitiful to the man who promises the American people what he is not ready to perform. The case is made up; the case is before the jury. I myself do not doubt the verdict, but I want to say to you that if the verdict shall be that the people of the United States have voted upon their individual convictions as free men, I, for my part, am ready to accept the verdict, whether it is for me or against me, for unless you believe in the things that I believe in and purpose the thing that I purpose it will be of no avail if you elevate me to the isolated and lonely office. I come here, therefore, not to expound to you, not to argue with you, but just to confer with you in regard to the matters we have been thinking for the last three months.

"Ladies and gentlemen, what are the liberties of a people? I have often had an image of liberty in my mind, an illustration of it. You know that when a great engine runs free, as we say, its freedom consists in its perfect adjustment. All the parts are so assembled and united and accommodated that there is no friction, but a united power in all the parts. So I speak of political liberty—when we understand one another, when we coöperate with one another, when we are united with one another, then we are free.

"And when the American people have thus joined together in a great enterprise of their common life they will wonder how it ever happened that they permitted that great special interest to grow up and overshadow and smother the growths of the garden, then they shall wonder it was ever necessary to summon them to the conclusions of the ballot. I propose that men now forget their individual likes and dislikes, their individual sympathies and antipathies, and join together in a solemn act of a sovereign people and determine what the Government of the United States shall be.

The Boxholders.

Among those for whom boxes were reserved were Henry Villard, Justice Francis K. Pendleton, James Speyer, J. Sargent Cram, Frank S. Hastings, J. R. Burton, Robert S. Hudspeth, Homer S. ORDERLY CROWDS LINE UP.

Moved Like Machinery Into the Garden, Filling It Without Confusion.

On the outside of Madison Square Garden during the progress of the big Democratic rally within there was an absence of the curious throngs who awaited the coming of the wounded Big Bull Moose candidate the night before and then melted away. The men who attended last night's meeting formed long lines and awaited their turn to get into the Garden. It was a quiet, orderly, and, one would say, thoughtful crowd. The seats were free, which facilitated the rapid entry of the lines, and there was no confusion.

Early in the evening John T. Howe, Battalion Chief, in charge of the Bureau of Public Assembly of the Fire Department, stopped smoking in the lobbies and interior of the Garden and prohibited the distribution of political circulars and hand bills, which had caused so much disturbance at the previous meeting. Suffragists who attempted to repeat their electioneering in the lobbies were escorted to the sidewalks. They were permitted to parade the sidewalks and advance their propaganda all around the Garden, but they were barred at the entrances. Chief Howe said his action had no political significance.

A line of men four abreast and extending from the gallery entrance on the Twenty-sixth Street side of the Garden to Fourth Avenue, and up to Twenty-seventh Street, formed as early as 6 P. M., and within an hour 2,500 persons had been admitted to the gallery. The second balcony, too, soon had 3,300 spectators packed away, and a few minutes after 8 P. M. the first balcony was filled. Through the double doors of the Madison Avenue entrance two continuous lines of persons filed into the main floor of the Garden, the lines forming south and north on both sides of the building, and shortly after the meeting commenced the late arrivals had to stand. A social atmosphere was given to the meeting by the attendance of the wives and relatives of Democratic leaders and candidates, most of whom were in evening dress and arrived in automobiles and carriages. More than a hundred automobiles waited in the neighborhood of the Garden.

Some tickets got in the hands of speculators, who asked $5 for box seats, and offered other tickets ranging from $2 to 50 cents for main floor seats, but the managers of the meeting had prepared for this by arranging to seat those who first appeared, and some of those who bought tickets had to take what seats they could find. The speculators did very little business.

RESINOL SOAP FOR THE SKIN AND COMPLEXION

Clears bad complexions

The regular use of Resinol Soap, with an occasional light application of Resinol Ointment, stimulates the skin, permits natural, healthy action, and rids the complexion of pimples, blackheads, redness and roughness, quickly, easily and at little cost.

Try Resinol at our expense

Your druggist sells Resinol Soap (25c.) and Ointment (50c.), but for liberal sample of each, write to Dept. 47, Resinol Chem. Co., Baltimore, Md. Read this convincing proof:

New York, May 24, 1912: "My face was covered with pimples and full of blackheads. Five weeks ago I was ashamed to go out, as my face was so full of pimples. I tried so much to get rid of them in vain, till I sent for a sample of Resinol. The third night I put it on I could see it was doing me good. I bought a jar of Resinol Ointment, also Resinol Soap. I am only using them now about one month. Well, I have not a pimple on my face now." (Signed) Miss M. Maynard, 312 W. 35th St.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS SHOW HEAVY GAINS

TAFT'S CLASS SENT $8,175

Contributions to both the Democratic and Republican National Committees, listed in supplementary reports filed yesterday with the Clerk of the House of Representatives, show that since the first reports of contributions were made public a week ago, both parties have received large additions to their funds.

The Democratic contributions now amount to $815,052 and the Republican to $744,688. The supplementary report of the Bull Moose Party showed contributions of $398,090. In addition to the money given to the Democrats, Henry Morganthau, Chairman of the Finance Committee, loaned the party $40,000.

In the last six days, the Democratic National Committee received contributions of $136,688. In this period the expenditures amounted to $265,445. Most of the expenditures were for State organizations. The largest sum, $50,000, was given to Treasurer Arthur A. McLean of the Democratic State Committee of New York. To James Coffey, Chairman at Yankton, S. D., $10,000 was sent. The same amount was sent to D. C. Collins of New Jersey.

John F. Shafroth and C. S. Thomas of Denver and Paul Hommy of Milwaukee, Wis., got $5,000 each, and Obadiah Gardner, H. Merton, D. H. McArthur, R. H. Elder and C. H. Gray of Portland, Me., received $2,000 for State organization purposes. George T. Bradley received $4,000, C. H. Tavenner, $2,000, and Rudolph Spreckels, $5,000. Here is a list of the contributors to the Democratic fund who have given $500 or more since the first list was published:

$10,000—C. S. Guggenheimer, New York City.

The contributions under $100 amounted to $287,169, while those over that amount came to $527,884. The number of those who contributed amounts under $100 was 63,814, and those over that amount 1,233, making the total number of contributors 64,647.

Contributions amounting to $153,655 were received by the Republican National Committee last week. The report shows that these contributions came in between Oct. 20 and Oct. 25. Under the title of the "Taft Club of Yale, '78," the President's college class ranks in to-day's report as the largest individual contributor to the Republican fund. The class sent $8,175. Andrew Carnegie added $5,000 to his previous contribution of $35,000. The Union League Club of New York gave $7,500, and R. C. Kerens of St. Louis, Ambassador to Austria, $5,000. Other contributions from New York were Edward T. Pierce, Brooklyn, $2,500. Charles Cheney, Frank Cheney, and H. G. Cheney of Manchester, Conn., each gave $1,000, and Robert Goelet of New York gave $1,000.

A detailed statement of receipts and expenditures from the Republican headquarters in Chicago showed that Julius Rosenwald of that city contributed $10,000. There were two contributions marked cash, one for $5,000 and the other for $4,000. Charles P. Taft, who contributed largely to his brother's campaign, is not down on the supplemental list. His brother, Henry W. Taft, gave $1,000, and Senator Murray Crane of Massachusetts sent in two contributions of $2,500 each. Zenas Crane and F. F. Crane of Dalton, Mass., each contributed $2,500. Adolph Lewisohn and Lloyd S. Bryce of New York each contributed $5,000. S. M. Milliken of New York added $1,500 to his previous contribution. Among those on the New York list who contributed $1,000 were John A. Campbell, Heinrich Schniewind, Jr., and Francis L. Hine of New York, and Frank S. Streeter of Concord, N. H. The Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Beekman Winthrop, contributed $500, J. S. Cannon $200, and Nicholas Murray Butler $100.

Among the Chicago contributors were Mrs. George M. Pullman, $2,500; Frank O. Lowden, $1,500; George E. Adams, $2,500; Charles G. Dawes, $4,000; F. C. Letts, $1,000; T. L. Shevlin, Minneapolis, $1,850; J. W. Blodgett, Grand Rapids, Mich., $1,000; Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, $2,000; P. A. Stanton, Los Angeles, $2,450.

The largest single expenditure was $10,000. That sum was paid to the American Association of Foreign Newspapers, and $10,000 was paid to each of two advertising agencies. A Columbus (Ohio) photographer was paid $4,336 for photographs, and The National Tribune $1,981 for advertising. Among the small items were $150 to Ormsby McHarg for expenses. Mr. McHarg was with the Roosevelt forces at the Chicago Convention. The total expenditures covered by the report were $128,309.

The supplementary list of the Progressive Party, also filed yesterday, showed that between Oct. 17 and 24 inclusive contributions amounting to $93,974 were sent in. These are the contributors and amounts:

$25,000—Alexander Smith Cochran, New York; G. W. Perkins, New York.

$500—J. S. Stephens, Illinois; Bayard Dominick, New York; G. D. Pope, Michigan; Alfred L. Baker, Illinois; Alexander R. Revell, Illinois.

Meyer & Co., New York.

More than 2,000 individual subscribers made up this additional amount to the Bull Moose funds. There were 1,379 persons who subscribed $1 each and more than 200 more whose subscriptions did not amount to more than $5. Some of the other small items on Treasurer Hooker's list show that there were 92 contributors at $2, 28 at $3, 324 at $5, 189 at $10, and 42 at $25. There were many subscribers in amounts under $1.

The disbursements amounted to $78,609. Unpaid bills amounted to $52,612 and other obligations to $6,800.

PRAISE FOR JUDGE MAYER.

October Panel of Federal Grand Jury Leaves Testimonial.

The October panel of the Federal Grand Jury has drawn up a minute expressing their esteem for Judge Mayer, under whom they have been serving in the Federal District Court. It reads in part:

> Although many of us have been interfered with in the pursuit of our respective business interests by virtue of the time we have had to give to the United States, we unanimously count it as a great advantage to have been permitted to serve before Judge Mayer, whose deep insight into the human feature attending all litigation, whose absolute stand against the insertion of "atmosphere" into his cases, and whose judicial conclusions and decisions have been a revelation and an education to all who have had to come before him.

The minute is signed by Louis W. Greeman, Secretary of the Grand Jury.

The new Aeolian Concert Hall in the Aeolian Building, 42nd and 43rd Sts., bet. 5th and 6th Aves., has been designed with a view to supplying a hall large enough to meet the requirements of every form of high-class musical entertainment.

A centrally located hall of sufficient size has long been a necessity in New York. The new Aeolian Hall perfectly meets this need. In addition, the unusual and beautiful character of its decoration, wonderful acoustics and extraordinary appointments for the comfort, convenience and safety of both artists and audience, make it a notable and noteworthy addition to the musical life of New York.

MRS. WILSON TO VIEW THE WILSON PARADE

TO BE THE BIGGEST EVER

"Big Bill" Edwards Says So, and a Concert by 25 Brass Bands Will Precede Start from Lower Broadway.

As a prelude to the Wilson and Marshall parade, which starts at 12:30 P. M., on Saturday, twenty-five brass bands will give a series of concerts on twenty-five street corners in the financial district. The martial racket will begin at 10:30 and keep up until the parade is under way.

"It will be a grand overture to Woodrow Wilson's Presidential Administration," Street Commissioner Edwards, Grand Marshal of the parade, said yesterday at the Wilson Headquarters in the Hotel Imperial. "As a public entertainment it will outrank anything of the kind ever attempted in New York."

Commissioner Edwards will miss the annual football game between Princeton and Harvard on Saturday just to lead this Democratic demonstration, a thing that hasn't happened since the days when "Big Bill" himself was on Princeton's eleven. "It will be the biggest ever," said he, and added that at least 75,000 persons would march in the parade and that it would take them between six and seven hours to march past the reviewing stand. According to this estimate, the last division, which in all probability will be equipped with torch lights, will pass the Democratic Club at Fifth Avenue and Forty-ninth Street, not earlier than 8 P. M. The parade is to end at Fiftieth Street.

If the Wilson parade is to be the largest ever witnessed in the city, however, it must surpass the Business Men's Sound Money parade of Saturday, Oct. 31, 1896, when, according to the estimate of Gen. Horace Porter, who was in charge of the organization details, fully 125,000 men were in line. The estimated cost of the Sound Money parade was $220,000.

Men from every walk of life and from all political parties will take part in the Wilson parade. Each man will know his exact place in the line-up, and it is planned to start each of the nine divisions on schedule time. The first division, composed of college graduates, college undergraduates, lawyers, representatives of the Stock, Cotton and Produce Exchanges, Custom House brokers, and bankers, will move out at 12:30, and the last division, composed of members of the Sulzer Democratic Labor Club and of various labor organizations, will fall into line at 4:30. K. Mac Lea, Chairman of the Parade Organization Committee, said yesterday:

"We have the whole organization perfected, we think, so that there will not be a hitch in the proceedings. By means of some 20,000 postals and by means of committees working among the various organizations of the city, about 50,000 voters have been personally notified of the parade and have been assigned places in the line. Each of our committeemen has a list of names for which he is held accountable, and all are expected to telephone to their men as well as to inform them by postal of their place in the line. In addition, of course, we are depending largely on the press statements of our line of march as printed on Wednesday morning.

"When this vast body of men has been gathered together it will remain for competent army officials, who have had years of experience in the handling of parades, to mold the whole organization into a moving force. These military men will be responsible for the 5,000 to 10,000 men in the various divisions. The commanders will have maps to guide them in placing their men, and it is their duty to study these maps as they would the plans of a military fortification. Thus it is obvious that we will have both the political enthusiasts and the proper organization necessary to make the 1912 Wilson parade the best that New York has ever seen."

There will be three sections in the reviewing stand in front of the Public Library, the centre section being reserved for the guests of honor and for members of the Wilson Reception Committee, of which Mayor Gaynor is Chairman. Mrs. Wilson and her three daughters will sit in one of the two boxes in this section, the other being reserved for Gov. Wilson and his party. The side sections will be reserved for friends of the marchers.

Commissioner Edwards will meet Gov. Wilson and Chairman McCombs at the Plaza at 1 P. M. and take them to the Washington Square Arch in an automobile. State Chairman George Palmer will accompany Congressman Sulzer to the same place in a second automobile, and there the Mayor's Reception Committee will be awaiting the candidates in automobiles. The advance guard of the parade, consisting of a detachment of mounted men from the Police Department, will draw up at the Washington Square Arch at 1:50 P. M., and, followed by Grand Marshal Edwards, the dignitaries in automobiles will start the march to the reviewing stand. Commissioner Edwards said yesterday that the automobiles would reach the stand on the stroke of 2 P. M., and that the candidates and committeemen would take their places at that time for the six to seven hours' review. Commissioner Edwards will have as his personal staff Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Capt. Julian F. Scott, John L. de Saulles, Joseph R. Truesdale, and Robert K. MacLea. Col. Willard C. Fisk of the Seventh Regiment will also assist with his staff of aids and mounted orderlies.

The tallest man in the Street Cleaning Department, who is something over seven feet, will march in front of the First Division togged out as Uncle Sam in red and white striped trousers and white starred blue swallowtail coat. He will have a ninety-piece brass band at his back, and a little boy and girl, representing the youngest States in the Union, will march beside him.

Between the various divisions there will be fifteen or more floats especially constructed for the parade and emphasizing by transparencies and enlarged cartoons some of the follies and serious facts of the campaign. Large banners containing stars with Wilson and Sulzer photographs in the centre, and bearing the slogan "The star for star men," will be carried by standard bearers.

More than 2,000 members of the bar have enrolled in the Lawyers' Wilson and Marshall Club, which will assemble on Liberty Street, east of Broadway, at 12 o'clock noon, and when the start is made it is expected that twice that number of lawyers will be in line.

Among the most interesting of the divisions will be the eighth, made up of foreign-American societies, including separate sections for Welsh-Americans, Spanish-Americans, French, Italian, Hungarian, Polish, Scandinavian, Bohemian, Slavonic, Croatian, Greek Americans, and Irish-Americans.

Among the loyal Wilson Irish delegation will march seven cousins, of the name of McEntagart, all from Manhattan, and all ready to cast their first Presidential vote for Wilson.

United States Senators Hoke Smith and H. O. Bacon of Georgia, both of whom have been campaigning for Wilson in the East, will head the Georgia or third division of the parade. With them, also, will be Pleasant A. Stovall, editor of the Savannah Press and a school boy friend of Gov. Wilson, and David Robinson, marshal of the division. A delegation of New York men from Staunton, Va., the birthplace of the Democratic Presidential candidate, have expressed a desire to march with the Georgia delegation. A Staunton man at the headquarters declared yesterday that the small Virginia delegation would make the whole New Jersey or second division hustle to keep ahead of it in enthusiasm for the candidate.

The Stock Exchange will be represented by Theodore W. Myers and John M. Shaw among others. The theatrical clubs will be led by Augustus Thomas and George M. Cohan. The Commercial Travelers' League will have 5,000 men in line, and 2,000 members of the ex-City Employes' Association also will march.

One of the divisions of the parade to which the Wilson campaigners are pointing with significant pride is composed of the Custom House brokers. There will be 600 to 700 of these brokers in line. It was said yesterday that this organization had not taken part in a political parade since 1892. J. L. Shea will lead the division and a large number of epigrams prepared by Thomas F. Downing, who for many years has been the Chairman of the Tariff Committee of the Merchants' Association, will be borne on banners.

WILSON STATE PLURALITY.

Palmer Says Democratic Party Will Have 230,000.

Chairman George M. Palmer of the Democratic State Committee, after looking over revised figures from Democratic leaders up-State, gave out yesterday an estimate of the Democratic plurality in the State next Tuesday. The National and State tickets, he said, would have a plurality above the Bronx of more than 55,000. The vote below the Bronx would increase this plurality to more than 230,000, he said.

"The vote for Wilson and Sulzer will vary slightly in different counties of the State," said Chairman Palmer, "but their aggregate pluralities in the whole State will be about the same. No discouraging news has come to us from any part of the State. The utmost harmony prevails in the party."

Taft Wins Yale Straw Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 31.—Students of Yale University for the past two days have been taking a straw vote on the result of the coming election. The result gives Taft, 530; Wilson, 441; Roosevelt, 373; Debs, 19, and Chapin, 34.

STRAUS INVADES SULZER'S DISTRICT

Asks Why Democratic Candidate Does Not Denounce Bosses if He Is Not Boss-Ridden.

POKES FUN AT JOB HEDGES

Says if Republican Candidate Goes to Albany It Will Be to Visit Him as Governor.

Oscar Straus, the Bull Moose candidate for Governor, talked to the people in his own home district at Leslie Hall, Broadway and Eighty-third Street, and then invaded the home district of his opponent, William Sulzer, at Stuyvesant Casino, in a tour of the city last night in which he addressed eight meetings and more than 12,000 persons.

Mr. Straus got the greatest reception at the Lenox Casino, Lenox Avenue and 116th Street, where he addressed a crowd of 1,500. The cheering in the Casino kept him five minutes waving for silence before he could begin to talk. And then he was interrupted again and again as he made a telling point against Murphy or Barnes or in favor of the Bull Moose programme of social reform.

Next door to the Lenox Casino is the Austrian and Hungarian Progressive Club, where Mr. Straus stayed for a minute. As he started to leave his way was blocked by a crowd of 2,000 stretching across the street and filling the doorsteps of the club and of the houses on each side. Here Mr. Straus attempted a speech, but could only make himself understood by a few over the din of shouts and cheers.

When Mr. Straus tried to press through to his auto the jam was so great that he could make no progress till half a dozen policemen had opened a path. When the Bull Moose candidate reached his machine he could not find his son, Roger, who left Princeton a few days ago to rejoin his father for the closing days of the campaign. This delayed the Bull Moose caravan till young Straus finally made his appearance on the second machine of the party. He had become separated from his father's escort and was shoved aside by policemen when he tried to get back.

"Where's your police card?" demanded a policeman as young Mr. Straus was attempting to force his way to the candidate's car.

"I'm Roger Straus," he explained. "Oscar Straus is my father, and I want to get to his car."

"Tell that to the marines," said the stalwart patrolman, thrusting him back into the crowd.

Finding that it was impossible to get to the car from that side, young Straus ran around the block and fought his way through a scattered field to the second car in the party.

Every meeting addressed by Mr. Straus last night was crowded to overflowing. At each place the entrance was guarded by policemen to keep the halls from being packed beyond their capacity.

The Bull Moose candidate was in a fighting mood. He attacked each of his opponents with his own weapons, using hard words for Sulzer and jests for Hedges. At the meeting at Camp Roosevelt, 124th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, Mr. Straus made his only reference to Hedges.

"When the Progressive Party nominated me," he said, "it forced the other parties to put up better nominees than they otherwise would have done. The Republican Party nominated Mr. Hedges. I am personally acquainted with Mr. Hedges; he is a friend of mine. Possibly you may have heard him. He is a brilliant scintillator and he will make you laugh. I think he is laughing up his sleeve right now at the thought that he has made anybody believe that he is going to Albany. The only way he will ever go to Albany is to pay me a visit. And, as Governor of the State, I will receive him very cordially."

Mr. Straus declared that the Progressive platform, which he said it was almost a desecration to call a platform, was the most important public document since the Emancipation Proclamation.

"Gov. Wilson called it a brilliant literary essay," he continued. "He was right. But it was more than that. I am sorry I cannot say so much for the Democratic platform. It is more like a moving picture show—'now you see it, now you don't.' Both the old parties have stolen some of the Progressive labels, but they have placed them on bottles which contain nothing but sugared water.

"Democratic and Republican are words which once meant something, but are now empty names. The Republican Party of New York is the Barnes party, and the Democratic is the Murphy party. I would a thousand times rather go down to defeat in the Progressive cause than sit in the chair of Governor with Barnes or Murphy on my back. My back is not strong enough, nor my conscience hard enough for that.

"I am not a politician, and I shall never degenerate into one, so it has been said that I could not handle the bosses. But I have cut my eye teeth, and I know a freebooter and a pirate from an honest man. I have learned to do that in my long experience in public office and private life.

"Mr. Sulzer has the advantage of having been a Tammany candidate for twenty-five years. He says that he will be another Tilden. I would like to remind him that when Tilden was elected his first act was to drive out Tammany bag and baggage and to ship Tweed to foreign shores. Why hasn't Mr. Sulzer made it his business to drive out Tammany bag and baggage and to ship Murphy to foreign shores? He cannot. They have nominated him and he has to stand in with them. Neither Mr. Hedges nor Mr. Sulzer will fight the bosses. If they could, why do they not hold them up to justified scorn and reproach as I do?"

At the meeting at Leslie Hall, Mr. Straus said that it had taken eighty-two years to realize the truth in the Declaration of Independence that all men were created free and equal. The Progressive Party, he said, was now striving to establish the second proposition that all men are entitled to the rights of life, liberty, property, and the pursuit of happiness. Saying that there was unrest in all the advanced nations, Germany, England, and France, as well as in the United States, he continued:

"This Republic, governed by the people, should give less cause for complaint than the other nations. But this is not so. Some of the monarchical countries of the Old World, Great Britain and Germany, are in many respects ahead of us. They have workingmen's compensation laws, and Germany has a minimum wage law. The only economic theory is that price is governed by the law of supply and demand. That is true of dead things, meat, shoes, and bread.

"But it is not true of human life. Our demand is for a minimum wage for women and young persons, in whose case the supply is so much greater than the demand that wages are pressed down below the life line. I am surprised that a man of the intelligence and learning of Gov. Wilson should say that a minimum wage law would result in the reduction of all wages to that minimum. I defy him or any one else to show a single example where a minimum wage law has had that tendency. He can learn from any of the labor leaders that the minimum wage does not have that effect, but that it constantly forces wages up and up. The Progressive Party proposes to stop the use of women and children to pull down the level of wages."

After arguing the need of a workingman's compensation act that would act automatically to compensate an injured man without long litigation, he said:

"If you will send me to Albany I will open a new account in the ledger of employers of labor. That account will be written in letters of gold and will be entitled 'The Account of Humanity.'"

ASKS STRAUS TO WITHDRAW.

A number of Jewish organizations in the city through their representatives appealed to Oscar S. Straus, Bull Moose candidate for Governor, last night to withdraw from the present contest, on the ground that the Democratic Party in nominating Congressman Sulzer recognized the Jewish voters in the State. The letter read in part:

> Congressman Sulzer has for years been our consistent friend and zealous and unflagging advocate and champion in the Congress of the United States. He has crowned his career as the friend of the Jews by his magnificent and successful fight for the termination of our treaty with the Russian Empire, solely because of her treatment of our coreligionists.
> Shall the Jews permit him to go unrewarded? Can they consistently vote against Mr. Sulzer after receiving such inestimable benefits at his hands?
>
> Their duty to support Mr. Sulzer is unquestionable; their loyalty toward you cannot be doubted; it is for you to determine the question if you will.
>
> Will you not give a noble example of lofty unselfishness and gratitude, in harmony with the high ideals which have distinguished your public acts and deeds, and yield precedence to Mr. Sulzer by your voluntary withdrawal from the contest?
>
> You would thus permit the Jewish voters to discharge their onerous debt of gratitude to Mr. Sulzer for his unparalleled services by a solid and undivided vote for Governor.
>
> Such a postponement of your personal and well-merited reward for your own great public benefactions would redound to your credit and that of the American Jews not only throughout the United States, but Europe as well.
>
> Such a recognition on your part of the Jewish debt to Mr. Sulzer would mark you as his logical successor in the Gubernatorial chair and fully crown your public career in a manner which would make you envied as a Jew and a patriot.
>
> We address you as individuals, each holding executive positions in associations of our co-religionists, which has enabled us to feel the pulse of Jewish thought and opinion, and in taking the liberty of making the suggestion which we have done we are but fulfilling our own highest sense of duty.
>
> If you were less broad-minded and had not lived up to your own ideals so closely we should not have felt like laying our hearts bare upon this very delicate matter.
>
> We, however, well know that we could give you no greater evidence of our exalted estimate of your character than in addressing you as we have done.

The signers of the letter were Julius Broder, President of the American Federation of Russian Jews; Joseph B. Olidort, President of the Zion Association; Leo Levy, President of the Federation of Bessorabian Organization, and M. Greenbaum, President of the People's Hospital.

"This letter," said Mr. Straus, "is evidently an attempt on the part of Tammany henchmen to injure my fight in some way. It shows that they are getting desperately worried and will resort to anything. The names signed to that letter mean nothing to me except that it is a trick of Tammany to try and injure me with the people. I am not worried about it in the least, and I will not dignify it with a reply."

The "Just As Good As" Means More Profit to Some One and Less Quality For You

There are several kinds of bread sold in this city on the strength of the fact that they are made to look like

WARD'S TIP-TOP BREAD

100% Pure

Naturally they bear no resemblance to Tip-Top. Look out for the imp. All his effort goes to the looks of the bread. If he could duplicate or even approach Ward's Tip-Top Bread in Quality, he would not need to imitate it.

For the protection of your interests—and our own well-won reputation—we now have on every loaf of the real Tip-Top Bread the word WARD baked in on the side of the loaf itself.

Learn to discriminate. Things are not always what they seem.

ROOSEVELT READY TO TALK TO-NIGHT

JEROME'S SERVICES FREE

In Fight Against Fraud the Colonel Plans to Make—Burns Will Only Take Expenses.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, Oct. 31.—Senator Dixon and George W. Perkins dined to-night with Col. Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill. Following the dinner the Colonel talked with the Senator and Mr. Perkins on the situation in New York and in New Jersey. The text of Mr. Roosevelt's speech which will be delivered to-morrow night at Madison Square Garden was also reviewed. Both Senator Dixon and Mr. Perkins were enthusiastic over the showing made last night at the Madison Square Garden meeting, and the Colonel himself was emphatic in pronouncing it the "most enthusiastic and most successful meeting of the campaign."

In a statement issued to the newspaper men earlier in the day Col. Roosevelt said:

"No matter what the outcome of the election may be, we intend to follow up every fraud, and, if it is humanly possible, to put every man engaged in it behind the bars. I do not wish one vote to which I am not entitled in law and morals, and, on the other hand, I do not intend, if it is possible to prevent it, that either of my antagonists shall secure any vote to which in similar fashion he is not entitled.

"All we wish to do is to prevent the perpetration at the election of the kind of scoundrelism which was responsible for electing a practically anti-Progressive delegation at the New York City primaries last Spring, which was responsible for the downright theft of the Republican National Convention last June.

"In the case of the Republican National Convention, there was unfortunately no law which could be invoked to check and punish the dishonesty of the men responsible for the theft, but there is such a law as regards the election, and we intend to do our utmost to punish every offender against the law, whether he be a representative of the Tammany or of the Barnes-Koenig machine, and without the slightest regard to the man in whose interest the fraud is perpetrated.

"I wish to bear public testimony to the way in which Messrs. Burns and Jerome have met this request. Our offer was to retain them professionally. Mr. Jerome at once said that he could not accept any fee, and that he would meet the request in exactly the spirit in which it was made, and that he esteemed it a public duty in line with his whole career to do all in his power to secure an absolutely honest election and bring to punishment any man who was guilty of any offense against the election laws.

"Mr. Burns met the request in precisely the same spirit. He will have to employ a great number of subordinates, and the expense of these must, of course, be paid, but Mr. Burns declined to accept any remuneration for his own services, as a good citizen engaged in performing one of the primary duties of good citizenship."

Controller William A. Prendergast will preside at the Bull Moose mass meeting at Madison Square Garden to-night. Oscar S. Straus, the Progressive candidate for Governor, will talk, as will several other State candidates. Only the arena seats and the boxes will be sold, the reserved seats on the floor being distributed among County Chairmen and district leaders of New York, Kings, Queens, Richmond, Suffolk, Nassau, Westchester, and Rockland Counties. The rest of the Garden will be open to the general public. There will be a delegation of 1,000 men from Yonkers who will come to the Grand Central Station on a special train and march from there to the Garden.

BRYAN'S LAST CALL.

He Summons the Democrats and Predicts Victory.

William Jennings Bryan, through the Democratic National Committee, issued yesterday an appeal to the voters of the United States to vote the Democratic ticket. He said he found the outlook for Democratic success bright, indeed.

"In no States that I have visited," his message read, "have I found any indication that the Electoral vote will be given to either Taft or Roosevelt. Democratic success seems as absolutely certain as anything human can be. Everywhere hope is ascendent and the very air seems surcharged with the spirit of approaching victory. Of all Presidential years within the past score, this seems essentially to be Democarcy's year, and the only danger of falling short in this respect lies in overconfidence. During the remaining days of the campaign every Democrat should be on his mettle and should work with renewed energy and enthusiasm for the success of the ticket.

"Gov. Wilson is the only hope of the Nation, if we would free ourselves from the burden of taxes and the menace of monopoly. He is a big, brainy statesman, and particularly a man who has the courage of his convictions, and who, if elected, will make this country one of the best and safest Presidents it has ever had.

"People of the United States, this is no sham battle. We are not drawn up on dress parade. We are a fighting band that has been battling for sixteen years and we hope to make this the last battle of war for human rights and progress. The breastworks of the enemy are crumbling before the onslaughts of a united and triumphant democracy, and ere another week has passed I confidently expect to see the glorious banner of Democracy floating from the shattered ramparts of the disorganized Republican army.

"I firmly believe in fair play and in being charitable to a disabled opponent, but when they tell me I am striking a man when he is down because I criticise the policies of Roosevelt and his past and present attitude in the campaign, I reply that brave men, when they go into battle, do not put their wounded in front. It is as Roosevelt says—a campaign of issues, not men—and I further say that it is a matter that must be decided by good, hard common sense, not sentiment; a question that must be settled by the sane people of the country and not by a maniac.

CUBAN VOTERS TO BE ARMED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 31.—Disorders in Havana on account of the Presidential elections to-morrow appear unlikely, because the Government has taken every possible precaution to guard against their occurence. What may happen in the interior, on the other hand, is problematical. In so far as it can, the Government has safeguarded the principal centres of population, so as to reduce the possibilities of trouble to a minimum.

Advices from Cienfuegos, however, are far from encouraging, and it is acknowledged that full possibilities for trouble exist there. That the situation is regarded seriously by the Cuban Government itself is shown by a circular issued by Señor Sanguily, Acting Secretary of the Government, this afternoon, declaring that "in the short space of twelve hours the republic will be lost or will be stronger and more honored than ever." This circular, which has been telegraphed all over the island, appeals to Cubans to put aside passion and violence, and go to the polls thinking only of the nation's welfare.

Gen. Mendieta, with 3,000 soldiers, has guaranteed to President Gomez that there will be no disorder in Havana. Troops have been sent to all points in the city where danger is most imminent. However, word has been passed by political leaders of both parties that voters must go to the polls armed and prepared for any attacks from the opposite party, and political passions are at such high tension that trouble might start on the slightest provocation, despite all the precautions taken to prevent outbreaks.

WHITE SLAVE KILLS MASTER.

Mamie Provanzano of New York Shoots Italian Who Pursued Her.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Slender, pretty, with snapping black eyes that defiantly braved the police who arrested her, Mamie Provanzano, who says her home is 65 East Houston Street, New York, this afternoon handed over a pearl-handled 38-calibre revolver to Chief Bell and admitted that she had murdered Marino Marinelli. The girl told the following story:

"I am 18 years old, and two years ago that man ruined me. I was living in New York, and he made love to me. I went to live with him, and he took me to Buffalo and tried to make me do things I didn't want to do. He tried to get me to steal a child—any child—in Buffalo and hold it until the parents paid to get it back. I told him I did not want to spend my life in prison, and left him. I went back to New York, and he tried to get me to go with him.

"He left me at Twenty-third Street and Third Avenue a year ago, and I left New York and came here to work in the shoe shops. I never saw him again until just before 7 o'clock this morning, when he suddenly stopped me at the factory gate. He wanted me to go back with him and I would not go."

CHILD PAYS DEARLY FOR SCHOOL PRANK

SHE ENVIED ANOTHER'S NOTE

The little 5-A girls at the school in Fourteenth Avenue in Borough Park, Brooklyn, were all a-flutter on Tuesday afternoon, for one of their number had received a note from one of the boys of the school and she was passing it around. But in the heart of Clara Bernhardt there was a burning envy. Never in all her thirteen years had she received a note from a little boy.

She brooded over her cloistered experience, and not to be outdone in appearances, at least, she decided next day to win the reputation of one who carried on such clandestine correspondence continuously. She tore a page from her note book and dashed off a note inviting a purely imaginary swain named "Joe" to go with her that day to see the new "batleship in the navvy yard." She had written a few sentences, and was all ready to blush if any of the other girls peeked over her shoulder, when some one else peeked over her shoulder. It was not one of the little girls. It was the teacher. She caught the words "Dear Joe," and they were more than enough.

A few moments later Clara stood a shrinking bit of pinafored guilt before the Assistant Principal. Did she think it was a nice thing for a little girl to have done? And who was Joe, pray? It was a terrible thing to have to do, but Clara made an honest confession. There wasn't any Joe—worse luck. There never had been. It was all "pretend."

And then the little girl was introduced to a new experience. They didn't believe her. They refused to accept her explanation that she had contented herself with writing to an imaginary boy. So they looked severe and sent her home and told her not to come back that afternoon unless she brought her mother with her.

At luncheon, Clara wept over her bread and butter. She was tongue-tied. She simply could not tell her mother the whole disgraceful story and that is why, when time came for the afternoon session she wandered disconsolately through the streets of Borough Park, until finally, she found herself in Prospect Park. She did not dare to go home. Night came on and she had no idea where to go. So, very tired, she pillowed her head on the schoolbooks and went to sleep on one of the park benches. No one disturbed her, and yesterday at daybreak, she woke and trudged off toward home, very hungry and tantalized almost past endurance by the heavenly fragrance that floated from every stirring bakery.

Near her house she ran into two neighbors, who pounced on her and carried her off in triumph, for they were but two of many who had joined with the police in scouring Brooklyn all the night before for some trace of a lost little girl.

And Clara's mother, Mrs. Jacob Bernhardt of 1,660 Forty-fourth Street, Borough Park, vows that never again need Clara step within the doors of Public School 164.

MADERO PROPHESIES PEACE.

From a Special Correspondent of the Central News, London.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—At a reception given to the Diplomatic Corps yesterday in honor of his birthday, President Madero responded to the congratulations offered on behalf of the Corps by Bernardo Cologan y Cologan, the Spanish Minister. The President, referring to the early collapse of the Diaz revolution, said that he believed it presaged a speedy restoration of peace throughout Mexico. He declared that the clouds were breaking, and that soon they would be entirely dispelled.

He expressed regret for the losses of life and property which had befallen foreigners, but suggested that such losses were more or less unavoidable when a nation was passing through the throes of a new birth. The President said he hoped and believed that henceforth such annoying and regrettable occurrences would gradually diminish, and that foreigners would again be able to prosper in Mexico.

A number of Mexican women prominent in society yesterday made a pilgrimage to the shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe and prayed for her intercession to avert the death sentence imposed upon Felix Diaz and his fellow conspirators.

In Government circles it is said that the prospects are bright for the conclusion of a peace treaty with Emiliano Zapata, the bandit leader who has been terrorizing the State of Morelos for some months.

The officials of the National Railways of Mexico announce the resumption of service between Mexico City and Chihuahua, which was interrupted recently by the rebels.

ASK LENIENCY FOR DIAZ.

Mexicans Here Appeal to Madero Through H. Barron, His Agent.

Leading Mexicans in the United States, including those exiled by ex-President Diaz, according to the Heriberto Barron, President Madero's commercial agent to this country, once a candidate for the Presidency against Gen. Diaz, favor executive clemency to Felix Diaz, the rebel leader recently captured by the Madero forces, and whose life is at stake.

Mr. Barron, when seen yesterday in the offices of the Pan-American States Association, Sixth Avenue and Thirty-second Street, declared that American sentiment was usually for leniency to Felix Diaz. He said that he had collected editorials from the press of the whole country and that he had telegraphed extracts from them to President Madero, hoping that they might influence him towards clemency.

It is only after election that the successful contestants are known.

We think that GIMBEL $1.50 Shirts for Men are better than the money will buy anywhere else. And we base our claims on—

The best MATERIALS that can be put into a shirt to sell for $1.50—woven striped madras and fine count printed percales.

Shirts, in short, that look like winners, and live up to their looks.

But we'll leave it to you—content with your vote AFTER you've tried these Gimbel Shirts. The assortment is at its best just now—with plenty in SIZES FOR LARGE MEN, 16 to 20.

Men's Neckwear at 50c, That Sets a Stiff Pace

Take away the little sign that says 50c, and you'd be more apt to put these Neckties down as dollar quality. Not only for the richness of the silks, but in the good taste of the patterns and colorings. The diversity of handsome styles is surprising—plain effects, figures, bias stripes, in profusion. For a few dollars a man can pick out enough good neckties to last him all season, and be proud of this investment. Take a look at them today. Main Floor

SHEEHAN REFUSES TO WAIVE IMMUNITY

Secretary to Commissioner Waldo Is Thereupon Excused as a Witness by Curran Committee.

MORE LIGHT ON STANTON CASE

Witnesses Tell of Other Cases Where Men Who Displeased Waldo Got Summary Treatment.

The Curran Committee of the Aldermen which is investigating conditions in the Police Department resumed its hearings yesterday morning, and through its counsel, Emory R. Buckner, made further inquiry into the dismissal of Lieut. Stanton by Commissioner Waldo after the Lieutenant had testified before the committee.

The first person called to the witness stand was Winfield R. Sheehan, Mr. Waldo's private secretary. He was examined as to the source of the charges that Stanton had tried to extort $250 from Detective Oliver some three years ago when Oliver joined the force. It was shown at previous sessions of the committee that Oliver had sworn falsely in his application for appointment to the force and that his corroborative witness was a man of bad character.

Commissioner Waldo told the committee last week that Mr. Sheehan, who had procured his information from a bicycle policeman named Kerrigan, was the first person to bring the charge against Stanton, to his attention. Mr. Buckner asked Mr. Sheehan yesterday if he had signed a formal waiver of immunity. He replied that he had not and then he said:

"I haven't asked for immunity, and I do not want it."

"That answer is what is called in police parlance 'bunk,'" Mr. Buckner said. "Now I ask you if you will sign away your immunity."

"I don't want any immunity," the witness replied. "I don't think you have any power to grant immunity."

"The committee has nothing whatever to do with it," Mr. Buckner declared, "and it doesn't make any difference whether you want immunity or not. If you are sworn by this committee and testify, you get immunity automatically, unless you waive it. Now, are you willing to waive it?"

"No, I am not," the witness said.

"Then you think that if you are indicted by anybody, you might need the immunity you would get here?"

Sheehan Not Examined.

Mr. Sheehan was excused, and he took a seat with a broad smile. Then came Thomas M. Kerrigan, a bicycle policeman. He said he was attached to Traffic Squad C and that he was formerly a plain clothes policeman under ex-Inspector Hayes. Asked to tell how he knew about the alleged attempt of Stanton to extort money from Detective Oliver, Kerrigan said that Oliver had told him about it. Asked what Oliver said, he replied:

"It was some time in April, 1910. I was talking with him, and he told me that Stanton had tried to get $250 from him."

Kerrigan said he first came to know Oliver when he was a witness against him after Oliver's arrest for felonious assault in the taxicab strike. Asked how he came to wait so long before mentioning the matter of Stanton's alleged wrongdoing, Kerrigan explained:

"I was coming downtown one morning last month, or maybe the first part of this month, and I met Mr. Sheehan. I said to him, 'What's the matter with Stanton? Did the Commissioner do anything to him?' I used to know Mr. Sheehan when he was a police reporter."

Kerrigan couldn't explain what he meant by asking Sheehan what had happened to Stanton. He attributed this to the time that had elapsed since it occurred.

"And you kept this bottled up since 1910, until you met Mr. Sheehan a few weeks ago? Is that right?"

"Yes."

"Can you give any reason for making that communication?"

"No; I can't."

"Did you think it was your duty to repeat what you heard, if it was true?"

"Yes; if it was true."

Mr. Buckner asked Kerrigan if he had heard what happened to Patrolman Nierney, who had once arrested Commissioner Waldo for speeding. He said he knew that Nierney had been transferred. Asked if he knew what happened to Patrolman Nikly, he replied that he did not remember. The Nikly story was told in detail later. Alderman Esterbrook wanted to know if Kerrigan believed the story Oliver told him, and he replied that he did not know whether it was true or not. Kerrigan finally admitted that he was not sure it was Stanton Oliver accused of trying to extort money from him.

"You see what happened to Stanton from your tale-bearing; do you feel happy over it?" Mr. Buckner asked.

"No," the witness replied.

Mr. Buckner seemed to want to show that Commissioner Waldo was strong in his dislikes, and that he did not hesitate to destroy any one who displeased or injured him.

McKay Called as a Witness.

First Deputy Commissioner McKay, who presided at Stanton's trial, was then called to the witness chair. He said he had not investigated the character of the men who had accused Stanton, nor had he made any preliminary examination of the charges. He said it was customary for the Inspector of the district to make an investigation and not to put a policeman on trial unless there seemed to be good reason to suppose that the charges would be sustained. Alderman Smith made his usual objection at this point. He did not see any reason for going over the trial of Stanton again, he declared. Counsel for the committee explained that the committee had decided that the subject should be thoroughly investigated in order that other policemen who might be called as witnesses would feel free to testify without the fear that they would lose their shields. Alderman Dowling said it was entirely proper to get at the truth of the Stanton matter.

"It is a matter of public interest," he said, "to discover whether the punishment inflicted upon Stanton was justified by the facts or not."

Mr. McKay was asked if he knew why the usual forms were not observed in the case against Stanton. He said that he did not. Mr. McKay objected to answering some of the questions, and he was sustained by Alderman Smith, who declared that the witness could answer or not, as he pleased. Mr. Buckner replied that if the witness refused to answer the questions asked the committee could call upon Mr. Speer, the representative of the Corporation Counsel, to take hte matter before the courts. Mr. Buckner said that Commissioner Waldo was only a servant of the people and that he and his assistants ought to be compelled to furnish all the information in their possession. Alderman Dowling said the committee had a letter from the Corporation Counsel and that it ought to be read. This was an opinion bearing upon the pay of the counsel. But it was not read.

Mr. McKay was then asked what he meant by saying to Stanton at the Lieutenant's trial:

"And are you still anxious to help the inquiry?"

Mr. McKay declared that his question related to the trial proceedings before him and not to the Curran Committee.

Then came the story of Patrolman Otto Nikly. It was told by Mr. Buckner, by William E. Murphy, Nikly's counsel, who was once a policeman, and by Chief Inspector Schmittberger. Soon after Mr. Waldo became Commissioner there were complaints that policemen neglected to patrol their posts. Many of the complaints were from the lower west side, where Inspector John Daly was in command. Chief Inspector Schmittberger took a ride in his auto in the early morning hours of July 13, 1911. The result of this ride was that charges were preferred against Nikly, who was tried on July 18 and fined fifteen days' pay.

Nikly employed Lawyer Murphy to appeal from this decision, and the usual legal delays followed. Assistant Corporation Counsel Crone, who had charge of the case for the Police Commissioner, was in no hurry, Mr. Murphy testified, and legal courtesy compelled him to grant the delays asked by the Corporation Counsel. The case did not come before Justice Greenbaum in the Supreme Court until Oct. 7, nearly sixteen months from the date Nikly was fined. Then Mr. Crone produced a notice from Mr. Waldo, Mr. Murphy testified, saying that he had revoked the entire proceedings against Nikly and had remitted the fine. Two days later Nikly received notice that he had been dismissed from the force upon the charges for which he had at first been fined.

Mr. Waldo justified his action on the ground that he had decided the case against Nikly without first going over the testimony against him, Mr. Murphy told Mr. Buckner. The law says that the Commissioner shall review the evidence. This, the Commissioner held, gave him the right to act upon the case sixteen months later, as if it had never been decided at all. Mr. Murphy told the committee that Nikly was as honest and conscientious a policeman as any in the city. When Inspector Schmittberger was asked about the case he failed to remember it in detail. He knew, he said, that there had been complaints about the negligence of policemen on post.

Corporation Counsel Watson's opinion, sent to the committee yesterday, as to the right of the Controller to audit the bills of Mr. Buckner and his assistants, was very unsatisfactory to the men affected. Mr. Watson said if Mr. Buckner and his helpers were all employed as lawyers their charges, ranging from $1,000 a month to $350, were reasonable, but if they were merely examiners, the city had a right to consider the charges exorbitant. Mr. Watson was willing to take the word of Chairman Curran of the committee, he said, that Mr. Buckner and the others were acting as lawyers. Personally, Mr. Watson said he was anxious to aid the men concerned in the inquiry to get their money because he knew how difficult it was for even very young men to get along without cash. So he suggested that the matter had better be brought before the Board of Estimate under Section 246 of the City Charter that provides for the payment of irregular claims.

If Mr. Curran, Chairman of the committee, relents and permits Mr. Watson to formally designate Mr. Curran and his assistants, there will be no question about future payments so long as the original appropriation of $25,000 holds out.

PASTORS CALL ON GAYNOR.

Promise to Help the Mayor Improve the Police and Enforce the Laws.

A committee from the Clerical Conference of the New York Federation of Churches called yesterday on Mayor Gaynor and promised to assist him in improving the police force and in enforcing the laws. Here is the formal resolution they presented to the Mayor:

> The Clerical Conference of the New York Federation of Churches, with a membership of about 450 clergymen of forty-five different denominations, over 350 being in attendance at their meeting, and having in mind the present conditions in the Police Department, assures the members of the force its appreciation of the difficulties with which the police contend, and also offers hearty help to them in any earnest effort they may make toward enforcing the laws; and, moreover, we promise to the Mayor and to the Police Commissioner our constant co-operation in every honest endeavor to improve the police situation in this city.

The Mayor thanked the delegates and said that the clergymen of the city had heretofore assisted him very much in his work, with the exception of a very few, whose aim seemed to be critical and uncharitable.

He was glad, the Mayor said, to see by the resolution which they had presented to him that they had not recommended the appointment of a Police Commissioner in place of Mr. Waldo, as some newspapers had falsely reported. He declared Mr. Waldo was worthy of confidence.

The police force, the Mayor assured the clergymen, was in good condition. He had of course no need to tell them, he said, that because one lieutenant of police had become the associate of criminals and had betrayed the Commissioner, the whole force was not to be condemned. He had, the Mayor declared, come into office determined to cut off all graft in the department. He had two-thirds succeeded already, he said, and with God's help and their help, before his term of office was up, he would have succeeded entirely. Moreover he reminded the deputation that the keeping down of vice was a thing that required constant work on the part of all and especially of clergymen, and could not be done all at once.

The committee of the New York Federation of Churches consisted of Rev. Junius B. Remensnyder of St. James's Lutheran Church, the Rev. Father Daly of the Church of St. Paul the Apostle, the Right Rev. Frederick Courtney of St. James's Protestant Episcopal Church, the Rev. L. L. Henson of the Hanson Place Baptist Church, Brooklyn; the Rev. R. N. McLaughlin of the Park Congregational Church of Brooklyn, the Rev. Ferdinand B. Iglehart of the Methodist Conference, the Right Rev. M. W. Leibert of the First Moravian Church, the Rev. S. Edward Young of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Rabbi Alexander Lyons of Temple Beth Elohin, the Rev. Thomas E. Bridges of the South Reformed Church and the Rev. Walter Laidlaw, secretary of the committee.

NO THEFT IN PLAY STEALS, SAYS BRADY

IT BEGAN WITH BOUCICAULT

Woman Dramatist's $10,000 Royalty Complaint Dismissed, but $30,000 Damage Demand Goes to Jury.

William A. Brady, the theatrical producer, was a witness in the Supreme Court yesterday in the case brought by Mrs. Edith Ellis Furness, the playwright, against the Shuberts and Mrs. Rida Johnson Young, author of "The Lottery Man." The suit was begun to recover $30,000 for damage to reputation and $10,000 as a share in the royalties from the play which was rewritten by the plaintiff. Mrs. Furness was employed by the Shuberts to revise the play because it had been submitted in an unpresentable form. She demanded 33 1-3 per cent. of the royalties, but the Shuberts contended that her work had nothing to do with writing the play, and that she was simply the stage director. Mr. Brady was asked to testify in regard to the difference between playwriting and stage directing.

"Playwriting is the construction of the plot of a play," he said, "and the writing of clever dialogue. The dialogue may be funny or serious. The construction of one sentence in a play may be called playwriting, and on that one sentence the success of a play may depend. The success may even depend on a word or a gesture."

Asked if using ideas from other plays was customary and legitimate, Mr. Brady said it was.

"It is the custom of stage directors to steal from any old play they like in order to get a successful production. That is what a stage director is for. It began with the great Dion Boucicault and has been continued until the present."

Brady Follows the Custom.

"Mr. Brady," said the counsel for the plaintiff, "in your stage direction have you ever stolen parts of other plays to make your production a success?"

"To stealing?" persisted the lawyer.

"If you persist in putting it that way, yes."

"You are a partner of the Shuberts?"

"I am an ally. We are interested in many productions together."

"My spirit is fair to anyone."

"You are not a Bull Mooser, then?"

But Mr. Brady emphatically asserted that he was a Bull Mooser, to the amusement of those in court.

The question of "padding and gagging a play that was not satisfactory for production was taken up while Mr. Brady was in the chair, in order to show just how much Mrs. Furness had done in revising "The Lottery Man." He was asked if a person who expanded a play from a one-hour performance into a two and a half or three-hour performance, would be called a playwright. Mr. Brady said that this was not necessarily the case. He admitted, however, when asked that Mrs. Furness was a good playwright.

Robert MacKay took the stand after Mr. Brady. Mr. MacKay played the part of Foxy in "The Lottery Man." He testified that he had introduced lines that had caused thirty-nine laughs from the audience, and yet he was not considered a playwright. He said the play was subject to change by anyone, and that he did not know of any play that was not changed at reheasal.

Henry Miller, the producer, playwright, and actor, came to the witness stand next and upheld this statement. He said that all plays which he knew of were changed in the course of rehearsal by stage directors, and that such a change, even if suggested by some member of the company, did not make this person one of its authors and, therefore, eligible to share in the royalties.

"Most all directors meddle with plays," he said. "I even knew of a director who tried to meddle with one of Shakespeare's."

He was asked whether he had ever heard of a play that only took an hour and a half, and whether he could mention one of the sixty plays now being offered in New York which ran that length of time.

Mr. Miller evaded the question by saying that he was playing in Brooklyn now, and did not know what was going on in New York.

Henry Hoffman, stage director of "The Lottery Man," followed Mr. Miller with his testimony. He said that many changes had been made in manuscripts, but he believed that these changes did not constitute a playwriting.

Justice Hotchkiss dismissed the royalty complaint, but permitted the case in regard to damages to Mrs. Furness's reputation to go to the jury.

NATION WILL TENDER TRIBUTE TO SHERMAN

40 DAYS' MOURNING ORDERED

Body Will Lie in State To-day—Condolences Come from Every Section of Country and Abroad.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Expressions of sympathy have poured in upon the family of the late Vice President Sherman all day from every section of the country and abroad. All political meetings in Mr. Sherman's old Congressional district of Herkimer and Oneida Counties have been canceled. Political banners have been removed from the streets; emblems of mourning have been displayed at the City Hall and other public buildings, and draped flags have been hung from many private residences. The Chamber of Commerce, the City Council, the Park Board, and the Republican, Democratic, and Progressive Campaign Clubs have adopted resolutions of condolence and respect, as well as a number of fraternities and civic bodies of which Mr. Sherman was a member. Hundreds of the late Vice President's townsmen called at the Sherman home to leave their cards, and every possible mark of sympathy has been shown throughout the day.

The First Presbyterian Church, from which the funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, has the largest seating capacity of any edifice in the city.

The funeral services will be attended by President Taft and members of his Cabinet, Senators and Representatives, foreign diplomats, and Government officials. An hour before the funeral there will be a private service for the members of the family at the Sherman residence, in Genesee Street.

The decision to permit the body of Mr. Sherman to lie in state in the rotunda of the Court House from 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon till 9 in the evening was reached only after the repeated requests of large numbers of Uticans who desired the privilege of paying a last tribute to a neighbor and townsman whom they held in warm affection.

With an escort of citizens, representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, and other organizations with which Mr. Sherman was identified, the body will be taken from the Sherman home to-morrow afternoon and conveyed to the county building, where it will rest upon a catafalque. The local military companies will furnish a guard of honor while the body is lying in state. At 9 o'clock a cortège will form and the body will be returned to the Sherman home. The county building has been draped in emblems of mourning and flags. Business practically will be suspended during the funeral services.

A tender of troops from Fort Ontario at Oswego for the funeral was received to-day from Washington, but it is believed that the members of the family will decline such an escort, as they are known to be averse to any display.

At the close of the service the body will be conveyed directly to Forest Hill Cemetery, where a mausoleum has recently been completed for the family and at present only accommodates the body of Mrs. Babcock, mother of Mrs. Sherman, whose death occurred within the year.

Mr. Sherman's body, which will be put in a plain but massive coffin, is said to show but few traces of the long illness through which the Vice President passed. Flowers in profusion are in the room where the body lies.

Mrs. Sherman is bearing her loss with fortitude. She was kneeling at the bedside of her husband when the final summons came and remained in the room the greater part of last night. Before he died Mr. Sherman had intrusted to his wife a list of friends he wished to act as honorary pall bearers at his funeral. As announced to-night, they are United States Senators Elihu Root, Thomas R. Proctor, Charles S. Symonds, William S. Doolittle, J. Francis Day, George E. Dunham, Charles B. Rogers, William T. Baker, Henry H. Cooper, and Dr. Fayette H. Peck. All are Uticans, except Senator Root, whose home is in the neighboring village of Clinton.

The active bearers will be selected from the employes of the Utica Trust and Deposit Company, of which the Vice President was President.

Among the telegrams of condolence received by Mrs. Sherman were many from Senators and members of the House of Representatives. Senators Gallinger of New Hampshire, and Bacon of Georgia, who have acted alternately as President pro tempore of the Senate in Mr. Sherman's absence, were among the first to send messages.

There also were expressions of profound sympathy from all the Cabinet Ministers and from many American Ministers to foreign countries as well as from foreign representatives in the United States.

TAFT OFF TO UTICA TO-DAY.

To Return Here for Sunday, Then to Cincinnati to Vote.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Taft will leave here to-morrow afternoon at 9:30 o'clock for Utica, to attend the funeral of Vice President Sherman on Saturday. He will be accompanied by his military aid, Major Rhoades. Whether Secretary of War Stimson or Secretary of Interior Fisher, the only two Cabinet officers in Washington, will attend the funeral, had not been determined to-day. If the Secretaries go, they will probably accompany the President.

The President's private car will be taken over the Pennsylvania Railroad to Buffalo, and from there to Utica over the New York Central.

According to the present plans, the President will not return to Washington again until after the election. He expects to go from Utica to New York, and, after spending Sunday there, to leave for Cincinnati in time to vote on Tuesday morning.

President Taft received to-day this reply to his message of sympathy to Mrs. Sherman:

> Mrs. Sherman instructs me to thank you for your gracious words, and to inform you that the funeral will occur in this city at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday.
> H. E. DAVENDORFF, Secretary.

Mr. Taft had an engagement to dedicate a monument at Newark, N. J., on Saturday, but this has been canceled.

Flags upon the White House, the dome of the Capitol and Government buildings were at half-mast to-day. The State Department prepared a proclamation which the President approved, and signed prescribing thirty days' mourning for Embassies and Legations of the United States abroad, the closing of Government offices on the day of the funeral, and putting flags at half mast on ships of the navy and at all military posts.

Proclamation Ordering Mourning.

> To the People of the United States: James Schoolcraft Sherman, Vice President of the United States, died at his home in Utica, N. Y., at 9:42 o'clock on the evening of Oct. 30, 1912. In his death the Nation has lost one of its most illustrious citizens and one of its most efficient and faithful servants.
>
> Elected at an early age to the Mayorship of his native city, the continued confidence of his community was shown by his election for ten terms as a Representative in the National Congress. As a legislator he at once took and retained high rank and displayed such attributes of upright and wide statesmanship as to commend him to the people of the United States for the second highest office within their gift. As presiding officer of the Senate he won the respect and esteem of all for his fairness and impartiality.
> His private life was noble and good. His genial disposition and attractiveness of character endeared him to all whose privilege it was to know him. His devotion to the best interests of his native land will endear his memory to his fellow-countrymen.
>
> In respect to his memory and the eminent and various services of this high official and patriotic public servant I direct that on the day of the funeral the executive offices of the United States shall be closed and all posts and stations of the army and navy shall display the National flag at half-mast, and that the representatives of the United States in foreign countries shall pay appropriate tribute to the illustrious dead for a period of forty days.
>
> In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.
>
> Done at the City of Washington this 31st day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twelve and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-seventh.
>
> By the President:
> ALVA ADEE, Acting Secretary of State.

A special train has been provided by Col. Ransdell to carry Senators, members of the House, and Justices of the Supreme Court to Utica. The train will be made up in New York and will leave there at 8:30 A. M. Saturday. The return will be made immediately after the funeral.

TAFT FAVORS STIMSON?

La Follette Also Suggested for Ticket—Wanamaker and Hadley Mute.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—With President Taft out of town from noon until late this evening and most public men actively engaged in political campaigning in their own States, Washington heard very little to-day about the selection of a successor to the late James S. Sherman as candidate of the Republican Party for Vice President.

As far as the President's views go they are understood to be in favor of the course announced by the National Committee's Chairman. The President is represented as opposed, as a matter of delicacy, to discussing a new Vice Presidential candidate while Mr. Sherman's dead body remained above ground. As the funeral will not take place until Saturday this would mean that it would be practically useless to attempt to choose a Vice Presidential candidate before Election Day with the view of lending strength to the ticket. The conclusion was reached naturally to postpone any action until the entire membership of the National Committee could meet.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—John Wanamaker issued the following statement to-night regarding the proposal to select him as a successor to the late Vice President Sherman as running mate with Mr. Taft on the Republican ticket:

"My first knowledge of the suggestion of my name I see in the newspapers and in a few letters that have just come to me. I do not wish to make any comment upon it at this time, nor do I care to comment on the political effect of the very regrettable death of Vice President Sherman."

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 31.—Gov. Hadley, in answer to the question whether he would accept the nomination as President Taft's running mate if it were tendered him by the Republican National Committee, said to-night:

"I would rather not answer the question at this time," he continued. "It may not be necessary for me to make an announcement at all whether I would accept."

MARSHALL CALLS A TRUCE.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 31.—Gov. Marshall of Indiana, who was in Chicago to-day, announced that his activities as Vice Presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket would be suspended until after the burial of Vice President James S. Sherman. The Governor has canceled his Chicago engagements scheduled for today, and left for his home at Indianapolis.

"Death ends all the bitterness and animosity, if any exists, and it certainly ought to end any controversy over political subjects," he said. "When a public servant is removed by death, although of a different political faith from mine, my sense of propriety says I should keep quiet, at least until after his body has been consigned to Mother Earth. I am not one of those who rejoice at the misfortunes of a political opponent, and I am sure I sincerely mourn the loss of a man who has given his time and his strength to his country according to his own political beliefs."

Asked as to the political situation, Gov. Marshall said:

"If the Democrats of this country are not drunk with enthusiasm, it is my belief that we will win hands down on Election Day."

Sympathy from Wilson.

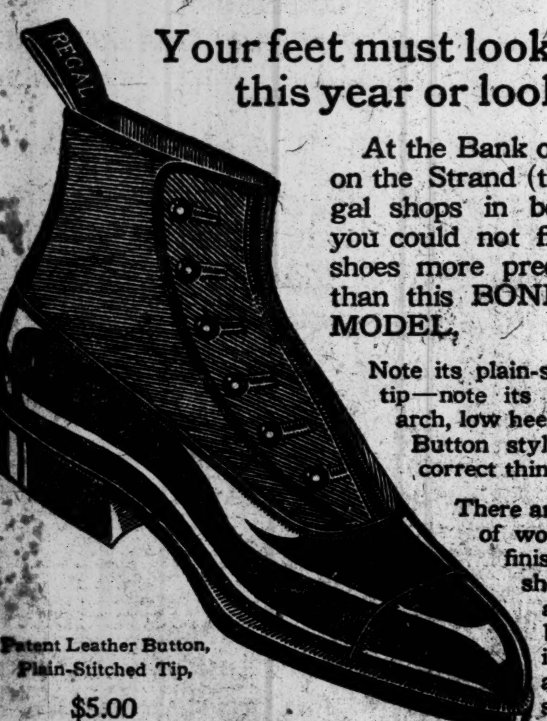
PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31.—Gov. Wilson sent to-day the following message to Mrs. J. S. Sherman, widow of the Vice President:

"In common with the whole country, Mrs. Wilson and I have been deeply shocked by the death of Vice President Sherman, and we wish to extend to you our heartfelt sympathy.

"WOODROW WILSON."

BOND ST. MODEL

Your feet must look London this year or look wrong.



At the Bank of England or on the Strand (there are Regal shops in both districts), you could not find a pair of shoes more precisely correct than this BOND STREET MODEL.

Note its plain-stitched, narrow tip—note its flat tread, low arch, low heel and toe.

There are other niceties of workmanship and finish about this shoe, but you will appreciate them better by coming to the shop and asking to be shown BOND STREET.

New York's Greatest Overcoat Sale (Continued)

Yesterday opened the most remarkable sale of overcoats ever held in this city—or in any other city in the United States. 15,000 newly finished garments—fresh from the hands of the finest tailors in the craft—were on display in the four Hackett-Carhart stores. All marked at prices which represent one-half their actual worth.

Today sees yesterday's opportunities undiminished.

Overcoats for every occasion, and for every service—for Dress, Motor, Travel and Storm wear. Also fur-lined and fur-trimmed overcoats.

Overcoats cut along British and Continental lines—models adapted from our own Fifth Avenue's smartest designs—College men's models, and many others which are original and exclusive with Hackett, Carhart & Company, Inc., Retail.

Made up in Meltons, Kerseys, Velours, Vicunas, Worsteds, Shetlands, Elysians, Chinchillas, English, Scotch, Irish Tweeds and Friezes.

And all on sale at half the price for which they were intended to sell.

TAKES GOLTRA ON HIS TOUR

Before two audiences composed entirely of Jewish voters of the east side Congressman Sulzer attacked Oscar S. Straus, the Progressive candidate for Governor, last night, and demanded that he cease "proclaiming in the up-State sections where there are no Jews that I, William Sulzer, am a Russian Jew."

Congressman Sulzer encountered his two audiences of Jewish voters in a whirlwind campaign through the city, following his appearance as the opening speaker at the Democratic rally in Madison Square Garden. Besides speaking to the Jewish voters against Straus, Congressman Sulzer spoke as an intimate friend and neighbor of the members of an audience of Hungarians in the National Bohemian Hall in East Seventy-third Street, and as an intimate friend of an audience of German voters at Cooper Union. He wound up the evening at a dance given by an Irish society at Harlem River Park.

As his guest on his long tour of the city Congressman Sulzer had with him National Committeeman Edward F. Goltra of Missouri, who managed Champ Clark's pre-convention campaign. Mr. Sulzer met the Missourian at Madison Square Garden, and heard from him that he had never seen a typical New York audience—that is, an east side audience—in action. Mr. Sulzer offered to show him, and he did so, much to Mr. Goltra's amusement.

The fun started at the National Bohemian Hall, where about 400 Hungarians had met to greet the Democratic Gubernatorial candidate.

"There's a Missouri guy with Sulzer who wants to know how we do it," shouted somebody as the Sulzer party came into the hall.

Instantly all those present left their seats. They seized benches by the ends, lifted them several feet off the floor and then jammed them down again, whistled, yelled, screeched, made "steamboat" noises, and cheered "Our William" until they were hoarse.

Then Congressman Sulzer asked them to put out a boy who persisted in lifting up and jamming down a bench after all the others had stopped. The candidate smiled while the youngster was seized by the scruff of the neck and pushed through the open door.

Sees His Friends Making Good.

"It is a great privilege to stand among my Hungarian friends and to greet again such good men as Samuel Prince, whom I see here," said Mr. Sulzer. "As I travel over these United States I come upon my good Hungarian neighbors from my old district in every section of the country, and they always are making good. They say I am for the poor people, and I am. I ought to be. I am one of them. We are paying out a great many millions of dollars a year to run the Government, and the poor people are getting robbed in the taxes they have to pay. Soon it will be impossible for a poor man to pay unless he goes into the oil business."

At Yorkville Casino, Congressman Sulzer spoke to about 500 workingmen about some of the charges made against him, which he characterized as unjust and malicious.

"These enemies of mine say I would be bossed," he declared. "They know that if I had been willing to be bossed, if I had been agreeable to plans to have me play a subservient rôle to a boss, I would have been nominated for Governor many years ago."

It was at the Star Casino, in East 107th Street, the third stop on Mr. Sulzer's automobile journey, that he talked to his first audience of Jewish voters. The meeting was advertised as a "reception to Mr. Sulzer," and in introducing him Abraham Levy said he was the greatest "friend and protector and supporter the Jews have ever had."

Cites His Record on Laws.

Mr. Sulzer began at once to review the legislation he had favored or initiated in the interests of Jewish constituents.

"In only three States in the Union," he said, "is there a freedom of worship law. In Virginia Thomas Jefferson wrote the statute. In Maryland John Carrollton wrote one, and in New York the author of the law was William Sulzer. I have world sympathies. Any injury inflicted to one race or one religion is the concern of all.

"When I saw the Jews were persecuted in Russia I took up the cause of the Jew. When I saw the Black Hundred organized to massacre the Jews, I arraigned the Czar of Russia before the bar of public opinion of the world. And I convicted him there of those atrocious massacres. They haven't been massacring the Jews in Russia since I arraigned and convicted the Czar."

Mr. Sulzer turned to New York State politics and to Mr. Straus.

"I have contempt for the Jew who goes about in up-State sections where there are no Jews," he said, "and declares he has the Jewish vote of this city in his pockets. He has been telling them that I was a Russian Jew, and I demand that he cease that. I am a friend of the Jew for what he has done to bless our civilization in art, in literature, in science, in medicine, ever since the dawn of history. I know a million Jews in Russia are praying for my success. Before any one of you votes for Straus for Governor go and ask him how many Jews he sent back to Russia to be murdered by the Czar while he was Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

From the Star Casino, Mr. Sulzer went to Cooper Union, and then to the Progress Assembly rooms in Avenue A, where he practically repeated the speech he made at the Star Casino.

DENIES SULZER'S CHARGE.

Straus Declares He Never Said Congressman Was a Jew.

Oscar S. Straus denied last night that he had ever called Mr. Sulzer a Russian Jew.

"Mr. Sulzer's statement," he said, "is made out of whole cloth. He might just as well say that I accused him of killing his grandmother. What he says would indicate that being a Jew is a derogation, and I don't admit anything of the kind. It seems absurd that I would call him that which I am myself as a matter of opprobrium. The whole thing is absurd, and shows the extreme limit of desperation to which Mr. Sulzer is reduced."

GERMANS CHEER SULZER.

More than a thousand members of the "German Democracy" of New York attended a meeting in Cooper Union last night. The names of Wilson and Sulzer were heartily cheered whenever they were mentioned by the speakers. The last person scheduled to address the meeting was Representative Henry D. Clayton of Alabama, who declared that he had come to speak primarily on behalf of "Billy" Sulzer.

"Those of us who have served with him for the last sixteen years in the House of Representatives," Mr. Clayton said, "have learned not only to know him well but to love him well. He is at Washington among his associates, just as he is among his people at home, plain, honest, sincere, and loyal to every relation in official and private life. It is on this account that we have so easily come to call him 'Billy' Sulzer.

"He fulfils the Jeffersonian test in every degree, is capable of knowing the right from the wrong, and on every occasion when he has cast his vote, he has had the courage to stand up for what was right. He will make you a distinguished Governor, and he will reflect credit on the Democratic Party as well as add dignity to the high office which the people of New York State are going to bestow upon him. There will be no one to give him orders but your sovereign will, and nothing to guide him but his honest heart."

Mr. Clayton had just started to pay a tribute to Gov. Wilson when he was interrupted by party cheers. He bowed in acknowledgment of what he mistook for a response to his sentiments, but just then he felt some one tap him on the shoulder, and when he turned around found himself facing Mr. Sulzer. As soon as the applause had subsided Mr. Clayton said:

The cheers which followed were deafening, and Mr. Sulzer was forced to bow again and again. In his address he said:

"They say I am a commoner. I am proud of that. The people know me, and they know what I have done. My record speaks for itself. The people know I can be trusted, for they have seldom been deceived by one of their own. If the people send me to Albany one of the first things I shall do will be to urge the ratification by the Legislature of the amendment to the Federal Constitution to elect Senators in Congress by the people. I am the author of this reform and have been fighting for it since I went to Congress—eighteen years ago.

"I served five years in the Legislature of this State, and during my administration as Speaker I gave the people of the State the shortest and the cleanest session of the Legislature in forty-seven years, and the lowest tax rate in fifty-one. I point to the fifty-odd laws I wrote upon the statute books of this State before I was 29 years old, all good laws, all progressive laws.

"Then I went to Congress, where I have been working for the people for eighteen years. I point to the thirty odd laws I wrote upon the statute books of this country in the face of tremendous opposition, while I was in the minority in the House of Representatives, all good laws, all laws in the interest of the people.

"Let me say to you that if I was true to the people during the five years I was in the Legislature; if I have been faithful to my trust during the eighteen years I have been in Congress, is it not reasonable to suppose that I will be true and faithful to the people during the two years I am going to be Governor at Albany?"

Hallowe'en Party for Children.

Smith, Gray & Co. entertained yesterday afternoon at their Fulton Street store in Brooklyn in honor of Hallowe'en. The salesmen were banished from the aisles, and these were given over to hundreds of children, who darted among glaring pumpkins, and recovered from their fright at the ominous witch by long draughts of lemonade and much munching of cookies.

CITIZENS HEAR WALDO.

Committee of Twenty-six Meet at the Bar Association.

The Citizens' Committee of Twenty-six, appointed at the meeting held in Cooper Union on Aug. 14, which has been quietly delving into conditions in the Police Department, heard last night from Commissioner Waldo. The committee met behind closed doors in Room E in the annex of the Bar Association at 42 West Forty-fourth Street. Newspaper reporters were barred from the meeting.

The meeting, called for 8:15 o'clock, began half an hour late, owing to the tardy arrival of Commissioner Waldo. Mr. Waldo, who was the only speaker, talked for two hours. Then for three-quarters of an hour he answered questions the members of the committee put to him.

When the Commissioner came out of the committee room at 11:30 o'clock, he said he had told the Citizens' Committee practically nothing which was not already known to the public. He explained Police Department conditions as he found them when he stepped into office, he said, and told of the reforms he had accomplished.

PRINCETON HOPES BASED ON ATTACK

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31.—Princeton's football players paid their last visit this week to Osborne Field this afternoon, which lasted for two hours, and early to-morrow morning the Tiger squad of twenty-six men will be started on their way to Cambridge and the Harvard game on Saturday.

President Hibben watched the final practice with close interest. He was in earnest conference with the coaches on the field for half an hour, talked with them about the plays and wished them luck. He will be unable to attend the game, but said he had much confidence in the outcome. He will watch the detailed returns at the office of the Daily Princetonian on Saturday.

The coaches have worked their men hard this week, but they do not seem to be over trained, and all of them, according to Trainer Fitzpatrick, are ready to show their best. The Tigers after an easy and quiet journey will reach Auburndale, Mass., at 5:30 o'clock to-morrow evening, and will probably not indulge in a drill of any kind.

Princeton is facing the Harvard game at the end of the final drills that have been so important to them, with a degree of confidence, largely built on their spectacular attack, which has already totaled 256 points for them. The defense has yet to prove itself in a class with that of the championship team of last Fall, and it is certain that the forwards will be severely tested. The punch that characterized the Dartmouth game has not been lost and Princeton is feeling a certain well modulated optimism.

What the team did yesterday was mainly light work, but they covered all they know in the way of plays. With the usual line-up the coaches put them through a two-hour signal drill and made them do it thoroughly, although very easily. The team has developed a precision and snap in running off the plays that will be a valuable asset to them, because the Tigers are depending upon their speed to a large extent this time. The coaches have never relaxed a moment in their demand for quickness and accuracy in every move.

The men were under more personal supervision this afternoon than they have been so far this season. There were specialists in every department putting on the final touches. "Doc" Hillebrand took the tackles in hand, Wilson the guards, Balliet the centres, Trenchard and Davis the ends, while Cunningham and "Johnnie" Poe looked after he back field.

The signal drill was followed by a long session on the defense against the scrub. This, too, was very easy, and the coaches allowed no scrimmaging. DeWitt, Pendleton, H. Baker and Waller filled out the back field and S. Baker took charge of quarter back.

Andrews and Dunlap, by playing the whole time at the ends yesterday, are evidently the selection of the coaches for the positions, although they would not confirm that statement. Pendleton and Baker took a fifteen minutes' workout at kicking from placement, with honors about equal. The coaches are taking no chances on an injury to Baker preventing a possible field goal. They are giving Pendleton just as much drill in it as Baker, so as to make the chance score in case of a crisis doubly sure.

HARVARD COACHES PLAY.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 31.—The Harvard coaches, with the exception of Haughton, Leary, and Daly, got into the thick of the scrimmage to-day against the 'Varsity. Capt. Wendell and Half Back Brickley did not play, but in the twenty-minute scrimmage there was some hard and fast football. The regulars confined themselves mainly to line play and could not score, although they covered a lot of ground. The veterans, who borrowed three backfield men from the second team for the occasion, had a lot of trouble to open holes, and mighty little ground gaining was produced.

The substitutes later came in for their share of the scrimmage against the graduates, and did better than the first-string men, Milholland scoring on a drop kick made from the graduates' 25-yard line. The Harvard forwards had a lot of speed to-day, and all are in splendid condition. The team has not done much scrimmaging this week, but has been put into a frame of mind to play hard, fierce football on Saturday. Princeton's all-around speed was what surprised the Crimson most last Fall, and this year the men feel that they can beat the Tigers if they can be as aggressive as the Jerseymen are sure to be.

Brickley had the day off, but twice during the scrimmage took Bettle's place for one play. Each time Brickley attempted to make a goal from the field by drop-kicking, but he missed the posts both times. Hamilton Corbett played end with the coaches. He played half back for the 'Varsity for three years, and was on the coaching staff in 1911. Corbett will help put on Harvard's attack for the Dartmouth and Yale games.

Huntington, last year's centre and full back, broke a bone in his shoulder in the scrimmage to-day. He has been coaching the centres. Huntington went through three years of football and hockey while in college and never was hurt.

Capt. Wendell, on behalf of the Harvard players and coaches, to-day sent a message of sympathy to Capt. Spalding of the Yale eleven because of the death of Theodore York, who was expected to play guard against Harvard. Many Harvard men knew York at Andover and were shocked to learn of his death. Every one was relieved by the assurances that have been made at New Haven that York's death is not attributed to football.

This afternoon the freshman class marched down to Soldiers' Field to cheer its eleven, which will play the Princeton youngsters on Saturday while the two 'Varsity teams are playing in the stadium. There were 500 freshmen, who, with their brass band, were allowed to enter the stadium to see the last part of the scrimmage. All the students turned out to-night for a mass meeting to practice songs and cheers for the Princeton game.

Thorpe Does Remarkable Punting.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Oct. 31.—The Carlisle Indians football eleven is not taking a victory for granted in the matter of its Lehigh game at Bethlehem on Saturday. Coach Warner has led his braves through a snappy afternoon's practice on Indian field here to-day from the track work and fundamentals to the closing scrimmage of forty minutes' duration, which will be the last before the Eastern Pennsylvanian collegians will be played. The Redskins are keeping their eyes on West Point, and to-day in addition to two new plays being perfected for Lehigh's benefit, two extra ones were added for the edification of Uncle Sam's military proteges. Welch's leg is again in good shape, and Harcasa has recovered from his bruises. Thorpe's punting to-night was as remarkable as ary ever seen on Indian Field, frequently covering seventy to eighty yards.

Fordham to Drill with N. Y. U. To-day

The Fordham 'Varsity eleven was excused after a signal rehearsal yesterday in preparation for the practice game against the New York University first team at Ohio Field this afternoon. The new plays were drilled repeatedly and the open game developed considerably. The new feature to the Maroon's offense was added when Half Back McNally called the signals from his position and later displaced Schaffmeister at quarter back, making room for Dooling, who has recovered from an attack of water on the knee. Coach Bo Olcott of the Violet eleven wants his team to have a stiff try-out before the Trinity game, and has invited Tom Thorpe to bring over his squad to Ohio Field. As the Maroon team is now believed to have caught its stride, an interesting contest to-day is sure to result.

While the 'Varsity team was running through signals the second team scrimmaged with Coach Siskind's High School of Commerce charges, and had them on the run for an hour by the skillful use of the forward pass, Carey invariably receiving the ball, and the [illegible] of Fred Taylor, the new star uncovered in the practice this week.

PENN READY FOR STATE.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—With but two days before the game with State College, the Pennsylvania coaches have abandoned hard practice. The showing made by the team to-day is a big improvement and the coaches expressed themselves as much encouraged. The good showing of the 'Varsity is especially noticeable in view of the fact that the entire middle of the line consisted of Simpson at centre, and the two guards, Greene and MacNaughton, were unable to get out on account of studies until after the scrimmage had taken place. With the second string men in the line and with Capt. Mercer on the side lines because of his lame ankle, the 'Varsity made seven touchdowns. This is an indication that the team has developed a lot of good substitutes and that it is not so likely to go to pieces if one of the regular men is injured, as was the case some days ago.

The scrimmage was the last before the State game. To-morrow afternoon the men will be taken to Media, where they will stay at the Idlewild until Saturday morning, when they will return to Franklin Field for the fray in the afternoon.

Mercer's ankle is considerably better to-day, and it is now certain that he will get into the game on Saturday in fair condition. All the other men are in the pink of condition. Jourdet has recovered his old-time form, as he was the star in the offensive work.

NEW FOOTBALL STAR FOUND.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 31.—Dartmouth's football team was to-day allowed no intermission from what has been the hardest series of practice sessions ever seen at Hanover. The only variation from the programme of the week lay in a slight shortening of the preliminary rudimentary drill, only to use the time saved for the longest scrimmage ever held on the alumni oval. The 'Varsity line withstood the attacks of two strings of 'Varsity backs playing behind the second team line for nearly an hour and a half, and darkness had set in when they were allowed to leave the field.

To-day's practice was encouraging in the fact that it revealed a wonderful lineman in Hinman, a big New Hampshire boy, who has been on the squad for a year. He was put in at guard to-day and played only fair football until he was accidentally kicked on the nose. From that time on he was invincible, played harder as the game progressed, and stopped every play directed at him. As a result he, with Murdock, a full back who has been working well this week, were added to the training table.

The line was much improved to-day and the promised shifts did not materialize, Estep being the only Princeton game regular who was not allowed to show his hand. Gibson took his place at right tackle and Rector played right guard. Hickox, a second team lineman, was tried out at full back. He is game, aggressive, and quick, and if he can master the fine points of the game he will be a welcome addition to the back field. Loudon, Ashton, and Wanamaker were at the ends. Barends's ankle is improved and he will be ready for the Cornell game. Whitney and Morey are overtrained and will not play in the Amherst game. Hogsett, Murdock, and Snow will carry the ball. There is little prospect of any let-up in the practice to fit the team for the Amherst game. The coaches are determined to subordinate the next two games to the development of a strong line.

Navy Team Far Below Standard.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 31.—Unsatisfactory work continues to mark the football practice at the Naval Academy. Though the coaches were particularly strong in their efforts to make the players brace up this afternoon and transferred two of the regulars to the scrubs in addition to giving pointed warnings to others, little improvement was apparent in the work this afternoon, and the scrub had rather the better of the argument during the line-up. The regulars employed a heavy backfield and could gain by sending the big backs straight into the line, but in no other way. The scrubs made a number of long runs, with Mitchell or Alexander carrying the ball, Mitchell on one occasion receiving the ball and running sixty yards for a touchdown. Brown, a big guard, and Overesch, a husky end, were the regulars who were transferred to the scrub this afternoon, Woodward going to guard and Miller taking Overesch's place. The changes did not improve conditions, and it was Miller's miss of Mitchell which allowed him to start on the run which resulted in a touchdown. The navy team is undoubtedly far below standard, and its friends are much worried over the delay of the hoped-for big brace.

Lehigh Eleven in Low Spirits.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., Oct. 31.—Decidedly listless was the practice at Lehigh to-day, with atrocious fumbling featuring the signal practice. The men showed indifferent spirits and the coaches were afraid to call for a hard scrimmage, but rather resorted to tactics calculated to put the men in a more optimistic frame of mind. The men were cheered somewhat when Resident Coach Keady, who had been threatened with a severe illness, made his appearance on the field for a few moments. For about an hour the 'Varsity ran up and down the field practicing the plays to be used against the Carlisle Indians. Vela was transferred back to the 'Varsity at end to-day, and so was Bailey at tackle and Blanco at guard. Hoban, the half back, was absent from the line-up, but Flick has recovered sufficiently from his injuries to get out again. The practice ended with the men running several laps around the track and with orders to report at the gymnasium to-night for a heart-to-heart talk.

CENTRAL LEAGUE DISSOLVES.

Its Directors, However, Organize Two Circuits to Take Its Place.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 31.—The old Central League, a twelve-club organization, was dissolved at to-day's sessions of the League Directors, and in its place two six-club leagues were launched, a Western and Eastern circuit, to be composed as follows:

Inter-State—Youngstown, Erie, Zanesville, Wheeling, Canton, and Akron.

Both are at present only temporary organizations. The Inter-State owners will meet at Akron Nov. 6, and those of the Central at Milwaukee Nov. 12 on which dates the two leagues will be duly organized.

Louis Heilbroner of Fort Wayne, a major league scout and statistician, was elected President of the Central League, succeeding Dr. F. R. Carson of South Bend, who resigned to-day.

C. A. Dawson of Zanesville has been named temporary head of the Inter-State League.

Cup for Columbia Runners.

In order to make cross country running more popoular at Columbia, a trophy cup has been presented to the track association which will be awarded to the runner making the best score in a series of handicap runs that are to be held on successive Monday afternoons beginning next week. The trophy will be known as the Van Amringe Cup, in honor of Dean J. H. Van Amringe, who was head of Columbia College for sixteen years, and who retired two years ago. Although the Columbia team is entered to race the Princeton cross country squad at Princeton on Nov. 9, Bernie Wefers, the coach, has had difficulty in getting candidates out for practice. The entire 'varsity squad number fifteen, and many of the men who are in the engineering schools are compelled to run after dark because of late classes. The Van Amringe Cup races will not be open to 'varsity runners, as they are intended to develop men in the under classes for next year's team. The cup contests will probably become annual fixtures.

Church A. L. Basket Ball Series.

At a meeting of the Basket Ball Committee of the Church Athletic League held last night it was decided to hold championship classes in two weights, 115 pounds and 130 pounds. The following teams have signified their intention of being represented in each of the classes: St. Georges A. C., Bronx Church House, Bohemian Presbyterian Club, St. Agnes A. A., and East Side Presbyterian Club. The tournament will begin the first week in December and all teams must be weighed in a week before the series starts. First and second trophies will be awarded to the winners in each class.

YALE CANCELS GAME WITH COLGATE TEAM

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 31.—Yale will be without football until next Monday because of the death of Theodore York, the guard who died of pneumonia in the College Infirmary late last night. Head Coach Howe and Capt. Spalding this morning posted a notice calling off all practice for the remainder of the week and declaring canceled the game with Colgate on Saturday. This is the first time Yale has canceled a football match for any reason. The letter sent by the Football Association to Colgate early this morning follows:

"Owing to the death from pneumonia of Theodore York, one of our team, we prefer, with your consent, to cancel the game for Saturday, as many of his intimate friends are on the team and would desire to show the mark of respect."

A reply was received stating that Colgate's consent to the cancellation of the game was freely given.

The Yale freshmen to-night canceled their game scheduled with Andover Academy here for Saturday out of respect to York, who had been a member of both the Andover and Yale freshman elevens.

President Arthur T. Hadley of the university announced York's death in Battell Chapel this morning in the following language:

"It is my sad duty to announce the death of Theodore York of the sophomore class, who, in the brief space allotted him on earth, had already proved himself a man and left the rest of us an example to live by."

The remains of York will be taken to Battell Chapel to-morrow afternoon and funeral services will be conducted by President Hadley and Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Secretary of the university. The pall bearers will be York's fellow-students. The remains will be taken to York's former home in Maine to-morrow night and services will be held there on Saturday.

Members of the squad would not talk football to-day, but were filled with reminiscences of their friendship for York, whom they had known at Andover for two years, and a year and a half at Yale. He was one of the most popular members of the sophomore class of the academic department. He was the best guard in the university and had won a place on the 'Varsity eleven, when he was attacked with pneumonia last week. He was the probable selection for captain in his senior year, as he was the first member of his class to be picked for the 'Varsity as a sophomore, the first year in which an undergraduate is eligible to play.

There is no indication that York's death was caused by football. He went to the infirmary suffering from a severe cold, and an abscess later developed. He played the entire West Point game ten days ago.

CORNELL LOSES FORM.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, Oct. 31.—The Cornell football team suffered a reversal of form toward the end of to-day's scrimmaging and proved easy victims for the strong freshmen eleven in a half-hour scrimmage, the first year team scoring twice and in turn holding the 'Varsity on the one-yard line.

The poor showing of the regulars may have been due in part to the fact that they had just gone through a long scrimmage with the scrubs, whom they beat decisively, and they were tired out, but the coaches believed that that was no good excuse for their poor showing. Fumbling, ragged tackling, high charging in the line and mixed up signals were the principal faults that were in evidence and though Coach Sharpe shifted his back field several times he could not get much better results.

Barrett of the freshman team scored twice on the 'Varsity, breaking through the line once for a 20-yard dash over the goal line and carrying a forward pass over the second time. The freshmen pounded through the line for good gains, even such veterans as Champaign, who got into the scrimmage for a short time to-day, proving unable to withstand the onslaughts.

Collyer, who has been working like a beaver on the scrubs since he came back from the injured squad and who was placed at left guard for the 'Varsity in place of Larrowe, was the only man to break even with the freshman opponents. Munns, Williamson and Whyte had their hands full.

Taber and Whyte fumbled badly and when O'Connor and Fritz were sent in they did not do very much better. Fritz managed to make one long run, but on the whole the 'Varsity backs could not make any consistent advances.

With the Williams team getting here to-morrow and university work keeping Cornell on the hill, the team can hold no more practices, though the coaches may insist on a signal drill in a final effort to get the men together.

City College Freshmen Win.

The Freshman class of City College defeated the sophomores in the annual track and field meet yesterday by the score of 55 to 8. The underclass men scored all the points in the hundred and both jumps. The "220" was the best race of the meet. Von Bonin won for the freshmen with about five yards to spare, but the fight for second place was fought out all the way between James, a sophomore, and Schulman. The sophomore finnally gained the position by inches. The summary:

100-Yard Dash.—Won by Tabor, '16; Von Bonin, '16, second; Schulman, '16, third. Time—0:10 3-5.

440-Yard Dash.—Won by Kallman, '16; Tabor, '16, second; Silverstein, '15, third. Time—0:57.

Two-Mile Run.—Won by Butterworth, '16; Mones, '15, second; Schneeweis, '15, third. Time—11:01.

220-Yard Dash—Won by Von Bonin, '16; James, '15, second; Schulman, '16, third. Time—0:24 1-5.

880-Yard Run.—Won by Archer, '16; Cohen, '16, second; Silverstein, '16, third. Time—2:15.

High Jump.—Won by Shapiro, '16; Schauer, '16, second; Alport, '16, third. Height—5 feet.

Broad Jump.—Won by Shapiro, '16; Alport, '16, second; Cohen, '16, third. Distance—19 feet 5 inches.

Freshmen Win Field Events.

The Columbia freshmen closed up a big gap on the sophomores in the final events of the annual underclass meet, which were held on South Field yesterday afternoon. The freshmen scored 26 points out of a possible 27, and made the final score of the meet 67 to 50. The freshmen won all except third place in the broad jump. E. B. Randall, the freshman high jumper, again dropped out after he had cleared 5 feet 5 inches. The sun had gone down when the pole vaulters began to jump, and the best they could do was 9 feet 6 inches, at which height Walter D. Barry and R. Reese, both freshmen, tied for first place. The summaries:

Broad Jump.—Won by M. Cohen, '16, with a jump of 18 feet 6 inches; E. B. Randall, '16, second, with a jump of 18 feet 4 inches; H. Axelrod, '16, with a jump of 18 feet 2½ inches.

High Jump.—Won by E. B. Randall, '16, with a jump of 5 feet 5 inches; F. B. Appleby, '16, and A. C. Hamilton, '16, tied for second place, at 5 feet 4 inches.

Pole Vault.—Tie for first between W. D. Barry, '15, and R. Reese, '16, at 9 feet 6 inches; E. S. Porter, '16, third, with a vault of 9 feet.

Must Pay Ball Player's Salary.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 31.—The National Baseball Commission to-day disallowed an appeal from a decision of the National Board by the Kansas City Club regarding the awarding Player J. C. Withe's salary during four weeks in which he was incapacitated as well as $225 for physicians' services. The point taken by the commission was that the player had not been formally suspended at any time during his illness. The player was sold to the Grand Rapids Club, but received no compensation from that club. The commission instructs the Kansas City Club to pay the claim of the player in full.

JUDGE SEEGER'S HORSE WINS

Special to The New York Times.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The horse race which has been awaited with great interest by the residents of Orange County, took place to-day at the historic track which is located across the street from the Court House where Justice Tompkins has been holding court.

The race was arranged by County Clerk James D. McGiffert a few weeks ago. The horses that started were Little Kate, owned by Judge Tompkins, and Amasis, owned by County Judge Seeger, the latter winning the match.

At noon court took a recess until 4 o'clock in order to hold the event. The officials were Starter George H. Mills, County Clerk James D. McGiffert, County Treasurer Robert Johnson, Sheriff A. C. Sutherland, and Surrogate John B. Swezey.

Starter Mills called the horses out at 2:30 o'clock. Previous to this hour the judges had worked their horses a couple of miles easily, preparatory to receiving the word. The drivers appeared before the judges' stand in their sulkies and drew for position. Judge Tompkins drew the pole and Amasis was obliged to score on the outside for the opening heat.

After scoring down once the word was given and Little Kate shot to the front. Amasis, in rounding the first turn threw a shoe. This caused the black horse to break and Little Kate had no trouble in winning the heat by three lengths in 1:27½. Judge Seeger had a shoe put on Amasis at once. In the second heat Little Kate led at the half-mile post by a length. A break by the mare in rounding the turn allowed Amasis to take the lead, which he was able to hold until the finish. The heat was won by Amasis by a couple of lengths.

In the third heat both horses were on even terms for nearly all of the mile, but in coming down the home stretch Little Kate made a skip and Amasis won the heat in 2:29½. The black whirlwind also captured the final heat quite handily in 2:30½.

The race was witnessed by a crowd of over 1,000 people. There were many Orange County lawyers, politicians, and horsemen in attendance, and a fine afternoon's sport was enjoyed. The event was given under the auspices of the Goshen Driving Club, and the winner was awarded a blue ribbon and the second horse a red ribbon.

Meadow Brook Racing on Tuesday.

The Meadow Brook Steeplechase Association will hold its Autumn meeting at Belmont Park Terminal on Election Day, next Tuesday. One of the features will be the Nursery Handicap, a sprint at six furlongs, in which all the best horses that have been racing at Piping Rock and the United Hunts Meeting will participate. A cup valued at $100 will be presented to the owner of the winner by August Belmont. There is also likely to be run a match race between the three best Galloways in America, Reybourn, Culver, and Booger Hed, which retired some time ago, but which has again been put in training, presumably for this race. The stakes will probably be $1,000 a side, and should the race be run will take place at the Meadow Brook meeting.

FOUR MORE AUTO ENTRIES.

Four more entries were made yesterday for the automobile race meet at the Brighton Beach race track on Election Day. Ray Howard has nominated his Pope "Hummer" and the Buick "Bug," the two cars which he drove at the meet of the Motor Dealers' Exhibit Company held a few weeks ago. Howard expects to drive the "Hummer" in the Election Day Derby event of 100 miles and the "Bug" will be raced in several handicap competitions. Neil Whalen has entered his National car for three events, one of which, the Election Day Derby, he feels certain will be captured by him. Whalen has been practicing on the Brighton track for the past few days. Leland Mitchell, who has driven in several of the Vanderbilt Cup races, has entered a Mason in several events.

The Election Day Derby, which is the feature event of the card, promises to be well filled, as to date there are fifteen cars assured for the race. The first prize of $500 has attracted a number of race drivers, who will make this event well contested and speedy. Ralph Mulford and Spencer Wishart have already been nominated for this race, and before the entries close it is expected that several Western drivers new to Eastern racing fans will also be entered.

FOR INTERNATIONAL RACES.

Team Contests Between British and American Boats in 1914.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—Arrangements are being perfected for team contests in the Summer of 1914, between England and America for the 31-rater class of yachts. An international meeting across the water was proposed by Charles P. Curtis, owner of the sonder yacht Ellen, which won the Quincy Cup last Summer. Mr. Curtis announced that Secretary of the Navy George von L. Meyer is assisting in negotiations with the English yachtsmen.

The establishment of the sonder yacht races with Germany, the fifth series of which will be sailed at Marblehead next September, and the failure of the English yachtsmen to send another challege for the America's Cup, have contributed toward arousing interest in an Anglo-American contest for a smaller type of boat.

It is planned to send three American boats to British waters for a series of three or five contests under the International Yacht Racing Rules. The yachts will be of about 8 meters racing length, or corresponding to American 31 footers.

Louney Best in Roller Race.

C. Louney of Newark, starting from the scratch mark, won the two-mile professional handicap roller skating race at the Metropolitan Roller Skating Rink, Fifty-second Street and Broadway, last night. The winner and Harry Burke of Bridgeport, Conn., who also started from the scratch mark, skated close together from the beginning of the race, and it was only on the third lap of the last mile that Louney was able to pull away from his adversary, and at the finish he had a lead of about a yard on Burke. W. Yale, also of Bridgeport, who was alloted a handicap of ten yards, was third. The winner's time was 6:37 4-5. Eight contestants started in the event, but after the first mile the handicap men, with the exception of Yale, did not figure in the race.

Manhattan College Basket Ball.

Preliminary practice of the Manhattan College basket ball team began yesterday under the direction of Capt. Bolton and Manager Barrett, and will continue daily under their supervision until the arrival of the coach who is expected in a few days. Of last year's team three veterans—Capt. Bolton, Houlihan, and Suarez—have returned to college, and are out for positions on the team. Prominent among the new candidates are Feraci, McEntire, and Molyneux of last year's reserve team, Killeen and Downing of St. Joseph's College, Buffalo, and Doyle of the bureau. Home games will be played on the De La Salle court in Fifty-ninth Street. Manager J. J. Barrett has completed a schedule, which he will announce in a few days.

SPORTING NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Long Island Athletic Club has selected the team which will represent it in the junior metropolitan cross country championship race which will be decided over the newly authorized course at Van Cortlandt Park to-morrow. The team will be as follows: Sid Leslie, H. Kramer, Jim Plant, Arthur Richmond, Hugh Carroll, Tom Carroll, Walter Leslie, and William Brockwell.

On Sunday morning the Long Island Athletic Club will hold the fifth of its weekly road runs, and the men who finish first, second and third will qualify for competition in the sixth and final run of the series. All clubs and unattached athletes are invited to participate. The start and finish is situated at the club house, Pennsylvania Avenue and Fulton Street. Among the starters will be Harry Smith and Billy Kramer.

Over 5,000 invitations have been issued for the opening skating session to-night at St. Nicholas Rink. The function will mark what promises to be the opening of a most auspicious season of ice sport. It is said that most of the prominent fancy and speed skaters will be seen in exhibitions and competitions. The rink will be thrown open to the public Saturday morning.

The sixty-second games of the Seventh Regiment Athletic Association are carded for Dec. 7 in the armory at Park Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street. A score of events open to members of the regiment will be held, embracing foot races, skating and hurdle events, wall scaling and weight throwing, and jumping contests.

The makeup of the St. George's A. C. team, which will represent the club to-morrow in the Junior Metropolitan Association cross-country championship at Van Cortlandt Park, is as follows: H. Young, H. De Groot, F. Wornke, J. Schlechter, and E. Bohl.

SIRE OF ST. LEGER WINNER TO SAIL

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 31.—Rock Sand, the sire of August Belmont's cold Tracery, winner of the St. Leger Stakes at Doncaster, England, on Sept. 11, left here to-night en route for New York, from which point he will be shipped on Saturday morning to London.

This is the horse which was recently purchased by a syndicate from August Belmont at a price not stated. When seen yesterday Mr. Belmont admitted that he was loth to part with the horse, which he bought several years ago from the Sir James Miller estate for $125,000, and which stood at the head of Mr. Belmont's Nursery Stud in Lexington. An option which had been given the organizer of the syndicate was taken up by him.

The horse has been insured for $150,000, and left Lexington in a special steel car which was decorated with American and French flags, and with one end liberally padded. Trip companions for the stallion will be Topiary, the dam of Tracery, and which came from England with Rock Sand, and Golden View, a sister of Fair Play.

When the train arrives in Jersey City Saturday morning the car will be put aboard a float and the animals transported to the Minnewaska, at the foot of Sixteenth Street, North River. From London shipment will be made to Folkstone, and thence to Boulogne, the Ville Von, Vanderbilt's former estate and stud having been chosen as the domicile of the famous horse.

Topiary and Golden View will be taken to Foucarmont, Mr. Belmont's stud in France, to join Half Sovereign, Field Mouse, and White Thorn, all of which are in foal to Rock Sand, as according to the rules of French racing horses to be eligible for events there must be born in France and remain there a year.

In discussing this phase of racing yesterday, Mr. Belmont stated that while he was sending the mares which had been bred to Rock Sand to France, he would still have some valuable horses in this country. It is his intention to place either Fair Play or Trap Rock at the head of his American stud, the latter being a full brother to Tracery.

"I regret the departure of Rock Sand keenly," said Mr. Belmont. "Nothing would have induced me to part with him had racing here permitted a career for him and his get.

"The United States no longer affords to the thoroughbred an opportunity for exhibiting conspicuous merit on a par with the thoroughbreds of England or France, or, for that matter, of any European country, even the smallest.

"With the exception of a few really important stakes in Kentucky, no racing associations in this country are financially able to offer events that would furnish conclusive guides for breeding great horses.

"Hence they are all leaving us. Stallions, mares, and the best of our active racehorses; youngsters and older ones. With them go most of our best trainers, jockeys, and many of our biggest owners who covet the serious honors of the turf.

"Few stallions of merit are left in the country outside of those that are too old to be sold and whose usefulness will soon end. Likewise those mares which are in their prime have gone or are still going to foreign lands.

"If racing is not conducted so as to effect the improvement of the breed, it ceases to be genuine racing, and this can only be accomplished through breeders' stakes and future events for the different ages of horses whose entries are open long in advance of the events, and which, by their importance, from the standpoint of the interest of the public and as guides for the horsemen as well as their value, tend to bring the best horses of this or any other country together for competition.

"It is encouraging to observe the growth of our amateur meetings and the lively interest of such a substantial number of keen sportsmen in racing, but it is heart-rending to feel that to them is bequeathed the necessity of being satisfied with mediocrity in thoroughbred horseflesh.

"Mere contests for any kind of horses for purses degenerate to the level of the game of petit cheveaux, and no intelligent lover of the thoroughbred for a moment wishes racing to remain only this.

"Racing as such in this country can only be successful if it be a popular sport, as it is in England and on the Continent. I, for one, do not care for it as an exotic for the exclusive few.

"It is quite a different matter, may I say to the critics of the Jockey Club and of the racing associations of this city, for them to give a race meeting, than giving a few days of racing at club courses, promoted by local support and protected by subscriptions.

"Our friendly, unthinking neighbor does not seem to realize what it means to have races within reach of the New York public. To be accessible to the heart of New York means a course within twenty or twenty-five miles from its centre on lines of transportation. This means a spot scarcely beyond the limits of this vast city's territory. Consequently a race-course for New York involves very expensive property and its population demands good and comfortable accommodations."

BILLIARDS AND POOL.

C. L. Johnson defeated J. Jaeger in the final game of the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, last night by the score of 25 to 11 in thirty-eight innings. This victory gives Johnson first prize in the tournament, while his opponent receives second prize, only two prizes being offered. Both contestants were playing at the scratch mark of twenty-five points. The winner made two high runs of four points and one of five, while his opponent made a run of three.

In last night's game of the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom tournament at Keeney's Academy, in Brooklyn, Charles Otis, playing at the scratch mark of 40 points, defeated Thomas Bickert by the score of 40 to 39 in sixty-two innings. The winner made a high run of five points, and his opponent three. In a practice game in the afternoon Morris D. Brown, the National champion at 18.2 balkline billiards, made a high run of 196 points.

Willie Hoppe, holder of the championship title of the world at 18.2 balkline billiards, began practice at the McGraw-Hoppe Billiard Academy, Thirty-fifth Street and Sixth Avenue, last night in preparation for the tournament which starts at the Hotel Astor, Nov. 11. In his first game Hoppe defeated Morris Brown by the score of 400 to 84 in nine innings. The champion made a high run of 213, and averaged 44 4-9. Brown's best efforts netted him 40 points, with an average of 9 1-3.

In a practice game in preparation for his coming championship match with Frank Sherman of Washington, Alfred De Oro, the world's champion pool player, defeated William Tilt of the New York Athletic Club at Doyle's Academy last night by the score of 100 to 69 in eleven frames. De Oro was giving his opponent a handicap of 25 points, allowing Tilt to play for 75 points while he had to make 100. The Cuban's high run was 20 and his opponent made 14. The new "open-break" rules prevailed.

Two games were decided yesterday in the amateur 18.2 balkline billiard tournament at Maurice Daly's Academy, Forty-ninth Street and Broadway. In the first game, played in the afternoon, William Gershel defeated L. Blake by the score of 200 to 189 in forty-seven innings. Both contestants made a high run of 23 points, and they each averaged a fraction over four points. In the evening contest Mark Muldaur defeated Charles Conley by the score of 200 to 102 in thirty-one innings. The winner's high run was 34 points, and his average 6 14-31. Conley made a high run of 15, and an average of 3 4-31.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The first game here of the annual three-cushion Billiard League championship, was played to-night. Julius Krulewich of Chicago, won from Charles Warren of Boston, 50 to 39. Ninety-eight innings were played. Krulewich had a high run of 4. Warren 3. Two more games will be played in the series here.

ENGINEERS IN GOLF.

Several Competitions and Twelve Trophies Awarded in Last Day's Play.

Golfers affiliated with the Engineers Club of New York held their last day's competition on the links at Montclair yesterday, nearly forty competitors taking part. A dozen trophies were distributed.

The attention of the engineers in the morning was devoted to foursomes in which M. G. Starrett and T. F. Mullaney were the winners, with totals of 182—26—156, while for the second prize, W. F. Zimmerman and W. M. Wampler tied with C. R. Ellicott and W. O. Wood, with respective cards of 194—36—158 and 197—39—158. Zimmerman and Wampler won the play-off.

In the afternoon there was an individual handicap arranged in three classes with two prizes in each division. In the first squad W. A. Pearson was the winner with 82—8—74, while Mullaney was second with 88—12—76. In Class B, C. F. Quincy topped the list with 93—15—78, and H. J. Chambers and H. Blackburn tied for second with respective scores of 99—20—79, and 97—18—79. Chambers was the lucky man in the deciding test. In the third class, K. I. Small, with 96—22—74, showed the way, while J. R. Vandyck, with 113—36—77, was the second prize winner after a play-off with C. A. Earle, who scored 101—24—77.

There was a prize for the best gross score, which was won by W. A. Pearson with an 82. It was also announced that the cup for the best gross score of the season had been won by N. M. Garland with 75. F. E. Donohoe won the blind handicap. The scores:

PRINCETON FALL REGATTA.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31.—The seniors carried away premier honors in the annual Fall inter-class regatta, held on Lake Carnegie this afternoon, with the other classes following in this order: Juniors, sophomores, and freshmen.

The big event which the seniors won was the one and three-fourths mile race for eight-oared shells, which they covered in 9 minutes and 43 2-5 seconds. It was a pretty race throughout. The boats keeping the same relative positions from the start when the seniors jumped into a slight lead. At the end they spurted and finished a length and a half ahead of the juniors.

In a four-oared event the juniors won from the sophomores over a one-mile course in five minutes and 59 2-5 seconds. There was a novice race for three freshman shells. The winning crews were made up as follows:

1913 Crew, (eight-oared.)—Scribner, bow; O'Connor, 2; Kingsford, 3; Law, 4; Chester, 5; Bashinsky, 6; Rauch, 7; North, stroke; Congleton, coxswain.

BUCK DEER SEASON OPENS.

Where Hunters May Go for Short Periods Hereabouts.

The special season for deer, which permits hunters to kill bucks, having three-inch horns, in Ulster, Sullivan, and parts of Orange County, opens to-day, and lasts until Nov. 15.

In New Jersey hunting for bucks is permitted, beginning to-day and closing on Nov. 5. It is also the opening day for rabbit, squirrel, quail, ruffed grouse, wild turkey, and ducks.

On Long Island the first day of November permits the hunting of quail, pheasants, (male only,) grouse, and black and gray squirrel.

BOXING COMMISSION MEETS.

Minor complaints formed the bulk of the work which took up the time of the Boxing Commission yesterday and there was a marked dearth of anything of a particularly exciting nature. Several of the clubs asked for the punishment of some boxers who will be haled before the Commission at its next session.

Alex. Brown, acting for the Royale A. C. of Brooklyn, charged Battling Mantell with breaking his contract to fight there Wednesday night, and the Battler's excuse was that he had a contest on in Buffalo for to-morrow night, at which he could get more money. He, therefore, refused to entertain Mr. Brown's proposition, and it was inferred at the session yesterday that he would probably be suspended.

The Brooklyn Beach A. C. entered complaints against Marty Brown and Johnny Keyes for their failure to participate in the club's entertainment of Oct. 28. Lewis Goodman is said to be the manager of both fighters, who have been asked to show cause for their refusal to contest.

The case of the Liberal A. C. of Staten Island which is said to be without a bond to warrant a license being given them was laid over for a week.

Jim Stewart Nearly Knocked Out.

O'Neale Wins Columbia Singles.

James S. O'Neale, Jr., '14, won the Columbia University lawn tennis championship yesterday by defeating F. H. Conger on the South Field courts by 6—1, 6—2, 5—7, 5—7, 6—1. Conger was Captain of the Williams College team last season, and is a freshman in the Columbia Law School. He failed to lose a single set in the preliminary rounds, and was the favorite over O'Neale, who had been less final.

DISGUISED GOLFER MAY BE W. H. HORNE

Man Acquainted with Most Foreign Players Believes He Has Identified Him.

Visitors to the public links at Van Cortlandt Park yesterday, among whom was one man acquainted with most of the foreign golfers, threw a bombshell into the camp of the mysterious player who has been frequenting that course for the last few days with his face daubed up with grease paint and wearing a false mustache. It was declared that the stranger was W. H. Horne of Chertsey, England, and the aforementioned man of foreign acquaintance was quite positive in his identification, for he declared that none of the better known group of players have his physique. Horne is a long driver, which forms his chief claim to golfing fame. In fact, Horne is said to have driven the longest ball ever known. The remainder of his game, however, is declared ordinary.

At any rate, two prominent professional golfers have declared themselves ready to tackle the stranger for dollars or marbles, particularly the former, in amount up to and including $1,000. One of these is Alec Smith of Wykagyl, formerly the holder of both the National and Metropolitan open titles. Smith stipulates that the contest is to be a home and home affair, which means that half of the match is to be played at Wykagyl and the remainder at some course near by of the stranger's selection.

It was in the course of a four-ball match at Wykagyl yesterday in which S. A. Cunningham, an Englewood amateur, and Smith were playing against Jack Hobens, the Englewood professional and former Metropolitan open champion, and George Austin, another of the New Jersey organization, that the mysterious one was discussed. Smith quickly made known his willingness to play the invader, and there were those in the party who expressed the desire to back Hobens against the man with the painted face.

These facts were made known to the people who are looking after the interests of the stranger, but somewhat contrary to the announcement that their man would play for large stakes, and bet considerable money that he could break the record of any course over which he played, these men stated that the invader might not engage in any matches while here, nor did they appear keen for any of the Smith or Hobens game.

It was also reported that the visitor had tried to arrange a series of matches with John J. McDermott of Atlantic City, the present holder of the American open title, and that McDermott had given evasive answers, which is not at all like the champion.

The mysterious player has given little opportunity for an observer to get a line on his ability, for he rarely takes the trouble to hole out on the green. After his drive, which is generally long, he makes an approach shot and sometimes takes a putt, but if the ball does not happen to run down he picks it up and proceeds to the next tee. Incidentally, it is said on good authority that the stranger has not come anywhere near equaling the 66 made by Elmer W. Loving over this course recently, let alone establishing a new record, which would seem to indicate that records are not as easily broken as at first supposed from the tone of the visitor's backers.

Two More Women's Tourneys.

Announcement was made last night by the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association that there would be two more one-day tournaments before the season would be declared closed. The first will be held over the links of the Nassau Country Club at Glen Cove on Thursday, Nov. 7, while the second is scheduled for the Salisbury links, near Garden City, for Monday, Nov. 11.

Game Shipments from Maine.

New York sportsmen who have visited Maine for big game are having no trouble in getting their quota of deer, as the following reports of game shipments show: From Rangeley—C. Z. Southard, Brooklyn, N. Y., 1 doe; F. B. Burdge, North Asbury Park, N. J., 4 partridges, 1 doe; Miss Nan E. Muser, New York, 5 partridges; Richard Muser, New York, 3 partridges; Edward J. Schwall, Brooklyn, N. Y., 1 doe. From Bigelow—H. L. Jones, New York, 1 doe.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1912.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH.

Mr. ROOSEVELT at Madison Square Garden may be pardoned for losing his sense of perspective. It has never, at best, been very keen or clear. Standing before a vast and excited audience, pleading at the close of a strenuous campaign for the "cause" of which he is not merely the leader but the embodiment and the substance, it was natural that the cause and his relation to it should loom large. And speaking, as he did necessarily, under the strain of the physical crisis through which he has been passing, it was hardly to be expected that he would perceive or respect the true and actual situation that confronts him. When he cast his glance backward on the history of the great office he has held, and to which he now again aspires, he could find no figures worthy of attention save those of LINCOLN and WASHINGTON, and beyond these his rapt vision extended to the Mount from which the Sermon was spoken and to Sinai. To the great mass of Americans, absorbed in their daily business, of which once in four years the choice of a President is a part, all this seems exaggerated, or contorted, or simply queer, but it is easy to see how to Mr. ROOSEVELT and his immediate followers it may seem real and important.

If Mr. ROOSEVELT's emphatic statement of his cause is at all accurate, it must be that there is somewhere in our happy land a party contending for injustice and for privilege, for unrighteousness and dishonor, a party striving to impose poverty and hardship and suffering on men and on women and children. We know of none. We do know of a party whose policy, in our judgment, indirectly led to a certain measure of these evils through a tariff that gave favors to a few and burdened the many. We do not believe that the mass of that party desired this result or that more than a small number even of its managers would willingly have brought it about. In any case, it is worth noting that of that party Mr. ROOSEVELT was the official chief for seven years, that he did nothing to change its policy and that he profited richly politically by his subservient attitude toward the beneficiaries of the policy. These facts must and will be borne in mind by cool-headed and fair-minded voters to whom he addresses his passionate appeal. They do not prove him a hypocrite, but they tend to show that in difficult places he has not been able to live up to the standards he professes, and they impair confidence in his claim to be the one great leader of the one righteous cause involved in the election of Tuesday.

THE COURT OF APPEALS.

The Judiciary Committee of the State Bar Association recommends the election as Justices of the Court of Appeals of EMORY A. CHASE and FRANK H. HISCOCK. Both are Republican candidates for these important positions, and both have been serving as Associate Judges of the Court of Appeals by designation of the Governor. The Bar Association holds that to deprive the State of the benefit of their long judicial experience and their demonstrated fitness, and to select in their stead candidates who are entirely devoid of such experience, would be lamentable, and it would also constitute a departure from the practice which has been satisfactorily pursued in this State for thirty years.

The Republican and Democratic Parties have hitherto united in the furtherance of this policy, and joined in the re-election of Judges ANDREWS, RAPALLO, EARL, GRAY, O'BRIEN, HAIGHT, VANN, EDWARD T. BARTLETT, WILLARD BARTLETT, CULLEN, and WERNER, six of whom were Democrats and five Republicans. Only the Republican Convention adhered to the practice this year. The other conventions nominated men who have never occupied any judicial positions. The fitness of Judges CHASE and HISCOCK is not questioned. The voter must decide for himself this and all questions presented to him when he receives his ballot. But in the judgment of the New York State Bar Association, and upward of thirty county Bar Associations, these well-tried men of ripe judgment should be elected to the Court of Appeals, and it is a judgment with which all citizens who believe that the judiciary should not be controlled by party politics will be likely to agree.

THE MAYOR AND THE WOLVES.

Mayor GAYNOR's address at the Central Baptist Church on the police situation should be reassuring. The Mayor is clearly alive to some deficiencies in the Police Department other than the alleged tendency of policemen, which he has so often deplored, to interfere with the rights of private citizens. The Mayor assumes that there is a general demand for the removal of Commissioner WALDO. We have heard, to be sure, some people say that Mr. WALDO would not be likely to hold his position long, but they did not express the belief that a great reform would be secured by a mere change of Commissioners. Nobody believes that Mr. WALDO is responsible for the obvious corruption in the department. Nobody wants to see Mr. WALDO "thrown to the wolves." Nobody wants to see Mr. GAYNOR, as an alternative, jump out of the sleigh to be devoured himself by rapacious beasts. But the whole community is eager for a prompt and complete reform of the Police Department.

This we now have reason to hope for, because the Mayor admits that there are "a few great scoundrels," on the force. He knows they are there, and he knows who they are. Obviously, therefore, relief is at hand. The "few great scoundrels" are to be removed and good men put in their places. It is not pleasant to know that the Mayor thinks it would be difficult to pick out two good men for Inspectorships from the list of Captains. That condition of affairs in the department should not be tolerated, will not much longer be tolerated by the public. But it is not desirable, not the best thing for the community, that the Mayor should be held personally responsible for the picking out of Inspectors. With a strong, zealous, thoroughly competent Commissioner in full control, and sure of holding his office as long as he deserved to hold it, the Police Department would soon be bettered, and the alarm and distrust of the citizens allayed.

DIVIDENDS AND INVESTMENTS.

This month's disbursements of profits and interest are of the familiar sort which has so long baffled if not enraged the pessimists. The aggregate of November payments is $13,325,804 above last year. The slight reaction of last year has been more than made up, and for the eleven months the total of interest and dividends this year is $23,000,000 in excess of 1910. The fires of prosperity will be long in dying so long as fed with fuel of that sort. A sure sign of that is the vigor of current financing. For October the issue of new securities is $135,373,000 above last year, and for the eleven months the increase is $434,168,000. Considering the talk about the tightness of money it would seem that there is considerable loose change lying about available to those who are willing to offer in exchange what people want. And analysis of the figures shows what the people want and why they want it. The November dividends increased from $38,999,471 to $44,725,275, but the contribution of the railways was an increase only from $12,998,568 to $13,467,567. It would appear that the greater proportion of profits go to the industrials and utilities. And it would further appear that investors have remarked the greater richness of this class of securities, and have indicated their preference for those promising greatest returns to those financing them. Thus the bond issues of the railways for October actually decreased by $2,594,000, and their total issues of bonds, stocks, and notes reached only $14,247,000. Industrials were able to issue an increase of all sorts to a total of $121,126,000. This is so far from being a novelty that for the ten months of the year the output of railway securities decreased $53,345,100, while the output of all classes of industrial securities increased no less than $487,513,650. It is particularly worth notice that the output of railway bonds this year has decreased by $148,773,400, and that there are now approaching maturity several hundred millions of short term railway securities put out because of inability to issue bonds on terms within the capacity of the roads to see a profit by the operation.

Nevertheless, it cannot be said that the railways are suffering because the industrials are doing even better than they. The net earnings of the railways have shown some decrease, but not enough to have prevented eight railways from increasing their dividends. This fact is not altered by the other fact that sixteen industrials also have increased their dividends. If the utilities be added, the year has witnessed an increase of fifty-two dividends, the railways contributing almost one-sixth. The thing to be noted is not the adversity of the railways, but the disturbance of the accustomed balance of profits among investment securities. This is the better worth remark because it has extended over a term of years all unsuspected until disclosed by a recent analysis of the census. Between 1900 and 1910 the capital values of agriculture and manufacturing industries doubled in round numbers, but the cost of railways and equipments increased only from $10,263,313,400 to $14,387,816,099. During the decade the capital values of manufactures increased 105 per cent., and in 1910 the percentage of net return was 12 per cent. The cost of railways and equipment increased in the same decade 40 per cent., and the net return was 5.7 per cent. It appears that the rate of profit is falling in both cases. In 1900 the profit on manufactures was four times as great as on railways, and in 1910 it was over twice as great. The supply of railway facilities has decreased with the decrease of profits, and there is now a deficiency because the country is unwilling to pay for a full supply.

Happily it is not a comparison of adversities but of profits. Transportation interests must profit with the general profit, and the railways would be worse off if the other industries languished. It may even be said that the difficulties of the railways in their financing may be reduced by the prosperity of the allied industries. The equipment companies, for example, may issue their securities to the investors who want them, and then the equipment companies may accept the railway securities to facilitate their own sales of their products. It is a roundabout method, and the railways may have to stand a shave, but it is better than inability to finance themselves as indicated on the above figures.

CUBA.

The Presidential elections will be held in Cuba to-day. The contest will be between Gen. MARIO MENOCAL, the Conservative candidate, who is supported by many Liberals, and Dr. ALFREDO ZAYAS, who has been connected with the Gomez Administration as Vice President. There has been enough pre-election violence in Cuba lately to stir up a great deal of heedless talk in this country about intervention. On the eve of the election, however, there seemed to be no reason to justify this kind of talk. Havana, to be sure, is more or less under military control. Martial law has not been declared, but soldiers are on guard everywhere, and will protect all the polling places. The adherents of ZAYAS assert that these provisions have been made by the Government in the interest of the adherents of MENOCAL. Facts to support these statements are lacking. ZAYAS, to be sure, has not been held responsible for any of the innumerable iniquities charged against the Administration of GOMEZ. He is believed to be personally upright and desirous of the welfare of his country. But a complete change would be effected by the election of Gen. MENOCAL, whose supporters insist that he is the better qualified for the high office, and from whom efficient and economical government is expected.

It is the custom in Cuba for the citizens to carry arms in times of great political excitement. Many of the voters will carry weapons to the polls to-day. It is an unfortunate custom, and it may lead to serious trouble, but with all precautions made to prevent rioting, and all needful preparations for a full and fair expression of the public will at the polls, we are justified in hoping for the best. There is no doubt that Washington is alert to the situation, but there is nothing now in sight to justify serious apprehension.

CO-OPERATION BETWEEN PORTS.

The Commissioner of Docks has summoned a conference of the dock authorities of several cities for consultation regarding common action for the facilitation of the movement of freight. This is a distinct advance over the idea that materials in process of manufacture, or goods in process of consumption, move to any single destination and stop. The movements of modern commerce almost defy tracing. Cotton, for example, is both imported and exported, and the cloth which is worn here is oftentimes made of fibre which has crossed the ocean twice. It follows that the development of any one terminal is only part of the problem of intercommunication which can be solved completely only by interlacings as complex as the movements of trade.

Not only should export and import terminals be in easy communication in the ordinary sense. There is a process of export and import between domestic centres, as well as between foreign and domestic centres, and there are few places where the process of interchange between inward and outward freight is what it should be. Where it is defective the cost of communication between terminals may be as large as the cost of transportation over hundreds of miles, so cheap is the railway haul when once the goods are placed on the right rails.

As Mr. TOMKINS says, "Port organization is a comparatively new science, "and the interdependence of ports is "only beginning to be appreciated. The "facilities of a port in many instances "may advantageously be planned with "relation to terminals elsewhere." Quite so, and his initiative for consultations to that end will have the merit of advancing that purpose without necessitating any bond issue or extraordinary expense. The expense of thought is small compared with the expense of not thinking. No efficiency engineer would think of working out a plan in the metal without the aid of draughtsmen. Blundering and selfishness have been the motives of the development of our port facilities hitherto. It is not necessary to allege bad intent to make out a case for action with more intelligence and public spirit.

HATPINS AND SUFFRAGE.

The evil influence of the warlike women of Great Britain has extended to its antipodean colonies. Dispatches from Sydney, New South Wales, say that sixty militant women of that city have gone to jail rather than pay the moderate fines imposed upon them for wearing murderous weapons in their hats. They declare that the law prohibiting protruding hatpins is "iniquitous and unnecessary legislation," and they will not submit to it. What is more, if they are kept in jail long, they will starve themselves to death, So there, now!

Pausing merely to express a regret that some of the women who wear sharp pins protruding from their headgear in our crowded public conveyances cannot be sent to jail, (if they were, we should not bother a bit about their opinions of the law,) we must point out that these lawbreakers of Australia have adopted their idea of truly womanly conduct, and derived their ideas of man's laws, from their militant sisters of London. If the British authorities had dealt summarily and forcefully with the window smashers and assailants of Premiers and other defenseless men, Sydney would have had no trouble in banishing the hatpin.

In the circumstances, we must wait to see what Sydney will do with the hunger strikers. If the hatpin women are to be released from jail simply because they refuse to eat, the law against hatpins may as well be repealed. If Great Britain releases its imprisoned female malcontents as soon as they show signs of starvation, it would be better to adopt a woman suffrage law at once, and secure a semblance of peace.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Problem for the Freudists.

Many more important letters have been printed on this page than that from "Perplexed," which appears on it to-day, but those which possessed more, or a more curious, interest have certainly not been many.

The writer of the letter presents with a lucidity and in a detail which shows how carefully she has considered her own case—and her carefulness is itself highly significant—the picture of a psychosis that might, following a now prevailing fashion of nomenclature, be called anthropophobia. She is afraid of men, just as some other people have an obsessing fear of open or closed places, of heights, or of particular substances. She is not afraid of them, and does not hate them, in the abstract; it is only the concrete or individual man that excites in her disquietude so strong as to transmute itself into positive fear and dislike.

To find a plausible explanation for this strange phenomenon one must go far—much further, for example, than a statement that the woman differs from other women merely in that she presents in an exaggerated form a normal peculiarity of her sex, or that she is the victim of excessive self-consciousness. These are true statements, but they are also only restatements of the original problem in varied terms. Such restatements are not explanations, though they pass for them with lamentable frequency, sometimes even in scientific circles. A real explanation, one, that is, which would explain the exaggeration and excess, would promptly be attempted by FREUD or any of his followers.

They would start with the assumption that this woman is suffering from a "psychic trauma," a soul-wound, received in early childhood, and they would set about discovering what it was by their process of psycho-analysis. That early experience once found, brought up into consciousness, and reduced to its true dimensions by frank discussion, they would expect a speedy and more or less nearly complete return to normality. Their expectation is justified by the frequency with which they have conquered in this way just such obsessions and phobias. Every one of these, according to their theories, is the result of a suppressed and often forgotten emotion, the result of a painful or abhorrent experience, that acts in the mind exactly as would a foreign body in the brain, and produces a constant irritation until it is removed.

Speculated Before He Died.

In a will filed here this week with the appraisal of an estate in the Transfer Tax Office there is a paragraph of a most unusual sort. In it the testator was at some pains to tell the reasons why he expected to accumulate something of a fortune before the time came for dividing his property among his heirs. "I now," he wrote, "have some money "(thousands of dollars) ahead. I owe "no debts whatever, nor are there any "claims against me. I owe no bills, but "pay cash for all my purchases. I "neither speculate nor gamble, even in "the smallest way. It is therefore more "than possible that, unless some unfore-"seen misfortune overtakes me, I will "leave a little something when I die."

He did—he left just $18,052, and, as fortunes go nowadays, "a little something" is an accurate description of that amount. From the executor's report it appears that the man who made the will exaggerated slightly when he said he paid cash for everything, but his debts were no larger and no more numerous than would inevitably be contracted by any except the most fanatical of followers of that much-commended but inconvenient and not always economical system. The debts are so few and small that they do not convict him of serious inconsistency.

One notices, however, that among the securities listed as forming part of the estate were fifty shares in an oil company, and 1,000 in a silver mine—both worthless, according to the appraiser. From that the conclusion must be drawn that the habit and resolution not to gamble and speculate "even in the smallest way" expired before the prophetic and self-congratulatory testator went the dark road. Perhaps, like most other people, he was able to convince himself that the purchase of those shares was investment, not speculation. Most of us can do that, now and then.

But why, being so hopeful—and therefore by necessary implication so desirous—of leaving a little something when he died, did this worthy person vaunt himself on abstention from what was undoubtedly the most promising means of making others admit that he had gained his end? Fortunes worthy of the name are made, not saved, and they are usually made by activities that are more or less speculative, that involve a taking of some chances. There is a wise as well as a foolish taking of chances. Caution is often another name for cowardice, and this is a world that reserves most of its rewards for courage.

WOMAN FEARS MEN

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This is addressed to your men readers who so thoroughly understand women. Can you, with your remarkable penetration, explain the following phenomenon?

If I see you approaching me on the street I invariably go out of my way to avoid meeting you. I never attend a social function of any kind for fear you will be present. The very thought of entering a room full of you makes me quake. It is a trial to go to church, because I run the risk of meeting you on the way out. My heart beats almost to suffocation when the doorbell rings, for fear you have come to call. If the telephone bell rings I leave it for some one else to answer, for fear you are at the other end of the wire. I never see you but what I want to run. If I cannot avoid meeting you, I feel my face stiffening up at your approach, just as if I were in a photographer's chair; I am tongue-tied in your presence, and am glad when you pass on. It is not that I fear you, but I do not enjoy your society. I am ill at ease with you and cannot think of anything to say to you. My anxiety to have you go banishes every other thought from my mind. I have had this peculiar malady all my life. When I was a child I cried if you spoke to me. If there was a tree handy I always climbed up into it when I saw you coming. I never went to parties for fear you would kiss me, and I always missed my lessons at school if you looked at me while I was reciting.

And yet I enjoy reading about you. You interest me greatly in a book. I enjoy a sense of comradeship with you that is wholly impossible outside the cover. Am always falling in love with you, if you are the hero, and if you happen to be an Indian in war paint and feathers I am completely subjugated.

Very rarely, about once a year, I am seized with a strange longing for your companionship, but your appearance always puts it to flight.

My family, and relatives on both sides of the house, are very fond of you. They always enjoy you, and nearly all of them have married you. So it cannot be a case of heredity. You never have harmed me in any way, and have always treated me as courteously as distance would permit, so I am at a loss to understand just what the trouble is. Can you enlighten me?

PERPLEXED.

NEW YORK'S WATERFRONT

Must Be Greatly Improved or Trade Will Go Elsewhere.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Edward Hatch in his recent letter to THE TIMES touched one of New York's sorest spots. We are not making the most of our natural advantages.

Our great barge canal is now nearly completed: it will send to New York a vast amount of trade. The opening of the Panama Canal will also stimulate shipping business.

If New York is to profit from these impulses it must begin a logical and comprehensive improvement of its water frontage. Mr. E. E. Olcott has expressed the opinion that New York cannot lose its present position as a port, because the big ships of the transatlantic trade cannot go elsewhere to find an American port. He is entirely wrong, for even if we do not lose the large ships we shall continue to lose, as we have in the past, great amounts of export and import trade.

The South Brooklyn water fronts and the New Jersey water fronts must be improved. The North and the East River docks must be lengthened and bettered. To accomplish these things there must be organized effort on the part of New York's business men.

Other cities are awakening to the importance of the present situation. Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Newport News, and all of the gulf ports, as well as the ports of the Pacific Ocean, are making ready for the increase of trade that will come with the opening of the Panama Canal. It is high time that New York took hold of this matter in earnest.

ITALIANS FOR WILSON.

No Truth in Charge That Foreign Voters Oppose Him.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is difficult to imagine anything more ridiculous than the conviction apparently prevailing in certain political quarters that the foreign vote is solidly arrayed against Woodrow Wilson. As a matter of fact, foreign-born citizens are about as much divided in their political views as the American-born, and each party will surely get some of their support.

The hue and cry against Wilson is artificial, raised and fed principally by Republicans and Bull Moosers and by men and newspapers allied to those parties. But they forget that naturalized citizens are not easily moved by campaign humbug.

For instance, it has been freely asserted that the Italian vote is practically lost to the Democratic Presidential candidate. Nothing could be further from the truth, and after careful observation I am fully convinced that Woodrow Wilson will receive more Italo-American votes than any Democratic candidate for President ever did heretofore. The Italians, as other citizens, are getting on to the kind of prosperity the average man gets through high tariffs, through the trusts, and the high cost of living, and they will not be swayed from the main issue by false alarms or by false promises.

ITALO-AMERICAN.

A National Health Bureau.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A recent news item in THE TIMES stated that Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture had offered $50 reward for information as to any existing case of dourine, a certain contagious disease affecting horses. This illustrates the Government's attitude toward the health of animals. Any person may write to the Department of Agriculture in search of information about diseases affecting hogs or chickens, and all the available scientific data is placed at his disposal.

But there is no National department or central bureau of information where one may be enlightened in regard to the health and disease of the human body. It is to collect, conserve and propagate such information, as well as to encourage and supervise the study of medical and public health problems, that a National Department of Health is being urged by so many eminent authorities.

School Fads a-Plenty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I presume to differ with you just a little when you say, apropos of electrified schoolrooms, "that experiments in this city are curiously rare"? Certainly, from my conversations with many teachers, and, for that matter, from the letters published in your own columns, it would appear that "new devices" in school work are by no means rare. The only criticism seems to be that they are always reported favorably.

Would it not have been a most tremendous joke had the new electrical device attributed to Arrhenius been tried by the use of the $10,000 said to have been promised by a rich gentleman, (maybe Mr. Finnegan,) and reported favorably, using the Swedish scientist's words as a basis, only to have the theory later exploded by Arrhenius himself? But certainly we have "new devices" and to spare.

New York, Oct. 30, 1912. EDUCATOR.

Turkey's Jewish Grand Vizier.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The wild fanaticism and mediaeval bigotry (?) of the Turkish nation are sufficiently demonstrated by its most recent reorganization of its Cabinet, when Kiamil Pasha, a scion of the Jewish race, was made Grand Vizier and Nuradunghian Pasha, an Armenian, was appointed to the post of Foreign Minister. Can any nation, European or Asiatic, show such an example?

DIED WHILE IN OFFICE.

Seven Vice Presidents and Five Presidents Are Chronicled.

Five Presidents of the United States died when they were in office—William Henry Harrison, April 4, 1841, of bilious pleurisy; Zachary Taylor, July 9, 1850, of bilious fever; Abraham Lincoln, April 15, 1865; James A. Garfield, Sept. 19, 1881, and William McKinley, Sept. 14, 1901. The last three named were murdered.

Seven Vice Presidents have died in office, and all of them from natural causes—George Clinton of New York, April 20, 1812; Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts, Nov. 23, 1814; William R. King of Alabama, April 18, 1853; Henry Wilson of Massachusetts, Nov. 22, 1875; Thomas A. Hendricks of Indiana, Nov. 25, 1885; Garret A. Hobart of New Jersey, Nov. 21, 1899, and James S. Sherman of New York, who has just passed away.

When he died Clinton was 73 years of age, Gerry was 70, King was 67, Wilson was 63, Hendricks was 66, Hobart was 55, and Sherman had just passed his 57th birthday. With the exception of Hendricks, who was of Scotch-Irish, which is very much the same thing as being Scotch origin, they were all of English parentage. They were all also of many high and no mean qualities so far as the men who have written about them since their death have observed, and each of them did his part well while he was among the living just as he is highly respected now that he has joined the dead.

John C. Calhoun of South Carolina, who served as Vice President during the Administration of John Quincy Adams, 1825-'29, was re-elected in 1828 as the running mate of Andrew Jackson, also of South Carolina originally, but elected from Tennessee, but could not stand the company he would have been compelled to keep and resigned his office in 1832.

John Tyler of Virginia succeeded William Henry Harrison in 1841; Millard Fillmore succeeded Zachary Taylor in 1850; Andrew Johnson succeeded Abraham Lincoln in 1865; Chester A. Arthur succeeded Garfield in 1881, and Theodore Roosevelt succeeded William McKinley in 1901.

A censorious generation, given to the art of saying "smart things," is addicted to the very stupid habit of speaking with impatience, if not contempt, of the office of Vice President, and its incumbent. It is the second highest office in the Executive Department of the Government, and experience has proved that the people have not been mistaken in the men chosen by them to fill this high place, every Vice President who has through misfortune or crime been compelled to assume the chief place of executive responsibility having discharged the duties of the office of President with advantage to the country. The death of Vice President Sherman and the kindly things that have been said about him by press and public men since the news of his departure was received, prove among other things how many idle words are spoken in time of great political stress.

There was George Clinton of New York, who was Vice President with Thomas Jefferson from March 4, 1805, to March 4, 1809, and with James Madison from March 4, 1809, to April 20, 1812, when he died with about one year of his second term in this office to serve. Clinton was a man of the highest character and of long and varied experience in the public service. A lawyer by profession, skilled in the art of war, gifted with the temper of true statesmanship, a member of the Provincial Assemblies and Constitutional Conventions of his State, a fighter of the Indians when they were menacing the life of the people in this colony, a General under Washington in the war for American independence, President of the State Convention called to ratify the Federal Constitution, which he opposed, "believing that too much power would thereby pass to the Federal Congress and the Executive"; elected Governor of his State several terms, and in 1804 elected Vice President with Jefferson and again Vice President with Madison, he proved in every capacity not only his ability to do things, but in all his acts he preserved the right of private judgment.

⁂

Then there was Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts, who died while holding the office of Vice President. He was a graduate of Harvard, and made a most excellent start in statesmanship when in his thesis, submitted for the M. A. degree, discussing the right of the people to evade ruinous innovations in trade and revenue laws, he expressed his views on the principles of the Stamp Act and other offensive measures enacted by the British Government for the oppression of the people in the Colonies. That was in the very early days, when Gerry was working out for the country and by himself, with rare good sense, some of the initial problems with which the beginners had to deal. It was he who, by his bill in 1775 providing for the fitting out of privateers, took the first step toward the organization of the United States Navy. It was he who employed his eminent talents as a merchant and man of affairs to devise means for the feeding and care of the Continental forces; it was he as a member of the United States Senate and Chairman of the Treasury Committee who found it necessary to investigate the accounts of Benedict Arnold, the first of American traitors, and it was he who, sensitive of his rights as a representative of a sovereign State, resigned his seat in Congress rather than submit to the enactment of laws or the adoption of policies which would weaken the status of the States in this Federation of equal political units. And many other necessary things he did for the Republic just blossoming into life.

⁂

The third of the Vice Presidents to die in office was William R. King of Alabama, who was a man of large experience in legislative and diplomatic work, but who died before he could enter upon the duties of this office, for which he had proved by his service in the Senate and as President pro tem. of that body his special fitness.

⁂

Henry Wilson of Massachusetts, who changed his name by legislative act from Jeremiah Jones Colbrath to Henry Wilson, because it was shorter and more easily pronounced, was Vice President with Grant. He did not last long after his elevation to this office; but he proved by long service his ability and his force of character. He was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth, but from his infancy up he had a hard struggle in making his way. With only twelve months' schooling in eleven years he yet during this time packed his head with useful and valuable knowledge, and the farm lad became the "Natick Cobbler" and afterward Vice President, in which office he distinguished himself by his adherence to what he regarded as sound principle. The story of his life and achievements reads like a fairy story.

⁂

Then there was Thomas A. Hendricks of Indiana, twice elected Vice President, first with Samuel J. Tilden and afterward with Grover Cleveland, and whose whole life was filled with worthy achievements; then there was Garret A. Hobart of New Jersey, a lawyer by profession, a successful politician and a man of affairs, and finally there was James S. Sherman, the tributes to whose virtues are filling pages of contemporary comment.

There was not one among these Vice Presidents, whatever our feeling toward them on account of their political affiliations and sectional prejudices, who was not worthy of the office and who would not have been able had the call come to fill the higher office waiting for him in case of death or accident. It would be well for the ill-informed to read the "Lives of the Vice Presidents," of whom it may be said in truth that they are at least the second best men in the country.

SENTENCE OF BECKER.

Director Howe Exclaims Against the Death Penalty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As I passed along the streets yesterday I was confronted at every step by head lines in the papers and calls of the newsboys—"Becker Sentenced to the Death Chair!" To-day this was repeated. Some months hence the press probably will carry the details of the death watch, the last night, the preliminaries of the execution, and the gruesome particulars of the death chair. All over America the press will carry the same head lines, the same awful details.

A score of times there will be flashed into the minds of 90,000,000 people the fact that the life of a human being is being taken by the deliberate act of society itself—officially and with deliberation carried through to the end.

The reaction of this fact on me is probably the reaction on 90,000,000 people, and I have been depressed and horrified at the thought that I, along with others, am a human executioner! I cannot push the thought from my mind. I cannot escape it.

Will this taking of one life by all of us to expiate another, do me any possible good? Will it do any body any good? Does not every capital punishment exact from all of us a price we cannot measure, a price that far transcends any possible social protection or good that could come from the death penalty? Does it not involve an imperceptible loss to the best that is in us; is not civilization halted every time the death penalty is exacted; is not the evolution of goodness, of kindness, of the best that is in the world checked by the awakening of a sense of revenge, the desire for expiation, and a morbid interest in the gruesome details of the death penalty? Ought we not to take account of the unseen cost of it all and think in larger terms than that of retribution or revenge?

Does the death penalty check crime? Many students say that every conviction is followed by a repetition of the same kind of crime. Some contend, from comparative studies in States which have abolished and States which maintain capital punishment, that crime has been diminished by the abolition of the death penalty. At least, the difference is so slight that statistical demonstration weighs practically even in the balance.

Students of the subject all say that the gruesome details of crime incite to crime. I believe that the psychological reaction of the death penalty, of the execution, awakens a latent tendency in the minds of unbalanced people to the commission of capital offenses, just as it is alleged the dime novel and the presentation of criminal deeds awaken children to criminal tendencies.

This is all aside from the fact that "twelve good men and true" may make a mistake. They may execute an innocent man. That is an added price and a terrible price for capital punishment. Men are sometimes sent to the chair because of the hue and cry of public opinion, just as accused horse thieves in the West were hanged by vigilance committees with very little concern about their innocence or guilt.

In addition, how can twelve business men judge of the influences that lie back of crime, those of birth, environment, suffering? And it is generally admitted that it is environment, social conditions, rather than individual depravity, that creates crime.

I know of no religion, Christian, Mussulman, or Oriental, whose God demands the exaction of human life in punishment; I know of no great thinker whose mind is not horrified at the thought of society calmly, deliberately, officially exacting such retribution. I know of no great thinker on the subject that does not urge the abolition of capital punishment. I know of no social psychologist that is not appalled at the mental and moral effect upon the whole people of the deliberate taking of life by society for the expiation of crime.

Is it not time that we abolished capital punishment if only to protect ourselves? Not so much from the commission of crime, but from the unseen, unmeasured reaction upon all of us; a reaction so intangible that we cannot trace it, but whose cost when repeated over and over again in the minds of a whole people is immeasurably more costly than any conceivable gain that can come from the retention of an institution which had its origin with the cave men, when vengeance was the universal law of life.

Americans in Canada.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The occupation of much of the Canadian Northwest by great numbers of Americans may cause history to repeat itself. When the English entered the Boer republics in large numbers the doctrine was soon announced that the land should belong to the nation of the invaders, and at a cost which staggered humanity the doctrine was made effective ten years ago.

May some such denouement be looked for in Western Canada? Is Great Britain committed irrevocably to the doctrine, or is it only when it suits?

SONG OF THE MODERN GREEKS.

Copyright, The Century Company.

[Paraphrase of the Greek National Song now being sung in the original by the Greeks as they advance to the north. Any Greek can sing these lines to the original music.]

Liberty, beloved of Hellas,
Lend us once again thy sword;
Turn thy glorious eyes that tell us
Thou art still to be adored.

Salamis and Marathon,
Till each corse that called thee lover
Rise with thee to lead us on.

Slumbered Hellas long in sadness,
Waiting thee to call her forth;
Hushed the very cradle's gladness
By the tyrant of the North.

Long she dwelt with buried heroes
In the fame of other years;
But against a horde of Neros
What availed or pride or tears?

Then at last thy summons called us,
And as one we followed thee,
Till the rusted chains that thralled us
Fell, and Greece once more was free.

Ah! but while our kin are weeping
Over sea and over land,
Let us not again be sleeping,
Wake us with thy warning hand.

Though the Moslem swarm to slay us,
Though false friends, within, without—
Kings or cowards—shall betray us,
If thou lead us, who shall doubt?

Greece's blood made many an altar
For the nations then unborn;
Will they with her peril palter—
Give her gratitude, or scorn?

Oh! could Earth and Time assemble
All thy legions, Liberty,
At their tread the world would tremble
With the passion to be free.

ROBERT UNDERWOOD JOHNSON.

GREETED UNDER ROSE BOWER

WILMINGTON, N. C., Oct. 31.—The wedding of Miss Sadie Green Jones, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Jones, and John Russell Pope, the architect of New York City, which took place at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Airlie Chapel on the grounds of the Airlie estate near here, was one of the social events of the year and was attended by society folk from Wilmington, Baltimore, New York and other cities.

The little church, a relic of ante-bellum days when the old and wealthy aristocratic planters of the South living in isolated communities were compelled to have their own house of worship, is situated on a bay of the Atlantic. The great live oaks with their drapery of beautiful moss lend dignity and beauty to the surroundings. The interior of the chapel was entirely covered with Southern smilax with clusters of white chrysanthemums. The altar was profusely decorated with Easter lilies, and there were tall standards of Easter lilies on each pew.

The bride entered on the arm of her father preceded by her two matrons of honor, Mrs. James Wigham of New York, and Mrs. Gordon Wilson of Baltimore. The bride's costume was of rich ivory satin with long court train trimmed with quantities of rare old point de France lace which hung well over the train. The bridal veil was of tulle, and a very simple wreath of orange blossoms worn low on the brow completed the costume. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley. The only jewels worn was a string of pearls, one of her wedding gifts. The matrons of honor were dressed in pale pink chiffon with large picture hats of chiffon and brown fur, and they carried bouquets of roses.

The bridegroom entered from the vestry room, attended by his best man, Phoenix Ingraham of New York, a son of Justice Ingraham of the Supreme Court. The ushers were Lyman Delano of Wilmington and Pembroke Jones, Jr., brother of the bride.

The Rt. Rev. Robert Strange, Bishop of the diocese of East Carolina, performed the ceremony. Bishop Strange officiated at the marriage of the bride's parents. The music was furnished by a New York orchestra consisting of an organ and six string instruments. The programme was composed of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," and selections from Mendelssohn, Grieg, and other great composers.

Following the ceremony, which was attended by less than 100 persons on account of the limited capacity of the chapel, a large reception was given at Airlie, the home of the bride's family. Refreshments were served in the great inclosed tennis court, which was decorated with garlands of Southern myrtle. The house was decorated with palms and chrysanthemums. The bride and bridegroom received under a bower of white roses in a large dining hall and greeted their guests, numbering about 500. The couple received many beautiful wedding presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Pope left on a special train at 6:30 P. M. going South, and upon their return will live in New York City.

Among the New Yorkers at the wedding were Mrs. Arthur Burden, J. W. Harriman, J. B. Harriman, Elisha Dyer, H. F. Eldridge, Lloyd Warren, and Davis Barnes.

H. T. Wills Weds Miss MacDonald.

Henry Tarleton Wills and Miss Flora MacDonald were married in this city yesterday. Miss MacDonald is the daughter of the late Rev. David Ferguson MacDonald of Edinburgh University, and is well known as a musician, particularly in New York and Washington. Mr. Wills is Secretary of the National Tariff Commission Association, and the American Manufacturers' Export Association. For many years he has resided abroad, traveling extensively in all parts of the world. He is an authority on foreign commercial and industrial conditions. Mr. and Mrs. Wills are to reside in New York.

DEBUTANTE'S GAY DANCE.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Smith Give Hallowe'en Party for Daughter Edith.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 31.—Philadelphia society, 500 strong, including almost all the débutantes of this and last season, together with a large representation of out-of-town society, participated in the monster Hallowe'en dance given tonight at the Philadelphia Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. Horace Eugene Smith in honor of their débutante daughter, Miss Edith L. Smith. The costumes, the decorations, the music, and other entertainment combined to make the affair gorgeous.

The vast marquee, which was utilized for dancing, represented a part of the Autumn woods, red and yellow tinted leaves covering the walls. Masks were worn until midnight, when supper was served in the clubhouse proper, which was similarly decorated with Autumn foliage.

The variety of costumes was legion. There were dainty Pierrettes and bearded pirates and ballet girls with swashbuckling courtiers, Buster Browns mingled with Yama-Yama girls, and nymphs and sprites and goblins and ghosts and brownies and dominoes were there in numbers.

The guests were received by Mrs. Smith, Miss Smith, the Baroness von Friesen, formerly Miss Florence Smith of this city, and who came from Germany with the Baron and their son for the affair; Mrs. George D. Fowle, Miss Mary C. Smith, Mrs. F. Percy Smith, Mrs. Daniel L. Hutchinson, Mrs. John H. Easby, Mrs. William Wiederseim, and Mrs. Edmund Jennings Lee.

For those guests who decided not to return to town until late, Mr. Smith provided an old-fashioned breakfast, in which buckwheat cakes, sausages, rolls, and coffee played a prominent part. The music was furnished by an orchestra brought over from New York.

MISS EDGAR WEDS S. E. DAVIS.

The marriage of Stewart Edmundson Davis, the son of Mrs. Edmund Davis of Baltimore, and Miss Agnes Le Roy Edgar, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Edgar, took place yesterday afternoon at the Edgar residence, 28 East Thirty-ninth Street.

The house was simply decorated with palms and white and yellow chrysanthemums. The ceremony took place in the drawing room, and was performed by the Very Rev. William M. Grosvenor, Dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

The bride, who walked with her father to the flower prie dieu, wore a gown of white satin charmeuse trimmed with point lace, and a point lace veil, held with orange blossoms, the gown and point lace worn by her sisters, the Misses Caroline and Julia Edgar, when they married Henry Sanford and Richard H. Williams, Jr., respectively. Her bouquet was made up of lilies of the valley. The bride's sole attendant was Miss Eleanor Le Roy Lawrence, the daughter of Mrs. James J. K. Lawrence, who was in a yellow charmeuse frock and carried yellow orchids.

Mr. Davis was attended by Julian L. Peabody, the son of Charles Peabody, as best man, and the ushers included Lewis Gouverneur Morris, Benjamin B. Moore, Eliott Cross, and Sydney Breese.

The guests asked were few in number, being relatives and a few intimate friends, and there was no reception. Mr. and Mrs. Davis will sail late in November to spend the Winter abroad.

GO SOUTH ON BRIDAL TRIP.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hirschhorn Were Married at Hotel Gotham.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hirschhorn, who were married at the Hotel Gotham on Wednesday afternoon, have gone South for an extended bridal trip. Mrs. Hirschhorn was Mrs. Beatrice Lesem Steele of Chicago, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac H. Lesem, and Mr. Hirschhorn is a retired tobacco merchant of New York.

Only the immediate families attended the ceremony, and the bride was unattended. The Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman of the Temple Emanu-El officiated.

Mr. Hirschhorn and his bride will live at 16 East Fifty-second Street, and will be at home after Dec. 1.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31.—Dr. Maurice Bloomfield, professor of Sanskrit at the Johns Hopkins University, and Mrs. Bloomfield have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Marie Bloomfield to Dr. Alexander De Witt of Detroit, Mich. The date for the wedding has not yet been set. Miss Bloomfield made her debut two seasons ago. She is a niece of the pianiste, Mme. Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler.

Gives Theatre Party for Fiancee.

W. V. Lifsey, General Passenger Agent of the New York Central Railroad, and Miss Dorothea Dumont, daughter of Charles W. Dumont of Northport, L. I., President of the American Law Book Company, will be married to-morrow at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, at noon. Last night Mr. Lifsey gave a theatre party at the New Amsterdam Theatre for his fiance, her father and mother and the wedding attendants, the party occupying two boxes. After the performance of "The Count of Luxembourg" Mr. and Mrs. Dumont were hosts at a supper at the Hotel Knickerbocker.

HENRIQUES—GOLDSMITH.

The marriage is announced of Joshua J. Henriques, a prominent merchant of Panama, and Miss Nellie Goldsmith, daughter of Mrs. Henry Goldsmith of 352 West 118th Street, which took place on Wednesday evening in the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, Seventieth Street and Central Park West. The Rev. Dr. H. P. Mendes officiated, assisted by the Rev. Dr. David de Sola Pool. Mr. Henriques and his bride have gone West on their honeymoon, and will make their home in Panama.

MRS. GERAGHTY FORGIVEN.

Mrs. Amos Tuck French Reconciled with Daughter Who Eloped.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 31.—The long-looked for reconciliation between Mrs. John E. Geraghty, formerly Miss Julia French, who eloped and married Geraghty, a chauffeur, in Centervillage, Connecticut, Aug. 10, 1911, and her mother, Mrs. Amos Tuck French, occurred to-day when Mrs. Geraghty met her mother at the Newport Beach and entered the French automobile, in which was Mrs. Stuyvesant Leroy, grandmother of Mrs. Geraghty. The automobile sped along the country roads toward Middletown, returning to Newport at dusk.

Mr. Geraghty was nowhere in sight. Newport people say that there will be no reconciliation between the family of Mrs. Geraghty and her husband. It was Mrs. French who selected the quarters her daughter will occupy at the Newport Hospital. Some of the beautiful baby clothes at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geraghty were sent by Mrs. French, Mrs. Leroy, and other relatives of the French family, but nothing, so far as can be ascertained, came from Mrs. French Vanderbilt, aunt of Mrs. Geraghty, who searched with other relatives and detectives the night of August 9, last year, in automobiles hoping to run across the eloping Miss French.

It is said that Amos Tuck French set his foot down against any reconciliation and against any one of his family having anything to do with his daughter. But the love of the mother and grandmother seemed too strong to withhold under present conditions.

Mr. and Mrs. Geraghty, after the stork arrives and Mrs. Geraghty is strong enough, will go to Boston to live. Mrs. Geraghty has everything ready for going to the Newport Hospital and her home leaving is set for this week. The brothers of Mrs. Geraghty long since became her allies. Some of the pretty gifts for the baby came from them.

DANCE IN MASKS AT CLUB.

Weird Hallowe'en Decorations at the Dunwoodie Country Club House.

The Misses Beatrice and Alice Castle and Helen Katharine Tower of Washington Heights gave a masquerade dance at the Dunwoodie Country Club of Yonkers last night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Fritz, who have come from Canton, Ohio, where they were recently married, to take up their residence in this city.

Weird Hallowe'en lanterns and a big log fire in one corner of the long hall threw quaint shadows over the decorations of leaves and figures of witches and goblins half hidden in the nooks and crannies of the club rooms. Elaborate costumes were worn by the women, the men being disguised by masks and witches' hats only. Fifty couples were present at the dance. Among the chaperones were Mrs. Walter E. Castle, Mrs. Edward M. C. Tower and Mrs. E. V. Thornall.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

CORREA.—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Home Insurance Company, held Thursday, Oct. 31, 1912, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That in the death of its Director and Vice President, Emanuel H. A. Correa, the Home Insurance Company has lost an able executive, whose distinguished services, unswerving loyalty, courage, and ability have been spent in the advancement and upbuilding of this corporation over a period of thirty-three years.

A man of unusual force of character, an earnest fighter for what he considered the right, yet a worthy opponent who retained the respect and the personal esteem of those with whom he contended. Impulsive and generous to a fault, he was a model of straightforward and single-minded honesty and sincerity, coupled with a firmness which we respected and a gentleness which we loved. We, his associates who knew him best, realize what a lasting monument he has left behind in the memory of those by whom his kind deeds will not be forgotten.

The insurance fraternity has lost a prominent underwriter, at all times a strenuous upholder by speech and action of the best practices in American fire underwriting—a helpful and influential figure in counsel, considerate in victory, buoyant in defeat, a cheerful and agreeable associate and a most loyal comrade. His high ideal of duty and rectitude, and his uniform courtesy, claimed the devoted affection of his many friends.

The members of the board place upon the records their deep sense of personal loss, and direct that a copy of this resolution, properly engrossed, be sent to the family of Mr. Correa with their heartfelt sympathy.

E. G. SNOW, President.
C. L. TYNER, Secretary.

DOMINICK.—Gladys, daughter of Annie S. Dominick, Wednesday, Oct. 30. Funeral private at her home, 37 North 8th Av., Mount Vernon, N. Y., Friday, Nov. 1.

FIELD.—Suddenly, on Oct. 30, 1912, Mary J. Field, daughter of the late Robert M. Field, and Mary M. Clendenen. Funeral services at the residence of her sister, Mrs. William A. Morrison, 379 Jefferson Av., Brooklyn, on Saturday, Nov. 2, at 2 P. M.

GODWIN.—Anna Augusta, wife of Richard J. Godwin, at her residence, Willow Av., Larchmont, N. Y., on Wednesday, Oct. 30. Funeral services at her home Friday, Nov. 1, at 2:30 P. M. Interment private. Kindly omit flowers.

MISS FINLEY GETS LICENSE.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 31.—A marriage license has been issued to Miss Elisabeth Rebecca Finley, daughter of Mrs. Henry H. Finley, of West Fifty-seventh Street, New York City, and Edward R. Thomas of the same city, in Newport. Mr. Thomas gave his age as 39 and his occupation as gentleman. Miss Finley gave her age as 37 and said this was her first marriage.

The license must have been granted to-day, yet no one knew Miss Finley had been in Newport. Certainly nothing was seen of Mr. Thomas, whose wedding may take place at any time here.

Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman, sister of Mr. Thomas, refused to be seen in relation to the subject of her brother's marriage, and Mr. Beeckman stated he had no information to give out.

In accordance with the laws of Rhode Island, Miss Finley has taken out a license at least five days before the ceremony.

Investments For Savings

In the investment of savings the element of safety should be clearly evidenced by the true value of the security, which should be largely in excess of the mortgage debt. To the man with savings the element of safety always should be the first consideration, no matter how great may be the need for a large interest return, or how strong may be the temptation for profit.

The man who keeps uppermost in his mind the element of safety, and who seeks the counsel of a reliable investment banking firm, places himself in a position to take advantage of the present opportunities in the great field of conservative investment.

If you are interested in the conservative investment of your savings, we suggest that you send for our Circular No. 837, "Conservative Investments."

Rebuilding a Metropolis

New York City is the first metropolis in history to be entirely rebuilt within a hundred-year period. Many of the newer buildings are constructed of the famous Indiana sandstone.

We offer, at a price to yield 5.10%, the mortgage bonds of a comparatively large steam railroad system, running out of Chicago, owning an extremely valuable belt line at Bedford, where most of the Indiana sandstone is quarried. Earnings are large, the bonds are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and are a first-class investment.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Show Improvement, Despite Rise in Call Money to 9 Per Cent.

The importance to the market of the more favorable advices, which have been coming to hand the last two days regarding the European political situation, was clearly brought out yesterday by the firmness of the markets here and abroad, in the face of an unexpected increase in the discount rate of the Bank of France to 4 per cent., and of a rise in call money here to 9 per cent., the highest rate of the year and the highest quoted since January, 1910. It is true that the morning's news from the seat of war in Southeastern Europe told of further Balkan successes against the Ottoman forces, which from one point of view was distasteful news to the financial market. On the other hand, the news regarding the position of the great powers in respect to the questions which have been so actively opened up through the successful attack upon Turkey, has led the world to look with increasing confidence to the maintenance of friendly relations among the great powers and to the final solution of the Balkan question in a manner acceptable to both Russia and Austria. With the fear of a disagreement between these two powers very greatly lessened, it, indeed, has not been entirely removed, the markets attached less importance to the immediate course of the armed struggle between the allies and the Turks. The greater confidence which the European markets are now feeling was reflected not only in steadier stock markets abroad, but also in London buying of stock in this market. The Paris settlement fulfilled expectations, in that it revealed that the recent liquidation had paved the way to a more or less uneventful adjustment of accounts. The advance in the Bank of France rate to a figure as high as that established in the 1907 panic, told, of course, of a position in the Paris market similar to that which is prevailing at the moment in most money centres, a position which was revealed in our own market by the great firmness in time money and the sharp advance in call rates.

Dealings on the Stock Exchange were restricted, and though the movement of prices reflected some uncertainty in the minds of traders, the market showed considerable firmness and made a fair net gain on the day's trading. It did not act, however, in entire disregard of the rise in money, for the market eased off when money was rising in the afternoon and closed at some decline from the best figures of the day. What happened in the money market was in keeping with the tendencies which it has long been plain would assert themselves this Fall, but, in addition, special reasons existed for the rise which took place yesterday. These included the final preparations for the interest and dividend disbursements which fall due to-day, and also the gathering in of funds which have been provided for other special requirements, including the paying off of the balance of the Pennsylvania convertible bonds which fall due to-day. This particular transaction may require as much as $10,000,000. The hesitation which some borrowers showed to accept the 6 per cent. renewal rate named in the morning by some of the larger lenders of call funds indicated that the day's position of the money market was not fully realized, and the high rates of the afternoon were in large measure due to the taking of money by those who had failed to provide for their known requirements, in the belief that rates would recede during the day instead of advancing. The indications were that the money market would remain very firm over the end of the week.

The very near approach of Election Day was a factor in shaping the market opinion of the day, but it was mainly reflected in an unwillingness to enter upon fresh engagements, which in turn accounted in part for the considerable decline in the volume of transactions. With the election so near those who felt that its results might become a factor of immediate market influence were disposed to postpone any fresh commitments. The Stock Exchange talked much more than the patent facts of the situation warranted of the possibility of the failure of an election and the throwing of the choice of the next President into the House of Representatives, but the theory was apparently advanced largely by way of making discussion at the close of a campaign, during which the Stock Exchange has had much less reason for speculating concerning the result than in most Presidential contests in the past.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 5½@9 per cent., with the last loan at 8½@9 per cent. Most of the day's loans were made at 5¾ per cent.

Time money rates were 6 per cent. bid for sixty and ninety days, and four months, and 5¾@6 per cent. for five and six months.

The local banks have lost $5,630,000 on their Sub-Treasury operations since Friday.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 5 per cent. for short bills and 4 15-16@5 per cent. for three months' bills; Paris, 3¾ per cent., and Berlin, 4½ per cent. Money was 3¾@4½ per cent. in London and 5½ per cent. for the settlement in Berlin.

The Paris check rate on London was 25 francs 23½ centimes, and the Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 53½ pfennigs.

CABLE AND SIGHT RATES.

London—Cable, $4.8630; demand, $4.8560.

Paris—Cable, 5.18¾; check, 5.19⅜ less 1-32.

Berlin—Cable, 94 11-16; check, 94 9-16.

SIXTY AND NINETY DAY BILLS.

London—Bankers', 60 days, $4.81¼; 90 days, $4.79¼.

London—Commercial, 60 days, $4.81; 90 days, $4.79.

Paris—Commercial, 60 days, 5.23⅝ plus 1-32; 90 days, $5.25 less 1-32.

DOMESTIC EXCHANGE RATES.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Savings Banks Loan Call Money.

The demand for call funds has been eased to some extent by the entrance of some of the savings banks into the loan market. Brokers who have been able to obtain a share of this money have paid less than the prevailing rate, owing to the fact that the savings bank laws require high-class bonds as collateral.

Good Equipment Buying.

The reports of car shortages in many sections and the greatly augmented business which most of the railroads have enjoyed this Fall have greatly facilitated sales of new railroad equipment. Most of the car manufacturing companies have about all of the orders which they can handle for early deliveries, and their plants are being worked to capacity. As one manufacturer put it, "while the Directors of some of the railroads have been saying that they cannot buy any more equipment until they can get better prices for their securities, the operating men have gone ahead and bought cars and locomotives."

Money Grows Dearer.

The demand for money for November disbursements was largely responsible for a sharp upward movement in call money rates yesterday afternoon. From 5½% the rate quickly advanced until loans are made at 9%. That is the highest price which has been touched since January, 1910. More significant of the improvement in the demand for money for commercial purposes was the payment by some borrowers of premiums for time loans at 6%. This is the first time since the first month in 1908 that this practice has been followed. Some of the institutions strengthened their cash position yesterday by calling some of their loans, but most of the borrowers were not disturbed.

Stock Sales Fall Off.

Total sales on the New York Stock Exchange were 365,000 shares yesterday, as against 651,000 shares for the day preceding. The decline was due principally to the sudden advance in call money rates and the approaching holiday in London and Paris. Nov. 1 is a bank holiday in London, while All Saints' Day is responsible for the Paris closing. The dullness on the Exchange gave the brokers plenty of leisure to talk over the prospects for the election, with the result that a fresh crop of betting stories was produced. With only three more trading days before the election, and one of those a two-hour session, there was little disposition yesterday to look for an increase in activity until it is known who is to be the next President.

A Dull Bond Month.

It will be a source of melancholy satisfaction to some of the younger bond salesmen who have worn out many pairs of good shoes in tramping the pavements in search of elusive customers to learn that the total bond sales on the Stock Exchange were the smallest last month of any October since 1900. Except for that year, the past month made a new loan record for fifteen years. Total sales amounted to $46,324,800, which is a decrease of $26,968,600 from last year, and of $10,500,000 from the total for 1910. In 1909 the sales were twice those for the month just closed. As compared with 1904, which was the best year on record, last October's total showed a decrease of $103,600,000. These figures do not measure the real change in the investment demand, since a larger proportion of sales is now executed off the Exchange.

The sales of copper by some of the small fry in the trade at concessions from the price of 7¾ cents a pound, which has prevailed since last July, would not affect the attitude of the big selling agencies toward the market, the representative of a large producer said yesterday. "There has been a lull in buying for the past few weeks which corresponds with the let-up which lasted for about sixty days during the Summer, but we, and I think the other big producers, do not see any change in the basic situation," he said. "Consumption here is continuing in full blast, and it is better if anything than in Europe, though the buyers may feel a little bearish and let their stocks run low in consequence. When the buying began after the lull last Summer it ran to a point where there was some apprehension of a runaway market. I, for one, was glad to see the pause that has occurred. In considering the situation, it must be remembered that the strikes in the West have reduced the world's supplies by about 20,000,000 pounds. It does not make any difference whether this loss is at the mines, the smelters, the refineries, or in transit. With the balance of consumption and production so finely adjusted as it is in copper at present, such a setback as 20,000,000 pounds in production is bound to be a loss." A copper trade authority said yesterday that after a careful examination of the situation, he believed the amount of copper obtainable for delivery between now and the end of the year was negligible.

Poor Currency Reform.

The National Citizens' League of Minnesota, through its President, has issued a statement telling the world that the Aldrich or National Monetary Commission currency reform plan is dead, but, it adds hopefully, "Other measures are in process of preparation, one by a sub-committee in Congress, one by Senator La Follette, and others by men who have been giving this subject much thought."

There were a number of small gains among the curb issues yesterday after a day of fairly active trading. United Cigar Stores made another high record at 112, an advance from the opening of 1⅛ points, but receded to 111¼ at the close after sales of 8,000 shares. Manhattan Shirt common sold up from 72 to 74. There were a number of fractional gains in the mining list, although there was a decline of ¼, at one time in Greene-Cananea. After sales of 500 shares the stock closed at 9⅞, ⅛ below the opening. The most active issue in the bond list was Western Pacific 5s which advanced from 82¾ to 83 on transactions of $15,000.

Spelter	7.35	7.45	7.35	7.45
Tin	50.10	50.50	50.00	50.50

The final prices for spot and future deliveries of copper and pig tin recorded on the London Metal Exchange follow. These figures make comparison with Wednesday's prices:

	Thursday. £	s	Wednesday. £	s	d
Copper, spot	75	5	74	15	0
Copper, futures	75	17	75	7	6
Pig tin, spot	229	5	229	0	0
Pig tin, futures	229	5	228	15	0

The market finished quiet. Spanish pig lead was unchanged at £19 5s, and spelter at £27 7s 6d. Cleveland warrants were up 4½d, at 67s.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Speyer & Co. have bought from the New York State Railways $6,925,000 of its fifty-year first consolidated mortgage gold 4½ per cent. bonds, Series A, and, in conjunction with Harris, Forbes & Co., will shortly offer them for public subscription. The New York State Railways, which was formed March 23, 1909, owns, leases, and operates electric street railways and interurban lines in New York State allied with the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company, which owns about $13,600,000 out of about $19,900,000 of the common stock. The Public Service Commission has approved this issue, which is tax exempt in this State.

The committee headed by James N. Wallace announces to holders of fifty-year first mortgage 4 per cent. gold bonds of the Wisconsin, Minnesota & Pacific Railroad Company that a substantial majority of those bonds have been deposited under the agreement. The committee has extended the time for deposits until the end of business on Nov. 1. All bonds must be deposited in bearer form and must carry the coupons maturing Oct. 1, 1912, and all subsequent coupons.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 1.—The Times in its City article this morning says:

"There was great pressure for money yesterday, the last day of the month, and a big total of loans was obtained by the market from the Bank of England at 5½ per cent.

"Discount quotations were very firm, owing chiefly to the scarcity of money. A rise of one-half of 1 per cent. in the Bank of France rate was without much influence, as it was not wholly unexpected.

"Sovereigns to the amount of £400,000 ($2,000,000) were withdrawn from the Bank of England for export to Brazil.

"In Berlin the market rate was easier, but nevertheless Berlin cheque on London gave way.

"The outstanding feature in the stock markets was a big rise in Peninsular and Oriental deferred and Royal Mail stocks on the revival of amalgamation rumors. No confirmation of the reports was obtainable.

"In other departments the prices fully maintained the previous day's advance, and in most departments the upward movement made further progress. As a rule the final quotations were nearly the highest realized, but here and there a little profit taking in view of to-day's holiday caused a slight reaction.

"On the whole the volume of business passing was slight, and consisted chiefly of evening up of the books. The Continental Bourses were small buyers."

PARIS, Oct. 31.—The Bourse opened higher to-day, but the advance was checked by the rise in the rate of discount of the Bank of France, which also caused selling of French rentes. The settlement was satisfactorily arranged, and the market closed steady.

Three per cent. rentes, 89 francs 55 centimes for the account.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The Boerse was firm to-day. Prices generally advanced from 1 to 2 points.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

While prices on the Consolidated Stock Exchange were generally off from the best at the close, the market had held up remarkably well in the face of the sharp advance in call money rates. Firmness showed with the opening of business at 9:30 o'clock, with overnight advances reflected in the dealings on the call. Transactions in the half hour before business began elsewhere in Wall Street totaled 4,320 shares, out of a grand total for the entire day of 38,940 shares. Reading and United States Steel were features of activity both in the call trading and afterward.

New York State Railways

Fifty-Year First Consolidated Mortgage Gold Four and One-Half Per Cent. Bonds, Series "A."

Dated November 1, 1912. Due November 1, 1962.

Interest payable May 1 and November 1.

Redeemable, all or any part, at the option of the Company, on November 1, 1913, or any interest date thereafter, at 105 and interest, on sixty days' previous notice.

Coupon Bonds in denomination of $1,000 each, with privilege of registration as to principal, and exchangeable for Bonds registered as to both principal and interest; Coupon and Registered Bonds are interchangeable.

Application will be made to list these Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

Total authorized issue limited to $50,000,000. Outstanding (present issue), $6,925,000.

Reference is made to a letter of Mr. Horace E. Andrews, President of New York State Railways, which he has summarized as follows:

"The New York State Railways, which is controlled through Stock ownership by The New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Co., owns, leases, controls and operates Electric Street Railways and Interurban Lines allied with The New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Co., and, jointly with The Delaware & Hudson Co., also operates the Schenectady Railway Co.

The formation of the Company, capitalization and issue of the above Bonds have been approved by the Public Service Commission, Second District, State of New York.

The territory served is constantly increasing in population and wealth, and includes such important and growing cities as Rochester, Utica, Syracuse and Schenectady, with Interurban Lines running from the various cities. The population contributary to these lines is conservatively estimated at 900,000.

The New York State Railways is paying dividends at the rate of 5% on $3,862,500 First Preferred Stock, and 6% on $19,952,400 Common Stock.

HAVING PLACED PRIVATELY A LARGE PART OF THE ABOVE ISSUE, WE OFFER, SUBJECT TO PRIOR SALE OR ADVANCE IN PRICE, THE UNSOLD BALANCE AT 94½% AND ACCRUED INTEREST TO DELIVERY, YIELDING 4.80% PER ANNUM.

The Committee under the Protective Agreement dated September 16, 1912, announces that a substantial majority of the above bonds has been deposited with it subject to said Agreement.

The Committee has resolved to extend the time for making deposit with the Central Trust Company of New York, the Depositary named in said Agreement, or with Martin's Bank, Limited, London, as agent for said Depositary, UNTIL AND INCLUDING NOVEMBER 14, 1912, after which date no deposits will be received, except with the consent of the Committee and subject to such penalty as it may prescribe.

All bonds must be deposited in bearer form and must bear the coupon maturing October 1, 1912, and all subsequent coupons. Certificates of Deposit will be issued by said Depositary or its agent, Martin's Bank, Limited, for the bonds and coupons deposited.

The Committee has arranged with Central Trust Company of New York, upon terms approved by the Committee, to advance at its office, 54 Wall Street, New York, or at Martin's Bank, Limited, 68 Lombard Street, London, to any depositing bondholder so requesting, the amount of the October 1, 1912, coupon, upon the security of the bonds and coupons deposited by such holder.

Dated, New York, October 31, 1912.

REPUDIATE MOORE'S REPORT ON SCHOOLS

HE DARES THEM TO PROVE IT

The report on the organization and methods of the Board of Education and the functions of the local boards made by Prof. Ernest C. Moore of Yale in connection with the examination of the school system, which is being conducted under the direction of Prof. Hanus of Harvard, was repudiated yesterday by the Board of Estimate.

The board adopted a report made by President Mitchel of the Aldermen, Controller Prendergast, and Borough President Miller, the sub-committee having the school inquiry in charge, stigmatizing Prof. Moore's report as a "false, inaccurate, and misleading document," and declaring that the "printing of it at the expense of the city would be a waste of municipal funds."

Moreover, the Corporation Counsel was asked to give his opinion as to the obligation of the city to pay Prof. Moore the $1,800 for which his services were retained.

The grounds on which the School Inquiry Committee took this drastic action were explained yesterday to be the absence in Prof. Moore's report of any evidence to back up the statements he made.

"The report," said Mr. Mitchel, "contained so many reflections on the Board of Education and the Board of Estimate without proper evidence to support them that we felt we could not send it forth with the approval of the Board of Estimate. On a mere question of opinion, I would just as soon accept the views of Supt. Maxwell as those of Dr. Moore."

No member of the committee had any communication with Dr. Moore while he was at work on his report, but a summary of it was received by the committee a few days before the full report was sent in. The result was that Mr. Mitchel, as Chairman of the committee, sent to Dr. Moore on July 26 a letter asking the source of his information. Eighteen questions were included asking whether he had attended meetings of the Board of Education committees not noted in his memoranda or had consulted with this or that public official.

Dr. Moore's reply was to request the committee to await the receipt of his report in full. Meanwhile he sailed for England. As soon as the report was read by the School Inquiry Committee a further batch of questions were dispatched to Dr. Moore. This time they numbered 223. In the same letter Mr. Mitchel characterized the departure of Dr. Moore for England as "not wholly ingenuous."

From Morley's Hotel, London, Dr. Moore replied to the letter of the 223 questions. He said in part:

> I beg to say that my report was not intended to verify your opinions and methods, nor to be verified by them. Instead it was intended to teach you and your colleagues something about the proper way to administer a school system. I am quite confident that it will not fail to do this. The quantity and character of the questions which you have asked in such a dust-raising profusion seem to verify the truthfulness of the report. I have not answered them because of their character.
> The evidence for the facts and conclusions set forth in the report is in large part embodied in the report. Mistakes may have been made in transcribing them or in outlining the many steps in its routine, which each department must follow, but I am abundantly assured as to the general accuracy of the report.
> Your conception of the proper way to run a school system and my experience and knowledge gained by running one are at such great variance that it would be futile to even attempt to convert you from your opinions.

The letter concluded with three questions as to the scope of his duties as an investigator.

Mr. Mitchel told Dr. Hanus he considered Dr. Moore's London letter "childish" and twice demanded the "working papers" collected by Dr. Moore in the course of his work. Apparently there was no reply and the committee rejected Dr. Moore's report.

Mr. Mitchel objected to such statements, as "the school system of New York is an inbreeding system; there is a fence about it" and "rarely, very rarely is a teacher discharged. Rarely, very rarely does it happen that a temporary certificate is not made into a permanent license."

"The method by which New York administers its schools is that of the paralyzed arm. The fiscal authorities of the city seem to hold that the school system is in all respects a subordinate department of the city government. In fact the schools have been annexed almost as completely to the City Hall as they would have been if the proposed charter had become the organic law of the city."

Moore Stands by His Report.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 31.—Prof. Ernest C. Moore of Yale University flung defiance to-night to the New York City Board of Estimates. He accused the board of trying to rewrite his report, and asserted that the administrative control of New oYrk schools was illegal and intolerable.

"The City Hall is subverting the school system," he declared.

He challenged the Board of Estimates to bring suit against him in Connecticut with the report. He issued the following statement referring to to-day's action of the board:

> This is a favorite method of disposing of an unwelcome report. It has never yet succeeded in suppressing the truth. My investigation was made under definite instructions from Prof. Hanus. My report has been examined and accepted by him. It was made carefully, and is correct.
> I have offered repeatedly to re-examine any passages in it which the committee may care to have me reinvestigate, on condition that they will tell me definitely what they understood my instructions to be. We have refused to allow them to rewrite the report.
> There is a situation in the administrative control of the schools of New York City which is both illegal and intolerable. Though the bill to accomplish that result failed of passage at Albany last year, the work of annexing the schools to the City Hall goes steadily forward. It is perhaps too much to expect of city officials that they will accept and print a report that convicts them of sin. A report that states the facts fearlessly deserves to be printed that the people may read it, and this one will be.

Prof. Moore is at home in combatting a school system. Before he came to Yale he tackled the city Government of Los Angeles and compelled it to remodel the school system there. His work compelled the admiration of the Yale authorities who called him immediately to become the head of the Department of Pedagogy.

SUSPEND TRUNK LIMIT RULES

Commerce Commission Hears Objectors to Railroad's Plan and Halts It.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Theatrical and vaudeville performers, and other public entertainers, commercial travelers and tourists were represented at a hearing to-day before Inter-State Commerce Commissioner Clark to protest against the proposed restriction by the railroads of the dimensions of trunks. Pending a decision, the commission suspended the regulation until April 29.

The proposed regulation provides that on any piece of baggage the greatest dimension of which exceeds forty-five inches an additional charge for each additional inch will be made equal to ten pounds of excess weight, and that no piece of baggage the greatest dimension of which exceeds seventy inches will be transported in a baggage car.

Commercial travelers and vaudeville performers were the most vigorous objectors to the new rule. They maintained that in some instances they would be put out of business by inability to carry in baggage cars samples in the one instance and necessary paraphernalia in the other.

The railroad representatives insisted that the regulations excepted "samples" and "paraphernalia" and provided for their transportation. The rules were drafted, it was explained, to limit the size of boxes and other packages which are frequently checked as personal baggage.

REID TOBACCO PRESIDENT.

Daniel G. Reid was elected President of the Tobacco Products Corporation at the first meeting of the Board of Directors yesterday, at the Chase National Bank. William H. Butler, who became Chairman of the Surbrug Company upon its acquisition by the Reid interests, was elected Vice President, as was also M. Melachrino, President of the recently incorporated business of M. Melachrino & Co., which was also acquired by the corporation.

Albert H. Wiggin, President of the Chase National Bank, was elected a Director, he and Messrs Butler and Melachrino superseding Thomas Cochran, Jr., Vice President of the Astor Trust Company, and Roberts Walker and J. A. Bennett of White & Case. The other Directors are J. Horace Harding, representing Henry C. Frick, Francis L. Hine, President of the First National Bank, Seward Prosser, President of the Liberty National Bank, John D. Ryan, President of the Amalgamated Copper Company, and J. Du Pont White of White & Case.

Mr. White said after the meeting that, as indicated by its organization, the Tobacco Products Corporation was not to be an operating company, but a holding company, extending financial support to the subsidiaries and permitting them to operate under their respective officers and boards.

MANHATTAN LIFE CONTROL.

H. L. Doherty & Co. Denies It Is Acting for Foreign Capitalists.

Efforts are being made to obtain options on a majority of the stock of the Manhattan Life Insurance Company and a story was in circulation in the financial district yesterday that the prospective purchasers were foreign capitalists represented by Henry L. Doherty & Co. of 60 Wall Street. Mr. Doherty is in Europe, and at his office it was denied that he was in any way associated with any one who might be acquiring control of the company.

Last Summer brokers in this city attempted to obtain control of the company for financial and insurance interests in Texas, but were unable to deliver enough of the stock. The shares are widely scattered, and it is said that no individual owns as much as 10 per cent. Henry B. Stokes, ex-President of the company, is said to be the largest stockholder. He said last night that he had given no option on his stock and knew of no arrangement for the sale of the control.

TINKER JOINS CHASE BANK.

A vacancy among the Vice Presidents of the Chase National Bank, which has existed since the election of Albert H. Wiggin to the Presidency, has been filled by the appointment of Edward R. Tinker, Jr. Mr. Tinker has been a member of the firm of Rhoades & Co., bond brokers, since 1908. He was invited to take a desk at the Chase bank some time ago, and negotiations have been carried on with the approval of Mr. Rhoades.

Mr. Tinker is 34 years old and he is one of the youngest Vice Presidents in any of the important banking institutions. He graduated from Williams College in 1899 and has been associated with Vermilye & Co., Edward Sweet Company and William A. Read & Co.

ARBITRATION NEARLY DONE.

Board for Engineers and Railroads About to Fix Up Early Report.

The Board of Arbitration which is to decide the dispute between the fifty-two Eastern railroads and their engineers, and which has been in session every day this week, adjourned yesterday until Saturday, when it expects to finish the preliminary revision of its report and findings.

It will then adjourn subject to the call of Chairman Van Hise, while the Secretary, Dr. Veditz, and the statisticians check over all statements of fact contained in the report.

After this work is completed, the board will again convene to adopt the report finally and to make it public.

OCTOBER TRANSACTIONS.

Transactions in stocks on the New York Stock Exchange for the month of October, aggregated 14,149,781 shares, an increase of 4,085,709 shares, as compared with the previous month, and of 3,096,947 shares, as compared with the corresponding months last year. The heaviest day's trading occurred on the 23d, when the dealings amounted to 843,304 shares, the largest total since May 16, when the total was 926,599 shares. The lightest day's trading was 324,890 shares on the 28th. For the Saturday half holiday the maximum total was 314,140 shares on the 5th, and the minimum 249,836 shares on the 26th.

The following table gives the total transactions in stock for October and the ten months of this year as compared with the corresponding periods of each year back to 1889:

STOCKS, (SHARES.)

	October.	Jan. 1 to Oct. 31.

The sales of railroad bonds amounted to a par value of $44,649,500, of Government bonds to $254,300, of State bonds to $398,000, and of city bonds to $1,023,000, a total in all classes of bonds of $46,324,800, the smallest total in any October since 1900. The month's total was an increase of $1,293,300, as compared with the previous month, but a decrease of $26,968,600 as compared with the corresponding month last year. The largest total of the month was $2,319,000 on the 3d, and the smallest $1,452,000 on the 17th. For the Saturday half holiday the maximum total was $1,059,500 on the 19th, and the minimum $819,000 on the 5th.

Bond dealings for October and the ten months of this year make the following showing, as comprade with preceding years:

Grain Crop a Record Beater.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 31.—That the grain yield of the Northwest this year would exceed all records by 35,000,000 bushels was the prediction to-day of G. H. Tunell, Chief Deputy Grain Inspector. Mr. Tunell based his prediction on present conditions in the Dakotas, Montana, and Minnesota and on the unusually large amount of grain already handled by the State Inspection Department.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Slump in Wheat and Corn Meets Late Check—Cotton Jumps Again.

Wheat declined on large receipts and disappointing cash sales, steadying late with lighter offerings. Corn after early weakness advanced on less favorable weather conditions. Oats were lower on large receipts. Provisions rallied on a smaller hog movement. Cottonseed oil was a shade higher. Cotton was excited and strong on weather conditions and reduced crop estimates. The spot situation is still firm. Heavy selling took place on the rise. Coffee was steady on cable advices.

WHEAT.

The wheat market showed a little rise early on the unexpected steadiness of the cables. After this the market was dull and heavy, closing at only a small net gain for the day. The trading at the outset was fairly active, and there was some little pressure owing to the heavy interior receipts. The decline uncovered fair buying orders with demand partly influenced by the strong rally in corn and by some decrease in the car lot receipts in the northwest.

The English markets were slightly better, and there was a small gain at Paris. The Berlin market was lower and the Budapest market was easier. The Argentine crop news was more mixed with claims to too much rain. The Argentine exports for the week were estimated at only 600,000 bushels. The primary receipts for the day amounted to 1,942,000 bushels, and in four days the receipts have been 10,400,000 bushels, against 9,343,000 bushels the preceding week and 4,668,000 bushels last year. The interior shipments for the week have decreased about 600,000 bushels, and there has been a falling off in the exports from Atlantic ports. The export demand for wheat was limited and bids were out of line.

There was an important meeting of the grain trade of the New York Produce Exchange in the Board of Managers' room at 3 o'clock to consider the report of the special committee on the establishment of a market at New York for trading in bonded grain. The report was unanimously in favor of this action. A large number of letters was read from prominent Canadian and American houses strongly advising the establishment of such a market. The report of the committee was then adopted and the matter referred back to the Grain Committee of the Produce Exchange with instructions to prepare rules and regulations and fix a time for the beginning of trading.

No export business was reported. Cash wheat was quoted at $1.07, free on board; No. 1 Northern, 98½c; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.01¾, and No. 1 Manitoba, $1.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—The corn market was fairly active and weak early, and there was continued liquidation in the new and old crop deliveries. The selling movement was less pronounced than for several days past, however, prices showing a good rally in the afternoon, and closed at about the best of the day at a small net gain. Weather conditions were somewhat less favorable. Argentine exports were estimated at 7,650,000 bushels for the week. Export sales of eight loads of American corn were reported January shipment. Cash corn was quoted at 58¼c, free on board, December to March, and cost, insurance, freight corn was quoted at 69c to 71½c.

OATS.—The market was rather heavy at the opening, influenced by the decline in other grain. Later a somewhat steadier tone developed, but the tone was quiet. Receipts were again heavy at the interior, amounting to 1,172,000 bushels, but shipments were 1,000,000 bushels from the West. Cash oats were quiet. No. 3 white was quoted at 38½c; No. 4 white, 37½c, and white clipped, 38c to 41c.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products showed a further rally, and closed at about the best of the day. The hog market was firmer at the West, and receipts were not so heavy, which led to quite active covering of shorts.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The undertone was firm, although as quotations reached higher levels the tendency for offerings to increase was noticeable. Some of the brokers who were large buyers recently sold nearby deliveries freely on the upturn, presumably for refiners. Sentiment was mixed. The higher cotton market again was a factor, inasmuch as less favorable weather and smaller crop estimates were partly responsible for the rise in cotton quotations.

There were tenders for several hundred barrels of November during the day, but apparently the recent decline in the market had eliminated considerable of the long interest in the December option. Several authorities are reporting a slight improvement in the consuming trade in both domestic and foreign quarters, but no general buying is claimed. Mills are rather reluctant sellers at the lower levels, according to most advices.

COTTON.

Bullish enthusiasm, combined with a startled short interest, led to rather violent changes during the early part of yesterday's session. There were over-night gains of from 15 to 20 points, with further subsequent gains, but as the list showed enhancement of values of more than 1c a pound from the recent low, the decided increase in offerings was quite natural. Unmistakably belated buying by trade concerns was discerned, while the evening of accounts for stubborn shorts accelerated the upward tendency of the market. Gradually the demand was supplied, however, and a considerable part of the advances was eliminated at the finals. Vague reports circulated that powerful pools had accumulated contracts, on the theory that consumption will be more than commensurate with the production.

The volume of trading was extremely heavy. Sentiment was quite confused and, as usual with an undercurrent of strength, there was more attention given to factors aiding holders. Therefore prospects of less favorable weather conditions and reduced crop estimates, also a continuation of the firm spot situation, were features dwelt upon. Nevertheless the conservative element viewed the advance as rapid and predicted that Southern offerings would increase; also that the urgent requirements of the trade had been about supplied, so that a reaction in values would seem to be in order. Leading spot concerns were believed to have been heavy sellers on the higher levels, but in speculative quarters the tendency was to await the weather developments over night and the news from spot centres, now that the demand for October engagements has ceased to enter into the situation.

Private advices told of heavy rains in parts of Oklahoma and North Texas. The forecast was for rains over most of the cotton area, followed by colder weather and frost. It was believed that if there should be any general precipitation and a pronounced drop in temperatures that further development of the crop would be effectually checked, while complaints as to the quality of the staple having been impaired would seem consistent. It was pointed out that the weather during the last several days has been very satisfactory over most sections of the belt, yet during the period crop estimates were revised downward, the inference being that the higher level of quotations may have influenced sentiment.

However, the guesses which are coming to hand at this time are not as optimistic as those ventured a week or so ago. Clement, Curtis & Co. had reports from their correspondents suggesting a crop of 14,176,000 bales, including linters. Another estimate carefully compiled by a prominent spot concern of South Carolina, from the opinions of selected firms and individuals was for an outturn of 14,207,000 bales with linters included. The tenor of Eastern advices remains bullish. Lyle wired that the Carolinas and Georgia would produce only about 3,850,000 bales this year, against 5,709,000 bales last season, including linters. The Journal of Commerce reports indicated that Texas has a crop equal to last year, with 80 per cent. picked, against 84 per cent. last season; that prospects in Oklahoma were above a month ago, with 52 per cent. gathered, as against 62 per cent. last season.

COFFEE.

Coffee business was not large, consisting of 51,500 bags, but offerings were well absorbed, and the close was 2 to 7 points net higher. Havre advanced ½ franc, while Hamburg was ½ to ⅝ pfennig higher. Rio was steady at 50 reis up, while Santos was unchanged, according to the regular cable, although the special indicated an advance of 50 reis at the opening.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

Harvester Official Says New Yorker Organized Big Corporation.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—George W. Perkins was named to-day as the prime mover in the organization of the International Harvester Company as a selling company in 1902.

John J. Glessner, Vice President of the company, told how, while a member of a firm which manufactured harvester machinery at Springfield, Ohio, under the trade name of "Champion," he went to New York in response to a telegram from Mr. Perkins, who wanted him to discuss the sale of his properties. The witness then stated that Mr. Perkins was the real organizer of the new corporation, and directed all the details of organization, even to choosing the name.

Mr. Glessner said he sold his property and accepted a position with the new company, without knowing who the officers or voting Trustees would be. Mr. Perkins, he added, named the officers and Trustees, and their identity was not made known to him until contracts were signed in August, 1902, when the company was incorporated.

E. N. Wood, Secretary of the International Harvester Company of America, the sales corporation for the alleged combination, was called to identify catalogues and price lists, sent out to agents between 1903 and 1911, to show that the lines of machines bearing trade-marked names, were advertised separately, and that standard prices were maintained.

STATIONERY TRADE ACTIVE.

Prominent Wholesaler Reports the Heaviest Business Ever Done.

Business in the stationery trade is especially good this season, according to J. D. Einstein of the Tower Manufacturing and Novelty Company, 306 Broadway.

"We have enjoyed the biggest business in the history of the house," said Mr. Einstein yesterday. "Not only is business in staples goods, but sales of fancy goods have increased materially. Collections seem to be fair and the outlook for the future is excellent. The present activity will undoubtedly continue well into the new year. A big holiday business is generally expected by the trade. Salesmen are now out with staple and holiday goods, and orders received so far have been of good proportions."

TUSSAH SILK CROP SHORT.

Shanghai Advices Indicate 30% Decrease—Local Market Quiet.

Cable advices from Shanghai telling of a 30 per cent. shortage in the present crop of tussahs caused considerable surprise in the local raw silk market yesterday. As a result of the shortage, the better grades show an advance of 70 taels over last week's prices in the primary market, and are held here at $1.80 per pound, the highest level since November, 1910. The market was slightly firmer, on the whole. The Canton situation was unchanged, with prices firm and offerings light. Prices were again steady in Yokohama, after a decline of 40 yen from the highest point reached in the recent advance.

The Milan market is quiet but steady. The local market has been less active of late because of the unsettled condition of Japanese silks and the political upset in Europe. Prices have remained fairly steady, however, and advances are looked for as soon as the demand picks up.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Rifles and Gelatin Printing Machinery Get Lower Duty.

The Board of United States General Appraisers sustained a protest filed by Von Lengerke & Antoine regarding the classification under the Tariff act of 1909 of single-barrel sporting rifles. They were assessed for duty at $6 each and 35 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 157, and were claimed dutiable at 25 per cent. on the value, under Paragraph 156. The Appraiser reported that as Paragraph 156 provided for muzzle-loading rifles only, the guns were returned under Paragraph 157. Judge Fischer held the return erroneous, as the only single-barreled firearms provided for under Paragraph 157, other than pistols, were single-barreled breech-loading shotguns. He found the rifles in question had been named in Paragraph 156.

Failure by Eytinge & Co. to file a protest in the fifteen days specified by law resulted in overruling their plea on darts of wood, steel, and feathers on which duty was exacted at 45 per cent., under the present tariff, as "manufactures in chief value of metal." The importers asked 35 per cent. ad valorem as "manufactures in chief value of wood," and the customs authorities conceded the error.

The board reversed the Collector on collotype or photogelatin printing presses imported by D. H. Burnett. The machines were classified as "manufactures of metal" under the present act, and duty taken at 45 per cent. ad valorem. The importer asked that the machines be admitted at 30 per cent. ad valorem under the paragraph for "printing presses," and was sustained.

Form Company to Bare Mine Frauds.

ALBANY, Oct. 31.—The Cave Men Association, Inc., of New York was incorporated to-day to "expose fraud in the exploitation of worthless mining properties and to standardize a mining practice." The Directors are Herbert Hall, Walter F. Pyne, Milton S. Salisbury, William C. Schmidt, Jr., and Edward A. Rugen of New York, and Otto N. Rugen of Brooklyn.

BUSINESS NOTES.

It is now definitely assured, according to the Strohmeyer & Arpe Company, that this year's catch of sardines in France will be the poorest on record. Lentil prices have advanced in this market, due, it is believed, to the increased demand from the Balkan States since the war began.

H. W. A. Page, 6 West Twentieth Street, American representative of a prominent Belgium linen house, will move to new quarters in the Passavant Building, 440 Fourth Avenue, about Jan. 1.

Sales of Japanese raw silk at Yokohama for the week amounted to only 2,100 bales. Despite this fact, shipments of the current year to date show a gain of more than 10,000 bales over those of the same period last year.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

A turning lathe of exceptional size has been completed at Johnstone, England, for John Brown & Co. of Sheffield. The lathe weighs 270 tons, and has been specially designed to deal with the large castings which are now used in the manufacture of turbines for battleships. It is believed to be the heaviest of its type yet constructed. A larger lathe, though not so heavy, was made about four years ago by the same firm for John Brown & Co.'s engineering works at Clydebank.

In 1910-11 the total exports from the Madras, India, Presidency to the United States amounted to $2,841,608, compared with $3,724,825 in 1909-10, a decrease of $1,383,222. The heavy decline was due to a falling off in the exportation of such articles as hides and skins, coir, myrobalans, pepper, and manganese ore, which products found a larger demand and better prices in European than in American markets.

A new floating elevator, having a capacity of 1,056 tons of coal an hour and constructed at the Gusto Dockyards at Schiedam, has been put in service at Rotterdam by the Steenkolen Handels Vereeniging. The company has also installed at Amsterdam a coal elevator capable of handling 600 tons an hour.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

The demand for the lighter laces, which has been the feature of trading in this market this Fall, has opened the field to Nottingham and Calais effects as well as shadows.

Velours in pastel shades are being sought for Spring by the manufacturing trades. In all the popular fabrics piece dyes are fighting it out with two-tone effects for premier honors.

There is no apparent falling off in the demand for sweaters in this market. Ruff necks are popular, and Shaker styles are also much wanted. Cardinals are the best selling color in the West, while grays, maroons, and navys head the general demand.

The upholstery trade has experienced some very good business this Fall. Spot stock of practically all kinds of fabrics have been well cleaned up and buyers find it difficult to obtain goods for immediate delivery. Heavy goods have sold better this season than for [illegible]

JACKSON-MACK FAILURE.

A meeting of creditors of the Jackson-Mack Manufacturing Company, silk petticoats and kimonos, 119 and 121 West Twenty-third Street, against which a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Oct. 11, was held yesterday in the United States District Court in the Federal Building, and was attended by about sixty creditors and attorneys representing creditors. A statement of the assets and liabilities as of Oct. 10 prepared by James A. McKenna, certified public accountant, was presented. The statement shows liabilities of $963,352 and nominal assets of $661,606.

The receiver said the actual assets would not realize anywhere near the amount stated. He estimated the assets in sight at $135,000, subject, however, to reclamations which might decrease it, but that something might be obtained from the sub-companies. Some of the creditors present were of the opinion that after taking out the expenses of administration the estate would not realize more than 10 cents on the dollar.

James N. Rosenberg, attorney for the receiver, said that fictitious accounts had been issued in large quantities and large amounts of money obtained on them. Salo J. Jackson, the missing President, has not been heard from, and detectives have been unable to locate him.

The creditors voted for an immediate adjudication so that they can proceed to the election of a Trustee, as no plan of reorganization is in prospect.

Judge Hand said he would confirm the recommendations of the creditors, and directed that an order he drawn up for his signature. Joseph S. Mack, the treasurer of the company, was present at the meeting. Five other companies have been carried down by the Jackson-Mack Manufacturing Company failure and creditors fear that some other companies may be involved.

SILK DEMAND KEEPS UP.

Present Business Is Not Well Diversified—Prices Fairly Steady.

Lack of diversification is the feature of the present demand in the local silk market. Plain and brocaded charmeuse, tinsel brocade, and crêpe de chine are among the fabrics most wanted. Fall business is still good, and representative houses report a record-breaking volume of Spring business in hand. Orders for later delivery are coming in well. On the beter grades of merchandise prices are well maintained, but on the cheaper fabrics concessions ranging up to 9½ cents are reported.

The cutters-up are not buying much for near-by delivery, but the retail demand is brisk. In certain quarters there are indications that foulards are gaining ground. There is a good call for velvets and corduroys for Fall street wear.

Velvets Feature Ribbon Market.

Steady improvement is noticed in the ribbon market, and recent price advances are well sustained. The wider ribbons are particularly strong. Staples, barring hair-bow ribbons, are quiet, but novelties, especially plaids and Roman stripes, are selling well. The real feature of the market is the heavy sale of velvet ribbons in black and colors. Large sales of these ribbons at this time of the year have been conspicuously absent heretofore, as they are primarily regarded as Spring merchandise.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

GEORGE M. and WILBUR GORDON, trading as the Gordon Sporting Goods Company, and as the P. C. Rutan Company, at Port Jervis, N. Y., have filed a petition here with firm liabilities $15,528 and assets $72. George M. Gordon has individual liabilities $6,171 and assets $4,350. Wilbur Gordon has individual liabilities $1,254 and assets $34.

ELBERT W. SWEET, residing in Yonkers, formerly President of E. W. Sweet & Co., Incorporated, dealer in hosiery and silks, 151 West Thirty-fourth Street, this city, has filed a petition, with liabilites $13,246 and nominal assets.

JAMES A. PANARELLO, clerk, residing at 80 East 116th Street, has filed a petition, with liabilities $1,787 and assets $177.

WOLF SEIFERT.—A petition has been filed against Wolf Seifert, manufacturer of furs, 40 East Tenth Street, by these creditors: Adolf de Bruyne, $200; Friedman & Hoberman, $64, and Vandewegel Brothers, $298. The assets are estimated at $500 and liabilities $5,000. Judge Hand appointed Bernard J. MacCorry receiver with a bond of $300.

ALBERT MINTUS.—Judge Hand has confirmed a composition of Albert Mintus, trading as the Banner Manufacturing Company, waists and dresses, 120 West Eighteenth Street, with creditors, at 40 cents on the dollar cash. The liabilities were about $7,000.

RICHARD FRANKENBUSH, barkeeper, residing at 530 East 175th Street, has filed a petition, with liabilities of $4,350 and no assets. The largest creditor is the Bernheim Schwarz Pilsener Brewing Company, $3,000.

HYMAN PERSKY of Loch Sheldrake, Sullivan County, has filed a petition, with liabilities of $5,781 and no assets. Among the creditors are the Hamilton Trust Company of Brooklyn, $441, and the Jamaica House and Home Company, $2,668.

ADELBERT W. HALLENBECK. — Judge Hand has appointed Harry C. Durando receiver for Adelbert W. Hallenbeck, wholesale dealer in undertakers' supplies, 260 West Broadway, bond $1,000. The liabilities are $15,000 and assets estimated at $2,000 in stock and accounts.

AUTOMOBILE FAULT FINDER AND ANTI-FORGERY ELECTRIC PEN COMPANY.—Judge Hand has appointed Harold B. Elgar receiver for the Automobile Fault Finder and Anti-Forgery Electric Pen Company of 530 and 532 East Seventy-second Street, bond $500. The liabilities are said to be $2,700, for merchandise, and assets consisting of a plant which cost $5,000 but is estimated worth now $1,000.

LEOPARD CONTRACTING COMPANY. — Judge Hand has appointed George W. McNulty receiver for the Leopard Contracting Company of 30 Church Street, bond $2,500, with authority to continue the business here and also at Mauch Chunk, Penn.

ESCHELBACHER BROTHERS.—Schedules of Eschelbacher Brothers, skirt manufacturers, 28 West Twenty-seventh Street, show liabilities of $24,188 and assets of $8,000. Among the creditors are the Second National Bank, $4,618; Metropolitan Bank, $3,500, and L. Loewenberg of Columbus, Ga., $4,441.

MIRABEL WINE COMPANY.—Schedules of the Mirabel Wine Company of 505 Eighth Avenue show liabilities of $15,435 and assets of $12,817. Among the creditors are E. Schilling & Co., $4,700; French-American Wine Company, $1,800, and Beaulieu Vineyards, Rutherford, Cal., $1,795.

Out of Town.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—Michael F. Donovan of Lynnfield and Daniel A. Donovan of Lynnfield, doing business as D. A. Donovan & Co., shoe manufacturers, Lynn, have filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court. The firm on Aug. 6 last made an assignment for the benefit of creditors to Benjamin G. Hall of Peabody and Arthur C. Lawrence of this city. The petitioners state they do not know what has been realized from the property assigned. The bankruptcy schedules show total liabilities of $210,200, of which $99,900 is unsecured, to about 100 creditors.

VOTERS AND THEIR WOMEN FOLK

At the past ten Presidential Elections the voters of America have let the politicians and their bosses think for them.

A Slave thinks through his Master and Eternalizes his Shackles. A Free Man Thinks for Himself and perpetuates his Independence. Their Women Folk Think as They Think and Suffer or Rejoice accordingly, for Loyalty is the Badge of all the Sex.

These politicians, who in ordinary times would not be permitted to select fish, flesh or fowl for the everyday hard-headed American citizen, brazenly seize the people's very atmosphere at election time and rant, rave, and cant the voter to a white heat, enveloped in which he stumps his way to the ballot box and turns the country over to the politicians' bosses, those iron-minded, granite-hearted, cork-soled human grinders who know no past, who bow to no present, and who counterfeit-coin the people's future into eternal bankruptcy.

For forty years this has gone on with the sureness, the monotony, the inevitability of the tides, the moon, the sun.

The result, it can go on no longer. There must be a change, and how, or black, destroying revolution will be upon the Nation.

For forty years the cost of the people's living has steadily mounted, with no commensurate increase in their wages and income, until to-day wage and income will not meet the cost of their living. The rich are growing richer and poverty daily adds to the burden on the shoulders of the poor.

Everywhere throughout the land the daughters of America have been drawn nearer to the red-lit street which pilots them the swiftest route from shame to death, and the sons of America closer to the yellow glare of that easy-money immorality which saps the blood, brittles the bone, mazes the mind, and sogs the soul of freeborn youth.

The story of the relentless march of the system and the ever cowering, cringing, shrinking retreat of the people is told in a sentence. Five million every-day American people have deposited in savings banks $5,000,000,000, every dollar representing honest effort of mind or body.

The income from this $5,000,000,000 is 4 per cent. a year, $200,000,000. It is a very large part of the people's total income.

Forty years ago it returned to them the same 4 per cent. as to-day, yet then it would buy as many of their necessities of life as 8 per cent. or $400,000,000 will buy to-day.

In forty years this income of the people has been cut in half.

Forty years ago the capital of the very rich, invested in banks and trust companies, returned 6 per cent. To-day it returns 38 per cent., or, allowing for its cut-in-two purchasing power, 19 per cent.

In forty years, while the people's income has been cut in half, the income of the system's capital has more than tripled.

Never have the politicians in election years told the people of this awful wrong, of its cause or of its cure.

But the people of the present election year have awakened to the enormity of this wrong, and on Tuesday the people will vote.

It is not for any man to do the people's thinking for them, but it is for each of us to add our match to the flame of the great beacon that lights the forks of the people's highway in this memorable twelfth year of the twentieth century.

Woe to the people of the United States if they take the wrong road, the politicians' road, at the coming election, for ere another four years brings them again to where the upper and lower roads cross the Nation may be in the throes.

Mr. Voter, it is up to you this time to meet the question face on. You cannot longer dodge it, shirk it, or postpone it. It is for you to say whether beginning with the 6th of November the people will face their entrenched foes and drive them over the brink, or whether, like dumb, unresisting cattle, they will allow themselves to be driven further into the bog.

It is not for any honest man to judge the merits of the three candidates, one of whom during the coming four years will lead the people to deliverance or doom. Like most students of American affairs, I believe that President Taft is an honest man and a country loving citizen, and that Gov. Wilson, besides being a brilliant scholar, is an able, sincere, patriotic American. If the Presidential job were the trusteeship of the savings of American people, I believe that all unbiased men and women would be unconcerned as to which one should have the job. But the Presidential job for the next four years is not a financial trusteeship. It is a generalship which calls for honesty, courage and physical and mental ability of the very highest order. Coupled with these qualities must be experience and knowledge of the human animal in all his many-sided feverings.

WE HAVE IN AMERICA TO-DAY, READY, WAITING, EAGER TO TAKE THIS GENRALSHIP, A MAN WHO STANDS SO FAR OUT FROM THE RANKS OF ALL HIS FELLOWS AS TO SEEM TO BE MORE THAN MAN. ALL MEN AND WOMEN WHO LISTENED WITH ME TO THIS MAN WEDNESDAY NIGHT IN MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, AND WHO VISIONED BACK TO THE ASSASSIN'S ACT, INVOLUNTARILY SAID: "THEODORE ROOSEVELT IS MORE THAN MAN; HE IS THE HERO OF OUR IMAGINATIONS, THE INSPIRATION OF OUR DREAMS."

Mr. Voter, between now and Tuesday, gather about you your women-folk, your mother, wife, daughter, sister, and ponder the problem which is yours and theirs. Disregard your likes and your dislikes, and ask yourself and your women-folk the question:

Ask yourself and your women-folk the question: "Can I, as an American citizen, let this God-sent instrument pass without giving him the opportunity to right our wrongs?"

While there have flocked to the Progressive Party a horde of undesirables, it must be admitted that a large majority of the noble-minded, un-hide-bound-to-party men and women of the land also have rallied under his standard.

"Admitting that some of his lieutenants are dangerous to the people's interests, that some have sought him and his party solely for self-interest, that some are contemptible in their hypocrisy, and admitting that it is unfortunate to break down the third term tradition, and admitting all the other petty charges of his enemies, can I deny this stanch, fearless, heroic American of Americans the opportunity to match his strength and his courage with the greatest problem we have had to face?"

When you have found your answer and when your women folk have indorsed it, go to the polls and cast your ballot.

For my part, with no other feeling for President Taft than sympathy for the misfortunes brought on him by his whole-souled confidence in the trickster politicians who have used him for their own ends, and with nothing but profound admiration for the qualities of Gov. Wilson, and knowing Theodore Roosevelt from shoe sole to hat crown, I cannot believe that the American people will deprive themselves of his powerful aid in this crisis.

It does not seem possible that the people of New York, whose Governors for the past four decades, with few exceptions, have been taken from the politicians' rank, can forego the impulse to drop to their knees in thanksgiving that they have the opportunity of placing in their Governor's chair such a man as Oscar Straus; nor does it seem possible that the people of our own Commonwealth of Massachusetts could hesitate in sending to the State House that rare, old-fashioned American gentleman business man, Charles S. Bird.

If Theodore Roosevelt had nothing to recommend him to the people of America but the indorsement of men of the Straus and Bird character and calibre, they should eagerly embrace the opportunity to place their troubled affairs in his keeping. When one thinks of the recent performances in the State Houses of New York and Massachusetts, of the mountebanks who have dragged the States' traditions and the States' honor through the sewers of vulgarity and the catch-basins of blatherskite politics in their endeavor to boost themselves to positions as fitting to their ability and manners as cathedral shrines are to the prayers of chimpanzees, one's intelligence is taxed in the endeavor to comprehend why there should be any uncertainty in the coming election.

In adding this, my mite, to this campaign, I hope that the thoughtful voters of America will keep this one burning fact in front of them as they vote: That the people have one fundamental problem which must be solved, and now—High Cost Living; that before this problem all other considerations of personal hatreds, self-interests and ambitions must give way; that this problem, which has baffled the best minds of the Nation for forty years, can be solved only by men of rare honesty, exceptional disinterestedness, large experience, conspicuous ability and superb courage, and that there is no public man in all the world who so splendidly combines in himself all these qualities as Theodore Roosevelt.

Any man, woman or child who listened to Theodore Roosevelt Wednesday night, right from the grave's brink, his wounds still bleeding and the assassin's bullet still pressing his heart, and heard him pledge his sacred honor to the fulfillment of his every promise, and who would then accuse him of the ambition of the despot, or of any selfish ambition, is unfitted to bear the name American.

Large Harlem Plot on 115th Street Sold for Apartment Improvement — Seventh Avenue Deal — Buyer for West Side Dwelling—Bronx and Suburban Transactions.

As the result of a large deal in the West Harlem section a new six-story apartment house will soon be erected on the north side of 115th Street between Eighth and Manhattan Avenues. The plot sold has a frontage of 120 feet by 100.11 deep on the north side of 115th Street, 125 feet west of Eighth Avenue and has been acquired from Sonn Brothers by the 114th Street and Seventh Avenue Company of which Max Weinstein is President. William S. Baker was the broker in the transaction.

The property is a portion of the entire block front on 115th Street between Eighth and Manhattan Avenues, 370 feet on the street which Sonn Brothers bought from the Johnston Livingston estate over a year ago. They have sold the Manhattan Avenue corner to the Gorham Construction Company and a six-story apartment house has been erected there. The Eighth Avenue corner is still retained by them.

"AN HONEST TALE SPEEDS BEST BEING PLAINLY TOLD."

Just how to write an advertisement which will convince some mercantile firm which is seeking 105,000 square feet in a high class building at a low rent, that the rental of the building at Nos. 337 to 347 West 27th St. is the

But What We Do Know

is that there is not another building in Manhattan as well located, of the same high class fireproof construction, heavy carrying capacity and other goodly qualities which can be leased at as low a rental as this building.

Comparisons Are Odious, but a glance over the following description of the building and a comparison with other offerings of buildings to lease will readily determine the truth or otherwise of our claim to the

LOWEST RENT IN MANHATTAN.

Nos. 337 to 347 West 27th St., between 8th and 9th Avenues: Distant four blocks from the Pennsylvania Depot and N. Y. Central freight depot. Convenient to 9th Ave. "L" road, 8th and 9th Aves., and 23rd and 34th Sts. Crosstown surface cars. The mercantile building now in course of erection on this plot, 127.6x98.9, will be 8 stories and basement in height; containing about 105,000 square feet; white plaster finish; three large elevators, two freight and one passenger; four fireproof stairways, including the much talked of, but little seen, Fire Tower; an automatic sprinkler system rated 100% by the Fire Insurance Exchange. (The value of a 100% Sprinkler equipment can be figured in dollars and cents as an insurance saver, but its virtue as a protector against business interruption and consequent irrecoverable losses cannot be computed in the same manner, more's the pity). Heavy carrying capacity of 200 lbs. per square foot; dustless cement floors; minimum insurance rate on building and contents. Toilet rooms (with ample toilets) on roomy court, not small vent shaft; Underwriters labeled doors and hollow metal windows; steam heating plant; gas; electricity for light and power; ceilings are high, affording good light; attractive front elevation and entrance halls; ideal in every way, including the annual rent of $24,000 NET, which is the

LOWEST RENT IN MANHATTAN.

We expect to complete this splendid building January next. It is to lease only as a whole. Tenants who do not need quite as much space as 105,000 square feet, can readily sublet a surplus at a profit. Fullest details of the owners, St. John's Park Realty Co., 50 Pine St.—Tel. 2271 John; James H. Cruikshank and William D. Kilpatrick.

P. S.—The general contractor for this building is the William L. Crow Construction Co. of 103 Park Ave. Starting away back in 1840, they have been building continuously in our city since that time. They are exceedingly proud of their record and reputation, and have good reason to be, having erected many of New York's representative buildings.

We have paid them within 18 months close to $1,000,000 for buildings, and they also recently constructed the Vanderbilt and Jarden City Hotels, Union Dime Savings Bank, Chemists and Engineering Clubs. The type of workmanship which enters into the construction work of the William L. Crow Co. assures a tenant of a thoroughly built, long-lived business home.

Bankruptcy Notices

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, SOUTHERN District of New York.—In the matter of NATHAN STEINFELD and SAMUEL BACKHAUT, copartners, doing business as S. BACKHAUT & CO., Alleged Bankrupts.

It appearing to my satisfaction by the petition of HENRY H. SILVER, verified the 21st day of October, 1912, that a petition was duly filed in this court on the 10th day of October, 1912, praying that the above-named Nathan Steinfeld and Samuel Backhaut be adjudicated involuntary bankrupts, both individually and as members of the firm of S. Backhaut & Co., and that the subpoena directed to them was duly issued out of this court to a Marshal of this district, and said Marshal has been unable to serve the same, and that said alleged bankrupt, Nathan Steinfeld, is not within this district so that personal service can be made upon him, and that diligent efforts have since been made to ascertain the whereabouts of the said alleged bankrupt, Nathan Steinfeld, but that he is not within the jurisdiction of this court, it is therefore now, on motion of Henry H. Silver, attorney for the petitioning creditors,

ORDERED that the above-named alleged bankrupt, Nathan Steinfeld, plead, answer, or demur on or about the 9th day of November, 1912, to the petition in involuntary bankruptcy filed in the office of the clerk of this court on the 10th day of October, 1912, and that in case of his failure to plead, answer, or demur thereto, adjudication will be made according to the terms of the said petition, and it is further ORDERED that this order be published in The New York Times once a week for two consecutive weeks, said publication to be commenced not later than the 25th day of October, 1912, and that a copy of this order be mailed to the said alleged bankrupt, Nathan Steinfeld, at his last known place of business at No. 110 West 26th Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the date of the first publication.

Dated New York, October 21st, 1912.
LEARNED HAND, D. J.

TO THE CREDITORS OF BIRCH REALTY COMPANY, and of HENRY RAABE and HERMAN RAABE, copartners, trading as H. Raabe & Sons, Bankrupts.

Notice is hereby given that a hearing will be had before the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, in the court rooms thereof in the United States Post Office and Court House Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 11th day of November, 1912, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, on an order to show cause directing the creditors of the above-named bankrupts to appear before the Court and show cause why a sale of the real property known as Premises 319-321 West 64th Street, and the fixtures and personal property used in connection with the said premises and appurtenant thereto, should not be sold, this notice being given in accordance with the terms of an order of the Hon. PRESIDENTIAL FIGHT SETTLED AT BARNARD

THE FIVE CANDIDATES THERE

Bullets Fail to Stop the Roosevelt Oratory—Winner to be Inaugurated To-day.

The walls of Brinckerhoff shook with an unprecedented uproar yesterday when the Barnard girls gave over several hours to a mock convention, with the whole undergraduate body divided into battling parties and every procession led by a band of kettles and combs. Five Presidential candidates were impersonated by as many girls, and each candidate had her cluster of camp followers, bent on making twice as much noise as those of any other camp. The result in sound waves was startling. The result in votes will not be announced until this noon, for ballots were not cast until after all the candidates had appealed eloquently for support. On the ballots the Barnard girls also answered the question, "Shall woman have the vote?" The successful candidate will be inaugurated this afternoon.

No candidate was received quite so tempestuously as Lillian Walton, garbed as a Rough Rider, and carrying a big stick. Of course, she was shot at a score of times. It was part of the huge success of the impersonation that the steady fire did not annoy her in the least, nor did the most deadly aim check for one moment the flow of oratory. When the Barnard Roosevelt was finally suppressed Louise Fox stepped forward in cap and gown, and looking so altogether scholarly that there were cries of "Win with Wilson!" from every quarter.

The Taft support was fairly subdued, and from this it was argued last night that the followers would be shown to be few when the votes were counted to-day. Edith Rosenblatt played the Taft rôle with vast success, however. No taller than four feet, and not much narrower, she appealed bravely for the Grand Old Party, but without stirring half the excitement that was in evidence the moment Anna Zolgmann, as Debs, bounced on the platform and tried to speak under the rapid fire of queries from her own supporters, who were all clad in flaming red. The Socialists made a brave showing of empty dinner pails, overworked children, and downtrodden women, and they sang the "Marseillaise" at the top of their lungs.

Not that the Prohibitionists were cast into the shadow. This delegation arrived with an emblematic water cooler held on high and dismally chanted "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." The Women's Christian Temperance Union made a great point of dragging in an unhappy collection of reformed husbands, who foiled them at the last moment by rolling around most unsteadily. However, the cause of the abstainer was upheld stanchly by the impersonator of Dr. Chafin, who paused between sentences to take surreptitious sips from a bottle of milk which she had thoughtfully concealed about her person before ascending the platform.

ENGINEER'S WIFE A SUICIDE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—Mrs. W. P. McComas, wife of a wealthy mining engineer, died to-day of the pistol wound in her head which she received on Tuesday after a quarrel with her husband.

The police pronounced the case a suicide, and McComas, who had been held in detention, but never arrested, received his full liberty yesterday.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has approved the following:

Communication from the Chief Examiner, referring back to the commission, with a request for further instructions, the matter of the proposed non-competitive examination to qualify George Caranicholas for the position of interpreter in the Greek, Italian, French, and Turkish languages. Mr. Ireland states that it seems to him out of the question to hold an open competitive examination for this combination of languages, as Greek and Turkish are practically never called for, and Italian and French interpreters may be supplied from the list.

Report of Mr. Murray recommending that the request of the Commissioner of Street Cleaning for examinations for promotion to second, fourth, and fifth grade clerk be granted, and that the request for an examination for promotion to third grade clerk be denied, as there is a promotion list for that grade in existence.

Report of Mr. Murray relative to the request of the President of the Bronx that eligibility for promotion to the position of assistant engineer, Grade D, be extended so as to include the positions of leveler, draughtsman, transitman, and computer. Mr. Murray calls attention to the fact that eligibility has been extended to topographical draughtsmen and transitmen, and that the latter position includes the position of computer, therefore persons holding the title of computer may be admitted. He states that the levelers are not eligible.

Report of Mr. Murray stating that William J. Sullivan, a third grade stenographer and typewriter in the Court of Special Sessions, is not eligible for promotion to fourth grade stenographer.

Report of Mr. Murray recommending that the following examinations in the Department of Parks, Manhattan and Richmond, be ordered:

Promotion to assistant engineer, Grade E, to be open to all transitmen, topographical draughtsmen, and assistant engineers, Grade D, who have served for not less than six months.

Promotion to transitman, Grade D, to be open to all rodmen, Grades B and C, who have served for not less than six months.

Promotion to rodman, Grade C, to be open to all axemen, Grade B, who have served for not less than six months.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission will hold an examination at the New York Custom House to-day to fill vacancies as they may occur in positions requiring the qualifications of stenography, or typewriting, or stenography and typewriting, in the Federal classified Civil Service in this vicinity. Men and women will be admitted to the examination, which is open to all citizens of the United States who comply with the requirements. The age limit is eighteen years or over on the date of the examination.

The commission announces an open competitive examination for men only at the New York Custom House on Nov. 6, 7 and 8, to fill a vacancy in the position of marine engine draftsman, at $1,380 a year, in the Bureau of Lighthouses, Washington, D. C.; a vacancy in the position of draftsman familiar with marine work, at $1,500 a year, in the Bureau of Lighthouses, Third District, with headquarters at Tompkinsville, N. Y.; a vacancy in the position of clerk qualified as skilled marine draftsman, at $1,400 a year, Division of Revenue Cutter Service, Treasury Department, and vacancies as they may occur requiring similar qualifications. Employment in these positions in the Lighthouse Service is dependent upon the amount of work authorized by Congress, and it is therefore impracticable to state definitely how long the services will be required. Competitors will be examined in the following subjects, which will have the relative weights indicated: Mathematics, 10; materials, 10; calculations, 10; drafting, 20; training, experience, and fitness, 50. Competitors must possess knowledge that will enable them to design the engines and all machinery in lighthouse tenders. Age, 18 years or over on the date of the examination. Applicants may be examined at any place at which this examination is held, regardless of their place of residence; but under a recent act of Congress only those who are examined in such State or Territory for at least one year previous to the examination, will be eligible for appointment to a position in the apportioned service in Washington, D. C. This examination is open to all male citizens of the United States who meet the requirements.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The disturbance that was over Texas Wednesday night has moved to the lower Ohio Valley with increasing intensity, and rains have fallen in the lake region, the Central Valleys and the South.

Temperatures have fallen in the Mississippi and Missouri Valleys and the Southwest, decidedly in the latter section, and continue low throughout the West. It is also considerably colder in New England and the Middle Atlantic States, while in the Ohio Valley temperatures are high for the season.

The storm over the Ohio Valley will continue northeastward, attended by general rains Friday east of the Mississippi River, with probably some snow over northern districts. There will also be rain Saturday in the Atlantic States. In the West the weather will be fair Friday and Saturday, and on Saturday in the Central Valleys and the Lake region.

It will be colder Friday in the Ohio Valley, and colder Saturday in the Atlantic States. In the West temperatures will remain low, but with a rising tendency on Saturday.

Winds along the New England Coast will be east and southeast, increasing by Friday night; middle Atlantic Coast, moderate southeast and south, increasing and shifting to northwest Saturday; South Atlantic Coast, moderate east and southeast.

Steamships departing Friday for European ports will have east and southeast winds, increasing Friday night, with rain to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Rain Friday and probably Saturday; colder Saturday, increasing south winds shifting to northwest during Friday night.

New Jersey—Cloudy Friday, rain by night. Saturday, rain and colder, light to moderate south winds, shifting to northeast Friday night, becoming brisk.

New England—Increasing cloudiness Friday, rain at night and on Saturday; colder Saturday in west portion, moderate to brisk southeast and south winds, shifting to northwest Saturday.

EDUCATION NOTES.

Secretary Palmer of the Board of Education sent a letter to the Municipal Civil Service Commission on Oct. 25 requesting the classification in the non-competitive class of two physicians at $1,800 a year, without maintenance, for the examination of mentally defective children in the public schools. As the recent action of the Board of Education in deciding to employ these two physicians has met with opposition, the Municipal Civil Service Commission has decided to hold a meeting before adopting or rejecting the Secretary's request.

The emergency appointment by the Board of Education of Edith P. Tanzer as typewriting copyist has been approved by the Municipal Civil Service Commission, as also the reassignment to duty by the Board of Education of Robert F. Berner as architectural draughtsman.

An interesting meeting of the parents of the pupils of Public School 48, Boerum and Leonard Streets, Brooklyn, of which James A. O'Donnell is Principal, was held in the school building on Tuesday. The meeting was in charge of Miss Irene M. Cullen, the Assistant to the Principal. It was called primarily for the parents of the children of the Grades 1A, 1B, 2A, and 2B. Dr. W. S. Watson talked to the audience on the proper care of the pupils' teeth. The school orchestra played several selections, one of the boys performed a violin solo, and the boys of the 7B Grade, of which Miss Theresa A. Friend is teacher, appeared in a little play. These parents' meetings will be held every Tuesday afternoon throughout the school year, and will be so arranged that the parents of the pupils in each of the grades will have an opportunity in turn to attend. By this arrangement, Principal O'Donnell explained, he will be enabled to meet all the parents of his pupils each month.

Dr. Ira S. Wile, who was recently appointed by Mayor Gaynor as a member of the Board of Education to succeed Richard B. Aldcroftt, Jr., resigned, has been assigned by President Winthrop to the Committees on High Schools and on the Nautical School to fill Mr. Aldcroftt's place. Mrs. Ella W. Kramer has been assigned by Mr. Winthrop to succeed Mr. Aldcroftt on Local School Board District 19, and Dr. Wile has been assigned to Local School Board District 16 to succeed Mrs. Kramer. Commissioner Alrick H. Man has been appointed Temporary Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Normal College in place of Mr. Aldcroftt.

City Superintendent Maxwell announces that licenses for the season of 1912-1913, as Principal of an evening elementary school have been granted to the following: Henry H. Constantine, Box 161, Prince Bay, S. I.; Eugene B. Gartlan, 1,258 St. Nicholas Avenue; Henry H. Goldberger, 535 West 151st Street; Frederick B. Graham, 17 West 108th Street; Michael J. Business Opportunities

RICH AS THE VALLEY OF THE NILE.

We sell irrigated land in the beautiful Sacramento Valley in California. It is wonderfully rich, deep, fertile, and the water supply abundant.

This field garden will grow oranges, lemons, peaches, prunes, pecans, Bermuda onions, olives, figs, grapes, and sweet alfalfa; also any other crop grown in the United States.

Think of the enormous returns, where you can use land in this delightful climate 12 months in the year; while here you use it only 5 months.

JAMES, AMEDEE DE GASQUET.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent, to Elizabeth Pratt de Gasquet James, executrix, &c., of AMEDEE DE GASQUET JAMES, deceased, now known as Elizabeth Tibbits de Mecklenburg, wife of Henry Borwin, otherwise known as Duc Borwin de Mecklenburg; Victoire Louise de Libran, Elizabeth Bleeker Von der Decken, and Hereward Von der Decken, infants, residing with their father, Leo Baron Von der Decken, at 7 Stallbaun Strasse, Leipzig, Saxony, and the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., of the City of New York, send greeting.

You and each of you are hereby cited and required personally to be and appear before our Surrogate of the County of Ulster, at the Surrogate's Court of said County, held at the Surrogates' Office, in the County of Ulster, on the 17th day of December, 1912, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to make answer to the petition of George Watson Pratt de Gasquet James and Pauline Andree de la Mettrie. Filed in the office of the Surrogate of Ulster County, Kingston, N. Y., on the 24th day of August, 1912, and show cause why the Letters Testamentary heretofore on March 22, 1904, granted to the said Elizabeth Pratt de Gasquet James, executrix, &c., should not be revoked and annulled; and why a judicial settlement of her accounts as ancillary executrix and executrix should not be had and why your petitioners and other persons interested in the said estate of Amedee de Gasquet James, deceased, should not have such other or further relief as may be just in the premises, and such of you as are hereby cited, as are under the age of twenty-one years, are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of said County of Ulster to be hereunto [L. S.] affixed. Witness, Hon. Walter N. Gill, a Surrogate of our said County, at the County of Ulster, the 19th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twelve.

DANIEL B. DEYO,

(ORPHANS' COURT)
(SEAL)

GREETING.

Whereas, at an Orphans' Court held at the City of Easton, County and State aforesaid, before the Honorable Henry W. Scott, President Judge of the said court, on the 16th day of October, A. D. 1912; upon the petition of Howard R. Knecht, Committee of Anna Mary Knecht, praying the Court, inter alia, for an order authorizing and empowering him as Trustee to grant and convey to the North Pennsylvania Rail Road Company, in fee, the tract of land in said petition described;

THEREUPON, on motion of William M. McKeen, Esq., the petition of Howard Knecht, Executor of said John Knecht, having been presented to the Court praying the Court to authorize and empower the said Howard Knecht as Trustee to convey to the North Pennsylvania Railroad Company a tract of land containing fifteen and six one-hundredths acres, more fully and particularly described in the petition, for the sum of Eighteen Thousand and Five Hundred Dollars, ($18,500,) and that the petitioner be further authorized and empowered to agree with the North Pennsylvania Railroad Company to relieve it from maintaining a bridge connecting the two tracts of land; and it is further ordered and decreed that a citation be granted and that service be made upon the parties in interest, enumerated in said petition personally as far as it is possible to do so in this jurisdiction. It is further ordered and decreed that a copy of said citation be sent to Elizabeth Detwiller Campbell, Nathaniel A. Campbell, her husband, Ardsley, New York, by registered post with return registry card, and that a copy be mailed to William K. Detwiller and Bertha P., his wife, Pagoda, Routt County, Colorado, by registered post with return registry card. It is further ordered and decreed that advertisement be made of the granting of this citation and requiring the parties to appear and show cause, if any, why the decree should not be granted, on the second Monday of November, 1912, such advertisement to be made by insertion once a week for three weeks in the Easton Daily Express and in the Northampton County Reporter, and by insertion in The New York Times once a week for two weeks, and by insertion in a paper of general circulation in the County of Routt, Colorado, once a week for two weeks prior to said return day.

THEREFORE, you, the parties above-named, are hereby cited to be and appear at an Orphans' Court to be held at the Court House in the City of Easton, Pa., on Monday, the 11th day of November, A. D. 1912, at 9:30 A. M., and then and there show cause, if any you may have, why the prayer of the petitioner shall not be granted. Herein fail not.

WITNESS the Honorable Henry W. Scott, President Judge of the said Court, this 16th day of October, A. D. 1912.

By the Court.

CITY BUDGET CALLS FOR $193,047,246

TAX RATE IS UNCHANGED

Increase to be Met by Improved Resources—Police Extra Has a String to It.

At 11:20 by the clock in the Aldermanic Chamber, though the clocks on Park Row all showed it was nearly 1 A. M., the Board of Estimate convened last night to pass the City Budget for 1913. The law said it must be passed by midnight and to suit the convenience of the City Statisticians the Aldermen set their clock back a couple of hours.

The final total arrived at was $193,047,246. This is an increase of $11,956,990 over the budget of last year, but this will not cause any increase in the tax rate, which will remain the same as last year, as follows:

Manhattan and the Bronx	$1.83
Queens	1.84
Brooklyn	1.87
Richmond	1.92

The increase in the budget without an increase in the tax rate has been made possible by the increase in the earnings of the city from its sources of revenue and by the rise in the assessed value of property. The general fund of the city, which is fed by such self-sustaining activities as the docks, is approximately likely to be $9,500,000 more than last year, and the increase in the assessed valuation of real estate, $130,000,000 over the figures of last year, will bring in additional tax returns of about $2,300,000 or $2,500,000.

Department.	1913 Appropriation.	Increase Over 1912.
FIXED CHARGES.

Rents	1,124,192.08	3,872.08

The appropriation of $21,866.66 for 454 additional patrolmen was adopted, with the proviso that it should not be made available for expenditure, and no additional patrolmen should be appointed till the Board of Estimate ascertained by inquiry the present and proposed distribution of the police force and had reached a conclusion based upon facts as to the exact number of patrolmen that ought to be provided.

The main items of increase allowed, many of which are mandatory or substantially mandatory, were:

Sea View Hospital	$250,000
Health Department	211,500
Fire Department	250,000
Bellevue Hospital	62,000
Civil Service Commission	23,000
Budget Efficiency Work	89,000
Police Department	211,000
Water Supply	134,000
Street Cleaning	212,000
Charities	54,000
President Queens	54,000
Presidents Bronx and Richmond	54,000
Miscellaneous smaller departments	144,500

In arriving at the final appropriation for next year the Budget Committee was confronted with requests from the city departments for a grant of $28,004,879 over the amount allowed to them for 1912. This was cut down, by careful revision, by about $10,000,000. Of the increased appropriations asked for, $6,331,172 represented the increase in the debt service and $4,642,000 the increase in the requirements of the educational department, so the Budget Committee actually cut down the requests for $17,031,908 increases from the departments to about $1,780,000.

THE MAYOR ENVIES A WALKER

Harvey Theron, a reporter of the Ukiah (Cal.) Daily Republican, after walking all the way across the continent by the northern route, called yesterday on Mayor Gaynor at the City Hall. He bore with him letters from Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco, Mayor J. L. Carruthers of Ukiah, Mayor Benjamin Loewenthal of Shadron, Neb., Mayor J. E. Dahlman of Omaha, and Mayor Carter H. Harrison of Chicago, who certified to the truth of his story.

The Mayor dictated this letter to Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, which Theron will carry back with him:

Oct. 31, 1912.

Dear Mr. Mayor: Mr. Harvey Theron walks into my office this day with a letter from you to me, dated March 12 last. He informs me that he has walked all the way from San Francisco here in seven months and twenty-six days. He does not give me the hours, minutes, and seconds over. But he is a red hot picture of health. He is a good, wholesome, athletic Norseman, born in Sweden. He intends to walk back, and I am giving him this letter to you. If I had time I would go with him. It would do me good. They knock me around pretty hard here now and then, if not all the time, and some days I feel as though a good long walk would just suit me—the further away the better. But the next day I feel all right and content again. Sincerely yours,

W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

The Hon. James Rolph, Jr., Mayor, San Francisco, Cal.

The Mayor chatted a few minutes with the pedestrian, who was clad in khaki coat and trousers and leggings, and declared again that he would not mind taking a good long walk with him himself.

WOMEN START BANK RUN.

Foreigners Misunderstand Statement About Perth Amboy Institution.

A misunderstood statement by two women was believed to have brought about a run which began yesterday on the Perth Amboy Savings Institution. The run lasted all day, and when the bank closed it looked as if it would continue to-day. On balancing the books last evening it was found that $70,000 had been paid to depositors. Funds were brought from this city to meet the sudden demand. Adrian Lyon, President of the bank, declared last night that there was not the slightest reason for a run on the institution. Because of its prosperous condition, he said, the clause requiring sixty days' notice would not be enforced, and all depositors who wished to would be allowed to withdraw their funds at once as the surest way of stopping the panic and restoring confidence.

Mr. Lyon said he believed that the trouble started because of a remark made by a woman who, with a companion, went to the bank on Wednesday to draw some money. It was after business hours when she got there. This woman, or her companion, told their friends that they could not draw money, as the bank was closed. There are some 7,000 depositors in the Savings Institution, and many of them are foreigners. The woman's story traveled fast, and in time it was altered to convey the idea that the bank was in difficulties.

Duck N. Y. U. Freshmen.

The annual Hallowe'en harrowing of New York University's freshmen drew close to 2,000 spectators to the campus last night, there to stand banked on the slopes of the Hall of Fame and along the edge of the Colonnade while one after another, the pajama-clad men of 1916 stood up and spoke and sang their pieces. The worse the performance the more thoroughly would the performer be ducked in the Fountain of Knowledge. As most of the performances were very bad indeed, the waters were in continuous use.

Before the first submissive freshman mounted the rostrum, there was a lockstep parade along Fordham Road, to the home of Chancellor Brown, where, alter a little speech from Dr. Brown commending the freshmen on their fortitude, crullers, apples and coffee were distributed by Mrs. Brown.

CARREL FINDS WAY TO MEND ARTERIES

MAY BE MADE PRACTICAL

When He Has Perfected His Tubes, Which Are of Glass, Aluminium, and Gold-Coated Aluminium.

Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research has been doing considerable experimental work recently other than the cultivation of tissues and entire organs outside the bodies to which they originally belonged. He has attempted to improve the method of treating defective arteries, where such conditions as aneurisms or dilatations of the arteries exist, by mechanical means, and has succeeded to an encouraging degree.

The customary modern procedure is to coil inside the defective artery a length of fine wire, usually of gold. It practically amounts to a reinforced wall of metal and frequently prevents further dilatation. The process, however, is tedious, and at best is rather uncertain. Dr. Carrel, whose work in surgery of the blood vessels is known in every civilized land, conceived the idea of using tubes of glass, aluminium, or gold-plated aluminium, and inserting them into the artery through a hole cut into the arterial wall. It is expected that the operation will become practical for man as soon as he has perfected his tubes.

He performed his experimental operations on the thoracic aorta, which carries the blood from the heart, and is the largest blood vessel in the body. Dogs were used. Surgery of the thoracic aorta was but little heard of before the advent of Carrel into the scientific world. The results of his experiments are made known in Surgery, Gynecology, and Obstetrics, published in Chicago, in an article entitled "Results of Permanent Intubation of Thoracic Aorta."

Summary of His Experiment.

This summary appears in the Journal of the American Medical Association:

"Straight tubes of glass, aluminium, or of gold-plated aluminium were employed by Carrel. Their diameter was generally 9 or 10 mm. while the length was 45 mm. As the dogs were of various sizes, the tubes distended, exactly fitted the aorta, or were of relatively smaller calibre. Before being used, the tubes were paraffined. As soon as the tube was introduced into the lumen of the vessel, two silk threads which had been previously put around the aorta, were tied. These ligatures should be tied tightly enough to prevent the tube from slipping, but not too tightly; there is danger of cutting the aortic wall, which has been found to be very friable.

"The clamps were removed and the circulation re-established through the intubated segment. There was generally no hemorrhage from the opening in the aortic wall. Eleven experiments were performed. Seven animals were intubated with a glass tube, three with an aluminium tube and one with a gold-plated aluminium tube. Two of the animals intubated with a glass tube died of hemorrhage eight and eleven days respectively after the operation.

The Accidents Preventable.

"The accidents were due to preventable causes, the cutting of aortic wall by the ligatures, and the breaking of the tube. It was found that no clot had deposited on the wall of the tube. In the five other cases, obliteration of the aorta or of the tube occurred suddenly from five to ninety-seven days after the operation. The tube or the aorta were found to be occluded by a fresh thrombus, which, in every case, started from a laceration of the wall due to the poorly finished upper or lower edge of the tube.

"It appeared that thrombosis did not take place as long as no laceration of the vascular wall occurred. The form and the size of the tube in a large measure seemed to be responsible for this complication. These experiments have shown a new fact: The arterial blood flowed through a glass tube 9 or 10 mm. in diameter during periods varying from five to ninety-seven days. No deposit of fibrin on the wall of the tube occurred. Sudden occlusion of the vessel or of the tube took place following a laceration of the aortic wall by the roughly finished edges of the tube.

"The permanent intubation of a large artery is a simple operation. It may become practical if the shape and the nature of the tubes be modified in such a manner as to prevent the laceration of the aortic wall. It is probable that the use of smooth-edged gold tubes, or of tubes lined with a vein, will be followed by better results."

THE "HOBBY" CLUB DINES.

Dr. Dean Shows Members His Collection of Armor.

Dr. Bashford Dean, Curator of the Museum of Natural History, entertained the members of the "Hobby" Club at his home in Riverdale last evening. Dr. Dean's hobby is armor, and he has one of the finest private collections in this country. Much of the armor owned by J. Pierpont Morgan and the Metropolitan Museum was purchased abroad under his supervision. Among those at the dinner were Justice Victor J. Dowling, Henry E. Huntington, Darwin P. Kingsley, Theodore N. Vail, John G. Milburn, Alvin W. Krech, John C. Tomlinson, William M. Schnitzer, John D. Crimmins, George A. Plympton, Prof. William P. Trent, John C. Tomlinson, Jr., John Quinn, Adrian H. Larkin, Albert Gallatin, and Henry H. Harper.

At the close of the dinner Dr. Dean exhibited some of his armorial pieces and read a paper on ancient armor and its uses and manufacture in different countries.

HOTEL METROPOLE CLOSES.

Rosenthal Murder Killed It, Proprietor Considine Says.

The Hotel Metropole, 147 to 151 West Forty-third Street, outside of which Rosenthal, the gambler, was shot to death, closed its doors at 1 o'clock this morning. As George F. Considine sorrowfully remarked just before the final hour, it was the Rosenthal murder that killed the place.

Considine had been in financial difficulties for months before the murder, but, as he explained early this morning, he would have weathered the financial storm if the notoriety which the Metropole attained had not stopped his growing patronage.

Early this month Considine filed schedules in bankruptcy showing liabilities of $258,698 of which $126,413 were secured. of creditors is a rather long one and among the debtors to the hotel for accommodations are the names of many prominent in the theatrical profession. The stock fixtures, equipment and leasehold were sold by the receiver some weeks ago to Louis Leavitt for $2,050 above the mortgages and encumbrances.

"None of the men who shot Rosenthal ever came in this place," said Mr. Considine, "and yet it was just my luck that he should be killed in front of my door and the name of this hotel mentioned all over the country along with Gyp the Blood, Dago Frank, and the rest of the outfit.

Not so long ago we turned fifty persons away each night. Now the hotel had only sixteen roomers. It was the same way with the other business here. I have received fifty letters from business men who have said they sympathize with me, but have to give the place the go by on account of the Rosenthal murder."

The Hudson Trust Company filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday, an accounting of the estate of John R. Considine, one of the owners of the Hotel Metropole. His personal estate grew from $28,673.25 to $31,822.40 in the hands of the trust company. When the Hotel Metropole was sold in proceedings to foreclose a mortgage, $58,900 was realized on behalf of the Considines.

Mr. Considine's estate was encumbered by a lot of non-producing securities, including 175 shares of Dreamland stock, seven Dreamland bonds and 1,000 shares of the Washington Columbia Theatre. He also held some worthless notes.

"Clothes From Maker To Wearer"

"Smartest $25 Overcoats at $15"—Moe Levy

If I had the opportunity to display my line of $15 overcoats and suits side by side with the garments that other retailers are offering at $25, you would understand that my claim to deliver the smartest overcoats and suits at $15 is not one bit exaggerated.

The many thousand men who have already bought my $15 overcoats and suits this season—have come here because they found that I do give $25 value for $15. They know that I manufacture the clothes in my workrooms, and save the profit that the regular retailer has to pay the wholesale manufacturer. Then again, I save thousands of dollars a year in rent, because my store is located in Walker Street, away from the great high-rent districts.

When you buy your clothes from me, you get the best made, best style garments, without the manufacturer's profit and high rental cost added to the price.

Come to Walker Street and let me prove to you the advantages I offer. At $15 I will show you the largest variety of smart overcoat and suit models in every fashionable fabric. And best of all, I'll positively give you $25 Service Guaranteed Clothes at $15. No parley—your money will be cheerfully refunded if entire satisfaction is not forthcoming.

We make clothes for discriminating men who insist that their apparel shall be in good taste—of good workmanship—and of the finest materials—at a price notable for moderation.

If you want to wear clothes of this type—distinguishing clothes—you will want us to make them for you.

Suits or Overcoats $20 to $50

A Real Style Show

"Those are good lookers," we heard a chap say yesterday.

He was standing before a window that displayed some rough stuff Overcoats having that inimitable air of distinction that goes with all our Hart, Schaffner & Marx garments.

The particular coat he admired was a warm rich brown, rather short and with the belted back; its buttons were cut right from the ivory nut, and showed rough and brown at the top and pure white at the edge.

An unusually smart little coat—price—$25. Other Overcoats that are equally smart at $18, $20 and $22.50. Come in and try one on; absolutely no obligation to buy.
